SIKORA FREE IN LOVE MURDER

CLASS MURPHY, LA FOLLETTE AS AGITATORS' AIDS

2 Accused at House Committee Quiz.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.] and Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, a Democrat seeking re-election, today were charged with consorting with revolutionists and contributing to a breakdown in civil authority.

Senator La Follette. [Above] Gov. Murphy.

Testimony to this effect was presented before the Dies house committee investigating un-American activities. La Follette's so-called Civil Liberties committee and Murphy were blamed for the riots and general collapse of authority in the automobile strikes in Flint, Mich., during the early part of 1937.

Tells of Red Meeting.

One witness testified that La Follette addressed a meeting of communists in Flint in February of this year. After the meeting, at Cass Technical High school, "communist literature was so thick it took the police forty-eight hours to clean it up," said Herman Luhrs, chairman of the Detroit American Legion committee on Americanization.

The meeting was sponsored by the Conference for Protection of Civil Rights, Luhrs said. Communist books were prominently displayed and offered for sale, including one by Earl Browder, head of the communist party in the United States, said Luhrs.

He described a series of such meetings. At one of them, he said, Roy Reuther, a leading agitator in the Michigan automobile strikes, raised a clenched fist, the Red salute, while the "Internationale" was sung.

Strikes Laid to Agitators.

John M. Barringer, city manager and director of public safety of Flint during the sitdown strikes and riots of February, 1937, blamed the strikes upon communist agitators and said they were encouraged by the La Follette committee and Gov. Murphy.

"Would you say that these strikes [at the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants] would have occurred except for the instigation of communists?" asked Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.]

"No, they would not and I'll say further that they would not have progressed so rapidly except for the attitude of the La Follette committee and Gov. Murphy," Barringer replied.

When asked what part the La Follette committee had played, he told of two La Follette investigators who came to him and demanded the names and addresses of all men who had joined the reserve corps of guards that Barringer organized after Murphy refused state police assistance.

Linked to Communists.

These men Barringer identified as Harold Cranefield, now regional attorney at Detroit for the National Labor Relations board, and Benjamin Allen, who is still employed by the La Follette committee. Both men have previously figured in the hearings. A witness on Tuesday had testified that these men served him with a La Follette subpena in communist headquarters at Detroit and addressed the communists as "comrades."

Barringer denied them the information, he said, because he knew that it would be turned over to the strike agitators for threats against members of the corps. He said he believed it was Cranefield who hurled a threat as they left his office. He quoted the La Follette man as saying:

"Well, we're sorry. It might have been better for you and every one concerned if you had not refused us."

Barringer Later Fired.

These men, he said, seemed disinterested in the strike conditions at that time, except in getting the information on his men. Later, Barringer was fired by the city commission for daring to organize the re-

JURY OUT ONLY 2 HOURS; CROWD CHEERS VERDICT

"It's Swell," Happy Defendant Cries.

BY MARCIA WINN.

The jury of eleven husbands and one bachelor trying him before Judge James F. Fardy was out one minute less than two hours. They took one ballot. On that, the voting was unanimous for "not guilty."

"We felt," explained Russell F. Hornburg, 35 years old, of 7135 South Wood street, foreman of the jury, "that he [Sikora] acted in a way that should protect the sanctity of the American home."

Others spoke up, volubly: "He was no criminal!"

Crowd Screams in Delight.

A crowd of more than 200, most of them women, jammed the courtroom for the verdict, which was returned at 9:34 p. m. As it was read, they screamed and cried in delight.

Many burst into wild tears. Others kissed their neighbors. Above the noise came the piercing hallelujah of a tall woman in black, who cried, "Bless his sweet heart!" again and again.

Then, surging past the helpless bailifs, they swarmed around Sikora, who had jumped to his feet, a slender, short figure in navy blue. His hollow face, previously dark with shadows and care, was transfigured with a radiant smile. He, too, seemed on the verge of tears.

"It's swell!" was his only comment, before he was rushed out of the courtroom.

Feels Like a Million.

Later, before leaving the county jail, he elaborated. "I feel like a million," he said jubilantly. "Or at least half a million.

"All must have known," he said soberly, "that Margaret did wrong. No doubt she'll never feel the same way toward me as she did before."

Margaret was Sikora's young wife. She is 22; he is 31. Last March she fell in love with the more urbane Solomon, beside whom she worked for four years, and on July 9 she left Sikora because of that love. Six weeks later, on Aug. 22, Sikora shot and killed Solomon on his way to work.

Sikora delivered himself up to the police with the explanation that Solomon was a "home breaker." He told them how he had tried to be a model husband.

Wife Testifies Against Him.

A grand jury speedily indicted him for murder and his trial opened Monday, a sensational trial in that his wife, renouncing him for the memory of her dead lover, took the stand against him.

Margaret, calm and self-assured, was sitting quietly in the state's attorney's office as the trial ended. She had been reading a book all evening. She took the verdict without a flicker of an eyelash.

"I expected it," she said shortly.

Asked to amplify that, she said, "Well, the jury heard the evidence. They were the deciding factors."

Margaret's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Boehme of 7809 Elm Grove avenue, Elmwood Park, who has tearfully defended Sikora, siding with him

Slay Ex-Boss of Capone Breweries

CHOP SUEY

Shot Down in Street; Labor Strife Blamed

Bert Delaney, former superintendent of Al Capone's bootleg breweries during prohibition, was shot and killed by an assassin at 35th street and Ellis avenue last night. The murder was committed in the presence of Delaney's red haired sweetheart, Mrs. Ruth McAvoy.

Labor troubles, rather than old dry era enmities, were credited by police as the most likely motive for the slaying. After repeal, Delaney tried to muscle into a scavenger teamsters' union. He reputedly attempted the same move again a few months ago, police said.

Recalls Dry Era Killings.

Whether motivated by union or gangland troubles, the murder bore the prohibition executioner's touch. Delaney had driven up to the building at 3500 Ellis avenue with Mrs. McAvoy and Carl White, her brother-in-law. They live there. They got out of the car first. As they stood in the entrance waiting for Delaney, the killer crept up behind him, and shot him down.

Then, as Delaney lay on the sidewalk, the gunman pumped three more bullets into his back, and fled south in Ellis avenue past White and Mrs. McAvoy. He boarded a waiting car driven by a confederate and they speeded away.

"I heard four or five shots and then saw a man run by," Mrs. McAvoy told police. White knew no more. Neither was able to describe the killer, nor could they suggest a motive.

Sweethearts for Seven Years.

The murder gave Scott W. Lucas, Democratic candidate for senator, an unexpected thrill. With drawn guns a police squad curbed his car in front of the White Sox ball park. Mr. Lucas quickly satisfied the detectives he and his two companions were not murderers and the detectives drove away with apologies.

Mrs. McAvoy said she and Delaney had been sweethearts for about seven years. He had considerable money until after repeal, she said, and once gave her an $800 ring. In recent years Delaney had been poor, Mrs. McAvoy said. She employed him as manager of her tavern at 26th street and Indiana avenue.

Delaney's widow, Mrs. Mae Cole Delaney, 5632 Aberdeen street, from whom he had been separated for five years, also confirmed the report he had little money. She said he had not supported her during their estrangement. He once was comparatively wealthy, she said. According to Delaney's widow and his sister, Mrs. Sadie Donisch, 5528 Morgan street, his real name was Barney Fresco.

Man Behind the Scenes.

Delaney was 59 years old. He entered the beer racket early in prohibition, joining the Capone mob when

CONGRESS QUIZ TO REVEAL NEW WPA SCANDALS

Lid Will Be Blasted Off Corruption.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—A congressional investigation that will blow the roof off the WPA, the $200,000,000 a month Roosevelt relief machine, was predicted today by well informed members of congress.

They based their forecast of a sweeping investigation at the next session of congress on the widespread and rapidly increasing scandals concerning politics in relief.

The indictment in New Mexico yesterday of 73 persons, including federal and state Democratic officials, a former WPA administrator, and four members of the family of United States Senator Dennis Chavez, was cited as an outstanding but by no means unique example of WPA corruption.

Await Campaign Charges.

Even more sensational charges than those contained in the New Mexico indictment will be made in the report of the senate campaign expenditures committee, headed by Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.], its members confided.

"By the time congress convenes in January there will be such a mass of evidence against the WPA that an investigation cannot be avoided," one senator said.

WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, who has insisted repeatedly that there is no politics in the WPA, was at Hyde Park, N. Y., today in seclusion with President Roosevelt.

Refuse to Answer Query.

Other WPA officials, including Aubrey Williams, acting administrator, refused to answer the question: "Do you still maintain there is no politics in the WPA?"

While refraining from public comment, WPA officials sought to make it appear that their representatives in New Mexico had initiated the federal grand jury investigation. They recalled that Fred G. Healy, one of those indicted, was removed by Mr. Hopkins as state administrator on Sept. 24.

Healy was removed, however, while his administration was under investigation, the grand jury inquiry having been ordered Sept. 7 by Federal Judge Colin Neblett.

Seeks to Block Inquiries.

Hopkins sought to prevent investigations of the WPA by federal and state grand juries as far back as June 2, 1936, when he issued an executive order, which still stands, forbidding officers and employés to testify.

Hopkins and his subordinates successfully defied a Florida state court when a WPA employé was discharged because the grand jury of which he was foreman indicted sixteen men as members of a gambling conspiracy, including a sheriff who had been a district WPA administrator.

Hopkins was not so successful, however, when he tried to resist the processes of justice in Nebraska. When a federal grand jury undertook to investigate WPA corruption the WPA employés stood mute, citing the Hopkins order.

Forced to Remove Gag.

Judge James Fitzgerald pointed out that they were defying a federal court, demanded to know who was dictating what a federal grand jury could and could not do, and Hopkins removed the gag from the mouths of his subordinates.

Members of congress who have been demanding a WPA investigation since 1936 say the Hopkins gag rule is not the only obstacle to effective court action in WPA fraud cases. They explain that United States attorneys and their assistants throughout the country are members of the Roosevelt-Farley political machine and that federal grand juries usually do what the district attorney tells them.

Occasionally, however, a federal or state judge takes matters in his own hands, as did Judge Neblett in New Mexico, a Democrat who was appointed by President Woodrow Wilson.

Senator Chavez is a 100 per cent yes man and a darling of the New

JAILLESS TOWN MUST STOP CHAINING ITS PRISONERS TO TREE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—The boom town of Disney must stop substituting a tree, a chain, and a padlock for a jail, Mrs. Mabel Bassett, state commissioner of charities and corrections, declared today.

"They have no place to keep prisoners," said Mrs. Bassett, who investigated the situation. "They chain them to a tree. Last week they chained an intoxicated woman to the tree. She didn't like it and I don't blame her. They have chained men there in the past."

She wrote D. C. Armstrong, chairman of the Disney townsite board, the practice must be stopped.

Voice on WGN Saves Woman; Wins Her Job

A week ago, in her tiny house in De Kalb, Mrs. Ida Tadd decided life wasn't worth living. She couldn't find work. A series of family disputes convinced her she could no longer stay at home. She decided to take poison.

Mrs. Ida Tadd.

As she dressed in her pajamas she listened idly to the radio. She had obtained a capsule of a quick acting poison. She lifted it to her lips. Then a voice on the radio caught her attention. A young mother was pleading over the air for a job so that she could support her baby.

Flings Poison Away.

Mrs. Tadd listened. What she heard led her to the kitchen door. She opened it and flung the poison away. She wrote to radio station W-G-N and the sponsor of the "I Need a Job" program, presented at 9:30 p. m. on Fridays by the Hirsch Clothing company.

"If that girl has courage, so have I," she wrote. "I am giving myself another week. If I don't find work then I am going to finish it all."

The week was up yesterday. Last night Mrs. Tadd, a personable woman of 34, was not in De Kalb but in studio 3 of station W-G-N. She was telling her story into a microphone.

Sobs as She Talks.

Shaking and sobbing, it seemed she would not be able to finish. Three times Virginia Lee and Vern Smith, who question the job hunters, interrupted to comfort her. She told listeners she had worked in De Kalb stores for 20 years; she was an experienced curtain and draperies buyer.

"Every one has been so wonderful to me," she said after the program. "And today I had my hair fixed for the first time since July."

Telephones were ringing by that time, ringing with offers of jobs.

She isn't going back to De Kalb. This morning some one will have a new saleswoman or a curtain buyer. She'll be a good one. Mrs. Tadd, confident once more, guarantees that

WIFE GIVEN HIS WPA JOB; HE'LL COOK AND TAKE CARE OF HOME

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Judge Joseph A. Corio today ordered George Smith, 38 years old, to let Mrs. Smith take over his WPA job and "you stay home, do the cooking, and take care of the kids." "That suits me, judge," Smith replied. Probation officer Preston Crook told Judge Corio in Domestic Relations court that Smith was behind in payments for support of his wife and their four children.

BLOW SILENCES TALK ON HITLER; POLICE STEP IN

Police averted a near riot and halted the weekly neighborhood forum last night in Viking hall, 2741 North avenue, after a man in the audience punched the speaker of the evening on the jaw. The speaker was Prof. Hans Fischer; his subject, "Hitler—an Engima or the Man of the Hour?" Fischer advertised himself as a former Hitler lieutenant. Sponsors said the meeting had no connection with the German-American Bund, pro-Nazi organization.

Most of the 300 listeners in the hall were antagonistic. A crowd of 1,000, attracted by posters bearing Hitler's picture, gathered outside the hall. After the attack on the speaker police under Lieut. Anthony McDonough broke up the meeting. Fischer was taken from the neighborhood in a squad car.

The ruddy, good natured pastor, 57 years old, now is enrolled as a freshman—"the most consistently happy freshman"—at Washington university. He is married and has two sons and a daughter.

Deal. Although the late Senator Bronson Cutting, a radical Republican, bolted his party and supported Roosevelt in 1932, the administration supported Chavez against Cutting in 1934.

Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, went to New Mexico to make a speech for Chavez. Chavez was defeated, but when Senator Cutting was killed in an airplane crash in 1935, Chavez was appointed to his place, and in 1936 he was elected.

Chavez joined President Roosevelt's "Dear Alben" Barkley [D., Ky.], the senate majority leader, in a vigorous attack on the amendment of his colleague, Senator Carl Hatch [D., N. M.], to the 3¾ billion dollar relief and pump priming bill at the last session. The Hatch amendment, which was defeated, was intended to prohibit political coercion of WPA workers by administration employés of the organization.

Sets Record for Candor.

Barkley's speech defending the use of WPA machines for political purposes was astonishingly blunt, but Chavez was credited with a record for shameless candor.

"Which one of the senators who is listening to me tonight would be here this evening if he had not been in politics and if some of the boys whom it is now proposed to punish [WPA workers] because they dare to express their opinions had not gone about ringing doorbells and obtaining a few votes?" Chavez asked.

"This particular amendment will have only one effect, and I wish senators would keep it in mind. It will hurt those who are trying to do what the average Democratic senators in this body wants to do.

"As a practical proposition shall we tie the hands of the senator from Kentucky, Mr. Barkley, or any other senator, just because he happened to have recommended to WPA some honest Democratic friend who could do the job? Shall we prevent that friend from giving the senator a lift when he needs it? If we adopt the pending amendment, the result will be to hurt a senator such as the senator from Kentucky, Mr. Barkley."

LOOP PROPERTY OWNERS CALLED ON SUBWAY PLAN

The Greater Central District association will hold a meeting in the Palmer house Tuesday to discuss the effects of subway construction on loop property and business. Owners and managers of large downtown properties will attend the meeting, according to Philip F. W. Peck, president. The members of the Public Works administration commission that is supervising preparation of the plans for the tunnels also have been asked to attend.

President Roosevelt yesterday sent a telegram to Mayor Kelly stating he was unable to say definitly if he could come to Chicago in December for the start of the subway work. "The subway represents a fine achievement for the city of Chicago and your administration," his telegram said. The PWA is making an 18 million dollar grant for the $40,000,000 subway project.

FRAUDS ON WPA LAID TO 32 AND 16 CORPORATIONS

Newark, N. J., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Sixteen sand and stone corporations and thirty-two individuals were indicted by the federal grand jury here today on charges of conspiracy to defraud the WPA of approximately $250,000.

The indictments alleged the defendants agreed to meet and fix arbitrary prices for the delivery of sand and stone for use on WPA projects in Essex, Passaic, and Bergen counties.

The price fixed by the corporations, according to the indictment, was considerably in excess of the market price and was in excess of the price at which the concerns sold to private dealers and contractors.

TERRORIZE CHILDREN— STEAL $100.

Two gunmen yesterday forced three children to lie on the floor of a meat market at 7200 South Campbell avenue while they took $10 from the owner, Apolinaras Grigas.

PRESS INQUIRY ON WPA GRAFT IN NEW MEXICO

73 Are Accused; Predict More Indictments.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—New startling disclosures of political corruption in New Mexico's WPA projects are expected to follow the federal indictment yesterday of seventy-three persons, including a number of Democratic leaders, on charges of graft. Federal agents are continuing an investigation and additional indictments are predicted.

The indictments charge conspiracy and fraud in the use of WPA labor and materials. The Democratic leaders were accused of using the WPA for "joint and unified political activity to build a political organization throughout the state."

Senator's Relatives Indicted.

Among those indicted were four relatives of Senator Dennis Chavez of New Mexico, credited with obtaining most of the $25,000,000 in WPA funds pcured into the state in the last four years.

They included Stanley W. P. Miller, assistant United States attorney, Senator Chavez's son-in-law; Mrs. Anita Tafoya, Senator Chavez's sister; Salamon Tafoya, Senator Chavez's nephew, and Salamon Chavez, Senator Chavez's cousin. Senator Chavez's secretary, Joe Martinez, also was indicted.

There were reports today that all state and federal employés named in the graft indictment would face suspension pending trial of the case. In response to a request by United States District Attorney Everett Grantham, who directed the investigation, Miller was suspended indefinitly by the department of justice in Washington.

Predicts New Revelations.

Grantham indicated there would be further developments of wide scale corruption in the use of federal funds at the next regular term of the federal court in December. A force of five special agents of the criminal division of investigation of the WPA still is carrying on an inquiry, he said.

In its investigation, which lasted a month, the federal grand jury reported use of threats and intimidation of WPA employés for political purposes, enforced political contributions, enforced membership in outright political clubs under the guise of social clubs, and a diversion to personal uses of WPA funds, labor, and materials.

The jury declared that the extent to which the aims of the WPA program have been defeated through selfish aims and political ambitions of individuals entrusted with its administration has been amazing.

Among others named in the graft indictment were Police Chief John Wootton of Las Vegas, Fred G. Healy, ousted state WPA administrator, and dozens of other state and federal employés.

Federal Judge Colin Neblett, who received the indictments, has ordered the United States marshal to arrest all the defendants for arraignment next Tuesday.

WHITE COLLAR UNION HEARS 4 CANDIDATES

Legislative problems were discussed last night at a meeting in the Midland hotel, 172 West Adams street, sponsored by the White Collar Industrial Union Council of Chicago and Labor's Nonpartisan league of Cook county and Illinois. Among the speakers were Representative Adolph J. Sabath, Joseph W. Elward, Democratic candidate for representative in the 10th congressional district; Robert I. Randolph, Republican nominee for representative in the 6th district, and Bernard M. Eckstein, Republican candidate for state senator in the 5th district.

DISMISSED WPA WORKER KNIFES HIS BOSS; SEIZED

William Maher, assistant superintendent of a WPA street repair project, was the victim of a murderous knife attack by a colored man he had just dismissed last night. Maher was rescued by other employés after his assailant had stabbed him three times in the neck, one thrust barely missing the jugular vein.

The attack was made by James Starks, 37 years old, of 941 Hudson avenue. Maher said Starks was an agitator who refused to work and tried to get others of the 240 employés to stop work on the street repair project at Pioneer avenue and Grace street. When Maher dismissed him, Starks lunged at him with a knife which had a blade 3½ inches long.

Starks, a giant, was slowly overcoming Maher when Jack Mostozky of 3209 Hirsch street, one of the smallest men on the project, arrived and knocked the colored man down. Other workmen joined in the fight and handed Starks over to Sergt. Barney Dabbert and a squad from the Jefferson Park police station.

CHARGES M'NUTT MACHINE USING SCHOOLS AS PAWN

Norman Lasher, Republican candidate for Indiana state superintendent of public instruction, yesterday assailed the McNutt-Townsend Democratic machine for political meddling in the state's educational system. Lasher spoke before the Women's Republican club in Gary.

"The present Indiana state board of education," he said, "is a political pawn operating under a law calculated to give politicians control over school contracts. The politicians have introduced prejudicial and defective textbooks into the schools. The taxpayers of Indiana are paying $300,000 a year more than they should for textbooks."

Lasher referred to one history text "The Development of America," which is used in the schools and which has been condemned by the Daughters of the Union Civil War Veterans of Richmond, Ind. The book, he said, highly praises the confederate leaders and ridicules the union cause. Lasher is superintendent of the school board at Seymour, Ind.

Barringer said that the La Follette committee lated subpenaed the chief of police, Robert Travis, and also one of the leading agitators and other strikers. He said the police chief was never called to the stand by the La Follette committee and no one else on the city's side was subpenaed.

"Reports of Travis and his men were published all over the country," he said. "That was the type of publicity the La Follette committee issued."

Sound Trucks Used.

Barringer recounted repeated attempts made to reach Murphy for state assistance when the local situation at Flint got out of hand. Sound trucks were used by the agitators in inciting the crowds, he said. Roy and Victor Reuther, described as revolutionary Socialists, took the lead in stirring the strikers, he said.

When a conference was finally arranged with Murphy the governor conferred with the Reuthers for fully half an hour before he saw the city officials of Flint, Barringer declared. He said that the governor still refused to intervene.

Judge Paul V. Gadola of the Circuit court at Flint, who issued an injunction against the sitdown strikers at two Fisher body plants, said the order was never executed by Sherif Thomas Walcott, because of orders from the governor. He said that lawyers for the strikers during the injunction hearing kept in constant touch with Murphy and "once called some one in Washington, but I don't know who it was."

Judge Gadola said civil authority had completely broken down and that National Guardsmen, which had finally been dispatched to Flint by Murphy and were awaiting orders, were in the city before the writ was issued.

Circuit Judge Testifies.

"Personally, I believe that if the order had been issued to carry out the writ of the court, as the National Guard officers thought they were to do, they [the strikers] would have marched out," the judge said.

"The sherif, I believe, would have attempted to execute the writ except that he was prevented from doing so by the chief executive of the state."

Judge Gadola said that he received threats for weeks after he had issued the injunction and that they were all from well known communist leaders or organizations. A constant guard was maintained for himself and his home, the judge said. Previously, he related that attorneys for the strikers had invaded his courtroom at Flint with six bodyguards.

Police Captain Edwin Hughes of Flint testified that "the communist party attempted to dominate" a sitdown strike in that city in 1937. He asserted that a man he knows as a communist used a sound truck to incite rioting.

Earlier in the day, Clyde Morrow, who formerly was a communist and ran for state senator on the communist ticket in Michigan in 1934, testified that the Wagner national labor relations act and the rulings of the NLRB protect communists.

"Under the Wagner act," he said, "employers cannot fire a man for being a revolutionary. The communists join labor unions and when they are fired they always say it is because they were members of the union. In other days employers could and would fire known communists because they didn't want them in their plants.

"Homer Martin, president of the United Auto Workers [a C. I. O. affiliate], and his aids, in order to get the automobile workers organized, went out and hired known communist organizers," Morrow continued.

"He planned to use them only several months and then get rid of them. Now it appears that they will get rid of Martin. When they were discharged by Martin, the red locals hired them as financial secretaries and they retained their union standing."

Ousted Men Reinstated.

He expressed the opinion that Martin sincerely tried to rid his union of communists. It was recalled that he had dismissed four officers of the union, only to have them reinstated by John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O.

Martin was to have appeared before the committee today in response to a subpena. However, Dies said that Martin's attorney had telephoned him last night from Detroit saying that Martin was ill and requested a postponement in his appearance until next week. Dies agreed.

HORNER DOES HIS BIT TO CEMENT PARTY HARMONY

8,000 Pay Rollers Cheer His Victory Prediction.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Gov. Horner did his share last night toward Democratic harmony.

"My position is fixed and unchangeable," he told party workers. "I am for every man and woman on the Democratic ticket. And the people of the state see it as I do."

This pledge and prediction of victory on Nov. 8 was given in Dexter pavilion at the stockyards, where 8,000 pay rollers and precinct captains from the south side wards had gathered.

Praises Party's Ticket.

"I have lived a long time, and I never knew a better ticket," the governor told them, waving toward the platform full of candidates seated behind him.

Spotlighted on the program were the two top men on the state ticket which the governor, with the aid of State's Attorney Courtney, nominated last April. They were Scott W. Lucas, candidate for the senate, and Louie E. Lewis, nominee for state treasurer.

Lewis, present speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, spoke briefly, contenting himself with the prediction that the ticket would carry downstate by 200,000 votes.

Lauds Downstate Machine.

Lucas enlarged upon this theme, asserting that downstate Democrats have the greatest organization in the party's history. He insisted that a million Republicans have left their party to join the Democrats. He called upon the workers to keep Illinois in the Democratic column on election day.

"Illinois is the most important state in the Mississippi valley," he said. "What Illinois does in 1938 will have a bearing on what the nation does in 1940."

The senatorial nominee got the biggest hand of the evening when he referred to Mayor Kelly's pledge of support, given Thursday night to north side organization members in the Broadway armory.

The mayor was not present last night, but he is expected to attend west side meetings Monday and Tuesday. The govern also is booked for those affairs.

Neither State's Attorney Courtney nor County Judge Jarecki were at the rally, nor were they present on the north side Thursday night.

Stiles Quips About Alliance.

While the Democrats were clapping one another on the back at the stockyards, A. K. Stiles, chairman of the Republican state central committee, lambasted what he called the "Arvey-Horner" political alliance.

The reference was to the fact that Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th] has taken over direction of the county campaign, having been designated as vice chairman of the county central committee at the request of P. A. Nash, chairman. Nash's health kept him from presiding, he declared.

Stiles also brought Nash into the picture.

"Pat Nash, they tell me," he said, "has taken a furlough until after Nov. 8, thus avoiding having the inevitable Democratic defeat charged up to him.

"To fill in as czar of the pay rollers, he appointed Horner's Jake Arvey, quite a boss in his own small way in the 24th ward.

Accepts "Penthouse Pirates'" Aid.

"Scott Lucas is now seeking and has accepted aid from the Chicago Democratic organization. During the sham battle which the Democrats staged last April, Michael L. Igoe, his opponent, asked Lucas, who had been condemning the Nash-Kelly organization, if he would accept support of the organization in the event of his nomination.

"Candidate Lucas, astride his white charger, loftily replied that he wished none of this support. But now he knocks upon their door, pleading for the help of this group whom he had characterized as the 'Penthouse Pirates' during the primary."

JARECKI DELAYS TRIAL OF 5 FOR ELECTION FRAUD

Trial of vote fraud charges against three women and two men, the entire election board of the 35th precinct of the 24th ward, wr put over until Monday by County Judge Jarecki yesterday. The delay was asked by the defendants so that they could retain counsel to assist Attorney Bernard B. Jacobson.

Attorney Michael Ahern asked a three weeks' continuance so he could enter the case in behalf of the accused officials. He said Jacobson, who was admitted to the bar only last December, needed help against the state's experienced counsel, Assistant State's Attorneys Gordon Nash, John Phillips, and John F. Cashen Jr. Judge Jarecki refused, saying the case should be tried before the election on Nov. 8.

The defendants are Minnie Hirsch, Democratic judge; Lillian Rothstein and Henry Levin, Republican judges; Joseph Rosenfeld, Democratic clerk, and Bertha Schallman, Republican clerk. Ten officials of two other precincts will be tried as soon as this case is completed.

ROB HOME OF SILVER AND WATCH.

The Jefferson Park police were searching yesterday for burglars who invaded the home of Frank Beshinger at 7231 Ibsen street Thursday night and took a watch and silver valued at $120.

Yes, the men retired to smoke but the women remained and . . . talked over the flowers. "They are the most exquisite things I've ever seen," said Judy. "Where did you get them?" We needn't tell you Sally's answer.

HOTEL RIPS DOWN G.O.P. POSTERS AT HEADQUARTERS

Pay $500 for Suite; Can't Put Slogan in Windows.

Republicans encountered new difficulties with campaign signs in their own headquarters yesterday. The management of the La Salle hotel removed posters reading "Smash Nash-Kelly Boss Rule" from third floor windows of the hotel, including those in rooms occupied by Edward F. Moore, county chairman.

Angry party workers, finding their slogan ripped away, promptly replaced the posters in the six rooms.

Williard Curtis, assistant manager of the hotel, admitted that he had ordered his staf to remove the signs.

Quotes Hotel Policy.

"It is against our policy," he said, "to permit any signs to be displayed in our windows which might be offensive to any one. We told Mr. Moore on Thursday that they would have to come down. When they were not removed, we took them down."

Since the signs were in the windows again at the moment Curtis was talking, he was asked what, if anything, he proposed to do about them?

"That remains to be seen," he said. "First I will have another talk with Mr. Moore."

He did talk with the chairman, this time accompanied by James L. Smith, the manager.

"Ed, those signs will have to come down," Smith told Moore.

Moore complied.

Curtis insisted that the hotel's action was due only to its policy and was not caused by any outside pressure.

"We had to do the same thing with some Republican signs two years ago," he declared.

Signs Up for Two Weeks.

Moore told newspaper men that the signs had been in the windows for two weeks, but that he had heard nothing from the hotel until Thursday.

"I asked Curtis why, since we were paying our rent of about $500 per month, they were insisting on us removing our campaign literature," Moore said. "All he told me was that it was against the policy of the hotel. I told him then I wouldn't take them down, but later I did."

This climaxed the troubles the Republicans already have had at the hands of the bill posters' union. Otto Kreuger, the union's business agent, refused to post the "Smash Nash-Kelly Boss Rule" sign two weeks ago within the Chicago city limits, so the G. O. P. leaders have been placing them in home and store windows.

VOLIVA INDORSES LUCAS CANDIDACY FOR U. S. SENATE

DEMAND OUSTER OF MINNESOTA'S ATTY. GENERAL

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Removal of Attorney General William S. Ervin and State Securities Commissioner S. Paul Skahen was demanded in a resolution adopted at a meeting of creditors of the defunct S. W. Dr. William S. Naegeli, who called the meeting, said that three times in the last two years the question of the legality of Gongoll trading contracts had been raised and that each time they had been ruled illegal, but that nothing had been done to halt sales or to prosecute Gongoll or any of his associates.

LA GUARDIA HITS LEHMAN AS LAX NEW DEAL ALLY

Demands Pledge as Price of Support.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia of New York City threw a sensation into the New York state political campaign today by condemning Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for not giving a blanket indorsement of the New Deal in his campaign speeches.

Lehman, opposed for reëlection by Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee, has remained silent on national issues thus far. He was summoned to President Roosevelt's home last Tuesday, but after a lengthy interview refused to reveal whether he would praise the national administration in his speeches. He broke with the President on the latter's proposal to pack the Supreme court.

Withholds Support.

The mayor declared he would not support Lehman in the election if he doesn't come out for the New Deal. La Guardia has a powerful following in New York City and this statement created dismay in the Democratic ranks.

"Lehman should have answered the question you boys put to him," La Guardia told reporters, referring to Lehman's evasion of the query concerning his views of the administration.

"There's no law against answering questions. If the governor continues his silence on national issues, I'll be busy running the city at election time, instead of helping him. I'll support only those candidates who can be depended upon to support the administration. Support of the national administration should be a factor in campaigns throughout the country.

Tells of U. S. Cash.

"Lehman can remember back to the time when states and cities got no help from the federal government. I know I used to go to Washington on my knees begging for help and getting nowhere until this administration came along.

"We should have complete coördination between the federal and local governments. That transcends everything else."

With La Guardia obviously voicing the President's own sentiments, the incident was viewed as another illustration of Mr. Roosevelt's bitterness toward those who differed with him on the Supreme court packing proposal.

The attempted purge of the senate was based chiefly on this issue. It was indicated that Lehman may himself be a purge victim if he doesn't yield under pressure and utter a New Deal eulogy before Nov. 8.

May Be Seeking Apology.

In the case of Lehman the President is apparently insisting upon a broad indorsement of all the administration's objectives as a tacit apology from the New York governor for his objection to the court proposal. Lehman voiced his opposition in a letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York urging him to vote against the court plan.

The controversy between Mr. Roosevelt and Lehman is the more remarkable because of the intimate relations which previously existed between the two men, the President having been fond of referring to Lehman as his "good, right arm." So far as is known, their political philosophies are identical except in the one instance of the attempt to tamper with the Supreme court.

O'Connor Charges Vote Coercion.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Representative John J. O'Connor, "purged" Democrat, running for reelection as a Republican nominee, tonight charged that relief investigators under Mayor F. H. La Guardia, radical pro-Roosevelt Republican, coerced tenement dwellers in the primary.

Defeated in the Democratic primary by James H. Fay, "100 per cent" New Dealer, O'Connor said his district was a ripe field for sowing purge seeds.

As La Guardia's agents delivered relief checks, O'Connor charged, they "told those poor unfortunate people, 'This will be the last check you get if O'Connor is renominated.' O, it's true—there were hundreds of cases! I can prove it." He added that he saw WPA workers marched to the polls by the hundreds on primary day carrying slips of paper telling them how to vote.

When not bitterly assailing the New Deal O'Connor was jocular about his peculiar political position. A veteran Democrat and Tammany Hall man, he got a greater ovation than any of the regular Republican candidates.

BULKLEY BREAKS FUND COLLECTION LAW, TAFT SAYS

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Charges of violation of the corrupt practices act were made against Senator Robert J. Bulkley [D., Ohio] tonight by Robert A. Taft, son of the late President and Republican candidate for senator.

"There can be little doubt that an organized solicitation of federal employés was undertaken by the senator [Bulkley]," Taft charged. "This is in direct violation of the corrupt practices act."

Bulkley defended himself as he and Taft spoke from the same platform in a campaign debate. "There is nothing new about that," Bulkley said. "Congressmen and senators for years have received contributions from federal employés. I know of no more legitimate source of campaign funds than from those men who have been rewarded for their party loyalty."

Bulkley shook his fist at the unruly, booing, cheering crowd of 3,000 persons and shouted for "some respect." Taft stood with hands in pockets and smiled.

Merchant Makes Girls Feel at Home; Loses 2 Fur Coats

John Hanus told two young women to make themselves at home when they came into his fur store at 4916 Diversey avenue yesterday and said they wanted to wait for their mother. They did—in two fur coats worth $150 each which they wore out when he stepped into the back room.

LYONS PROPOSES PROTECTIVE TARIF TO RESTORE JOBS

Calls Republican Policy Plain Horse Sense.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, declared here tonight that the Republican high tarif policy is just plain American horse sense. He advocated tarifs as a remedy for the importation of more than three billion dollars worth of manufactured and agricultural products in 1937.

A protective tarif is point No. 2 in Lyons' program to bring back jobs in private industry. Point No 1 is to halt the meddling of New Deal burocrats in business and industry. Point No. 3 is to lift the burden of added taxation from employers and workers alike.

Assails Trade Pacts.

Lyons evoked cheers as he assailed the New Deal reciprocal trade agreements. His attack on New Deal inconsistencies brought derisive laughs from a capacity audience of 3,000.

"Instead of 8 million unemployed as in 1932, there are 13 million unemployed in 1938," Lyons said. "And listen to this. Last year alone, $3,330,000,000 worth of goods from foreign factories and farms poured into the United States. Was any of this money spent in the cities and villages of Illinois? Indeed not. It went to thirty foreign countries to enable them to build up their death dealing armaments.

"Secretary Hull said the trade treaties would bring peace. Have they? Look at Spain. Look at China. Look at Europe, looming like a tornado of destruction."

Pledges Protective Effort.

Lyons declared that last year's imports, if made in America, would have given full time jobs to 3 million Americans at $1,100 a year. This would have provided a living for 12 million, including their families, he said.

"When I am your United States senator," Lyons declared, "I will vote for every bill, for every resolution that will keep out of this country the foreign goods that rob the American worker of his job and the American farmer of his fair price.

"You might call it high tarif. I call it plain ordinary everyday American horse sense. While most of Illinois' fifty-seven shoe factories are idle there were 12,000,000 pairs of shoes imported into this country. Most of the shoes were made in Czechoslovakia and the leather came from Russia.

"Let me tell you how the New Deal allows shoes to be brought in at virtually no tarif. The shoes come over in one boat, the heels come over in another boat, then in New York girls in sweat shops attach the heels and the shoes are made in America.

"In 1937, five times as many cattle were imported under the New Deal as under the Republican administration in 1932. Eleven times as much butter, fifteen times as many pounds of pork products and 255 times as many bushels of corn. Sixty million Christmas tree bulbs came in from Japan, produced by coolie labor at one-seventh the price at which American workers can produce them. Most of the American flags now come from Japan."

Foresees G. O. P. Victory.

While corn, pork, and butter were flooding the country, Lyons asserted, the New Deal was telling the Illinois farmer to grow less corn and was destroying pigs.

"I don't know what you think but I'll tell you what I think," he said. "There must be an awful pack of jackasses in Washington.

"Local Republican leaders here, as at East St. Louis last night, reported that most of the people are sick of the New Deal. Even WPA workers and relief recipients are eager for a change in administration, they said. There are 600 Democratic payrollers here, but once the people start moving nothing on earth can stop them. A Republican said at East St. Louis, 'That's the way it is now. Things look so good now we party workers are afraid to believe it.'"

Accompanying Lyons is George E. Lambur Jr., nominee for clerk of the Illinois Supreme court. Lambur drew applause when he said: "The question we are asked everywhere downstate is 'What is Cook county going to do?' Well, the answer is simple. Our straw polls show that we are going to win Cook county. The election of the state ticket is assured."

BEG YOUR PARDON!

A story in THE TRIBUNE last Wednesday told of charges against Gov. George H. Earle and Senator Joseph F. Guffey in an investigation of alleged corruption and graft in Pennsylvania's Democratic machine.

The name of Pennsylvania's New Deal senator appeared correctly as Guffey throughout the story, but it was printed erroneously as "Duffey" in the headline.

Senator F. Ryan Duffy [not "Duffey"] asks for a correction apparently in the belief that readers might think the charges referred to Wisconsin's New Deal senator instead of Pennsylvania's New Deal senator.

Senator Duffy was in no way involved in the Pennsylvania charges and the error was due to a misprint which THE TRIBUNE regrets.

SEIZE BROOKLYN OFFICER IN THEFT OF POLICE BOOKS

Lieutenant, Held on High Bail, Denies Guilt.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Police Lieutenant Cuthbert J. Behan was arrested today and charged with the theft of the records of 7,200 arrests. The records were found missing from Brooklyn police headquarters Tuesday. Behan is one of three lieutenants recently transferred from the Bergen street precinct after an inquiry into bail bond irregularities.

Cuthbert J. Behan. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Behan was the first officer of his rank ever to appear in the police lineup. In the face of a heated criticism by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, he denied his guilt.

Jailed to Await Hearing.

Afterward Behan was finger printed, photographed, and arraigned before Magistrate Matthew J. Troy in Felony court. His bail was set at $25,000, which he was unable to provide. He then was placed in jail to await a hearing next Friday on grand larceny charges.

Valentine revealed that a patrolman with thirty-one years' service—later identified as Edward J. Lawlor—had pleaded with Behan for ten minutes last Saturday, urging him not to take the records and bring the department into ill repute.

Lawlor later signed the complaint on which Behan was arraigned. The complaint was accompanied by an affidavit signed by Acting Deputy Chief Inspector John J. De Martino, setting forth that Lawlor had seen Behan enter the record room and walk out with the records.

Cover-up Apparent.

Although Valentine praised the police who helped solve the theft, it was apparent that from last Saturday, when the theft occurred, until last night, those who had knowledge of it kept it to themselves.

The immediate effect of Behan's arrest and the quick solution of the theft of the records was to speed up the work of John Harlan Amen, appointed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman to supersede District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan in a far-reaching inquiry into all phases of Brooklyn crime and prosecution.

Twice before Gov. Lehman has superseded Geoghan, and rumors of corruption in high places have been circulated for a long time in Brooklyn. The borough is exceeded in population only by Cook county, Illinois, which embraces the city of Chicago.

William B. Herlands, commissioner of investigation, who worked closely with Valentine in the police inquiry, was ready to turn over to Amen two completed trial briefs, one of which will involve two members of Geoghan's staf and the other a complete record of the Behan case and the bail bond irregularities that caused Behan to wish to destroy the records showing these irregularities.

Both are to be placed in solitary confinement on the anniversary of their crime each year.

MICHIGAN MEN CHEER DEWEY AT ALUMNI DINNER

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for governor, entered a hotel ballroom where 500 fellow University of Michigan alumni were dining tonight.

Three cheer leaders wearing white sweaters emblazoned with big "M's" jumped up. "Tom, Tom, Tom—fight, fight, fight," yelled the crowd in good old campus style.

A university band, led by Alumnus-Orchestra Leader George Olsen, played traditional Michigan battle songs and the alumni sang them lustily.

"This is the first thrill I've had in a long time," said District Attorney Dewey, out of Michigan only fifteen years. "I haven't heard 'yea, fight,' in a long time, but I'll fight so long as my health holds out."

PRESIDENT AGAIN TO TRY TO PASS A DICTATOR BILL

Cites Reorganization of Judiciary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Dictatorial powers to reorganize the government structure will again be sought by President Roosevelt of the next congress, he declared in a pugnacious mood today.

The judicial branch of the government was given authority by congress to simplify court procedure, Mr. Roosevelt told correspondents at a press conference in his summer home here. The reforms suggested by a committee of judges were given congressional approval. Why, argued the President, should the executive branch not be given the same power with congress retaining the right to veto any change it did not favor?

Ignores Election Probabilities.

The President brushed aside the fact that the next congress, according to all polls, will have a reduced Democratic majority. He predicted approval of the dictatorship bill he will present, although it will be practically the same measure which was crushingly defeated in the house despite the preponderant Democratic majority.

Mr. Roosevelt repeated his theory that government reforms should not be worked out by congress. Those responsible for administration should initiate the reforms, he said. Then congress can approve or veto them.

Became Effective Oct. 1.

The simplification of judicial procedure referred to by the President was the result of a study made by a committee of federal judges set up by congress. The act provided that the new rules worked out should become effective Oct. 1 in the absence of a veto by congress. Congress did not disapprove any of the new standards.

If congress had tried to do the job itself, nothing probably would ever have been done, Mr. Roosevelt remarked.

Turning to a discussion of the wages and hourt act, the President said he was gratified at the response of industry to the new law.

"I have had reports from Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews that are very gratifying," he declared, "in that there is a general disposition to comply with the law. The response has been such that the administrator has some hope that many employers engaged in intra-state commerce [the act applies only to industries engaged in inter-state commerce] may voluntarily accept the standard being set up for inter-state commerce."

The above direct quote from Mr. Roosevelt was authorized after a press association reported that Administrator Andrews was expressing a conflicting opinion in Washington. Somewhat embarrassed, White House attachés said the wires somehow must have got crossed. The President's statement is the authorized expression of the administration, it was stressed.

The Washington report quoted Andrews as saying that some employers were shutting down their plants in an effort to discredit the law and intimidate its administrator.

Andrews pointed out the heavy penalties in the law for violation of its provisions and announced that the statute would be enforced uniformly and compellingly. He said some employers were claiming preposterous exemptions.

Tells of Factory Shutdowns.

Some shutdowns which employers have attributed to the statute have actually resulted from the completion of seasonal operations, the administrator said, and in some instances plants have been run at capacity for weeks to build up inventories "preparatory to a shutdown which would be blamed on the fair labor standards act."

The new law, providing in general for a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour and a maximum work week of 44 hours in interstate commerce, goes into effect Monday.

The President expressed pleasure at the improvement of conditions in the automobile industry. Such increases in private employment help to keep down WPA spending, he remarked.

As an evidence that the nation is better off the President cited figures just submitted to him by Undersecretary of the Interior Harry Slattery, showing the increase of tourist travel in the national parks. In 1934 6,337,000 persons visited the parks; in 1935, 7,676,000; in 1936, 11,989,000; in 1937, 15,133,000, and with the full returns not yet in for 1938 the figure is 16,233,000.

SIKORA FOUND NOT GUILTY OF SLAYING RIVAL

Jury Deliberates for Only Two Hours.

Mother-in-law Is Happy.

"Nuts!" she screamed, throwing her arms around the neck of smiling little Defense Attorney W. W. Smith. "I'm so happy I don't know what to say. I'm going to celebrate!"

Albert, Sikora's elder brother, who works as motorman for the elevated lines, where Sikora is dispatcher's clerk, tried to conceal his tears, but in vain.

"It's justice," he said. "Justice."

Sikora's thin, gray father, John, who had been sitting beside the mother-in-law, stood very erect.

"I don't know what to say," he began, his voice breaking. "It hurts here," hitting his chest in the direction of his heart. "I am so happy. I was so sure it would come out like this, but . . . " his voice drifted into silence.

Prosecutor Tells Legal Remedy.

Prosecutor Leslie Curtis, who had sought the death penalty with the argument, "If you wife leaves you, the legal remedy is divorce, gentlemen!" was dour. "No comment," he said as he turned and swiftly left the courtroom.

Even after court bailifs turned out the lights the crowd refused to disperse. Learning that Sikora had gone back to the nearby county jail to retrieve his personal belongings, they rushed over there.

Sikora, upstairs, was making his final statement. His face flushed, his voice sincere, he admitted he hopes to regain his former $150 a month job.

Asked about a reconciliation with his wife, he replied, slowly, "I don't know about that. I just wouldn't want to say anything right now."

The case was given to the jury at 7:32 p. m. Judge Fardy outlined four possible verdicts, the manslaughter and insanity verdicts having been ruled out by mutual consent of counsel. The four possibilities were death, life imprisonment, a minimum sentence of 14 years, or not guilty.

Women Say Verdict Is "Swell."

The verdict of "not guilty" appeared to meet the hearty approval of many Chicagoans, most of them women, who telephoned THE TRIBUNE office last night. Women callers exclaimed: "Swell." The men who called were less boisterous in their comments.

Although insanity was ruled out as a possible verdict, Judge Fardy instructed the jury that in their deliberations they might consider the mental condition of Sikora at the time of the slaying. Defense Attorney Smith, in his closing argument, also emphasized this point, asserting that his client had suffered a mental breakdown.

The defense also employed an alienist, Dr. Ralph Hamill, to bolster its contention that Sikora was mentally ill.

"Can't Remember" Shooting.

Sikora appeared jaunty and dogmatic at the closing session of his brief trial. He disappointed the crowded courtroom, avidly awaiting details of the slaying, by a deliberate, slow "I don't remember what happened." Through a long cross-examination by Prosecutor Curtis, he tenaciously replied "I don't know" to nearly every question.

He managed to recall minute details of every point up to the killing. He even remembered that he drank day old coffee at 7 o'clock that morning. But after he sighted Solomon, his mind became a blank.

"I don't remember anything that happened after that," Sikora repeated again and again, his square jaw outthrust, his sallow face set in obstinate lines.

Still Loves His Wife.

When asked if he were not still jealous of his wife, he replied, "I love her." His cross-examination was interrupted at this point so Dr. Hamill might be put on the stand. Defense Attorney Smith then spent ninety-three minutes reading a forty-nine page hypothetical question, paralleling Sikora's predicament.

Asked if he had any opinion as to whether the hypothetical person were mentally sick, Dr. Hamill replied, "I have. That he was mentally sick."

"Doctor," Smith asked, "can you tell us what the irritating factor was in this case?"

"The irritating factor," Dr. Hamill said, "as I can think of it, would be the loss that the man felt he had sustained and his thinking about that loss and what his part in it was; namely, some sense of guilt in himself."

Solomon an "Irritating Factor."

"Would you include the presence of Edward Solomon as part of that irritating factor?"

"Certainly," he replied.

"It would have a tendency to make him recover."

Curtis, on cross-examination, asked why, if Sikora were mentally sick, and presumably unable to distinguish right from wrong, he gave himself up to a policeman after the shooting.

"He could distinguish that he was going to get into trouble," Dr. Hamill replied calmly. "Perhaps he felt he had done right from his point of view."

After the defense rested, Prosecutor Curtis, in rebuttal, attempted to show that Sikora was not mentally sick when he shot Solomon. He called Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin to the stand. Austin talked with Sikora two days before the killing, when he came to the state's attorney's office for help in persuading his wife to return to him.

Austin testified that Sikora conversed coherently.

"Have you any opinion as to his mental state?" asked Curtis.

Defense Attorney Smith objected and the question was stricken.

Lieut. Michael J. Ahern of the Summerdale police then testified that Sikora talked coherently when brought into the station after the shooting.

Assails Mother-in-Law.

Prosecutor Curtis began his argument to the jury by reviewing the evidence. Then he assailed Sikora's mother-in-law for her part in the couple's affairs after the separation.

"Everything to aggravate the situation was done," he told the jury. "You yourselves would resent someone barging into your home with two policemen, as Sikora came into his wife's home at the time of the separation.

"Mrs. Sikora was told that she was ill and two physicians have told you what was wrong with her. Despite insinuations of the defense, there has been not one scintilla of proof of anything else."

Curtis said Sikora's actions the night before the shooting and at the time he killed Solomon were those of a sane man.

"The corner newsboy's testimony," Curtis recalled, "was that Sikora fired repeatedly, continuing after Solomon slumped to the sidewalk. He had decided to take the law into his own hands.

"The defense may contend he was temporarily insane; that gentlemen, is the crutch upon which a weak defense leans. Why should it be contended that men who commit criminal acts of violence are always insane before the premeditated act, and sane immediately afterward?"

Jaunty at Morning Session.

Sikora resumed the stand jauntily at the opening of the morning session. Defense Attorney Smith quickly led him to the morning of Aug. 22, the morning of the murder.

The night before, he testified, his words curt and clear, he slept "very little." He arose about 7 a. m., drank some coffee "from the day before," went down to his garage and got out his car.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—I thought I would talk to Solomon again. I drove back up in the vicinity of his home.

Q.—How long had you had that gun in your car? A.—O, a matter of several days.

Q.—Where was it in the car? A.—On the floor under the seat, next to me.

Car Has Sliding Seat.

The car, he explained, was a coupe, with a sliding seat.

Q.—You drove to Clark and Winnemac? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Was the pistol wrapped up? A.—No, it was in the holster.

Q.—Did you see Solomon that morning? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Well, after you saw Solomon, what is the next thing that happened that you recall?

Sikora paused dramatically. He hung his head. Then he replied, "I don't remember what happened."

"Do you remember telling anybody to call the police?" Smith asked.

"No, I don't remember that," Sikora said distinctly, rolling out each word.

Q.—Do you recall talking to the police? A.—Yes, I remember that.

Q.—Was there some talk about the shooting of Solomon? A.—[Blinking his wide brown eyes.]—Yes, there was.

Sikora previously had testified that he had been "feeling sick, very sick" for a week, that he had been subject to spells of blindness and a constant headache "like a vise."

COURT UPHOLDS JAIL TERM FOR GYPSIES' QUEEN

You can't go around wrapping eggs in dollar bills, then substituting a lot of paper for the money. The Illinois Supreme court so ruled yesterday in affirming a jail sentence imposed last March on Mrs. Mary Bimbo, queen of the gypsies, for trying such a stunt on Stanley Kozak, a Kenosha, Wis., farmer.

Kozak's story was that Mrs. Bimbo promised to make him wealthy. First, he said, she asked him for $615. Then she tucked this over a fresh egg and wrapped both egg and money in a handkerchief. She told him to wear the bundle around his neck. He did so for five days. Then, of course, he found that instead of the $615 he had blank sheets of paper. For this, Mary was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Dwight women's reformatory.

ASSASSINS SLAY BREWERY BOSS OF CAPONE GANG

Police Blame Labor Strife for Shooting.

Capone was known as Al Brown. His ability as a business man soon won him the superintendency of Capone's many breweries, which annually turned out an estimated $20,000,000 worth of beer at prohibition prices.

Except for an alleged attempt to bribe two special dry agents and one or two attempts to remove valuable brewing equipment from Capone breweries, Delaney never figured in gangland sensationalism. He was a business man behind the Capone scene.

He was one of the seventy-eight persons indicted with Capone in the government's prohibition conspiracy case against the booze boss. The end of prohibition ended that case. However, a nominal fine of $25 was levied in federal court against Delaney and other Capone men as an official conclusion to the government investigation that had cost $100,000.

After repeal Delaney tried to branch into the labor field. He was indicted for trying to control the South Water Market Scavengers' union through the Commission Wagon Drivers' union. He failed and the case failed. Recently, according to Lieut. John McCarthy of the Stanton avenue station, Delaney tried to break into a teamsters' union.

When Cornelius Asimont's filling station at 2057 Warren boulevard was held up Tuesday night, Asimont toured the neighborhood seeking the robber. With him was Policeman Frank Priller. They found the bandit in Damen avenue near Madison street. After a running gun battle, he got away.

Asimont and George Bogue, 15 years old, his errand boy, identified the robber through pictures at the bureau of identification. Yesterday he was seized in his home at 1026 Hoyne avenue. He is Sam Errera, 20 years old, who was released from the Bridewell in June after serving six months for auto theft.

2 TOAST A RIVAL'S HEALTH; NOW ASK $70,000 FOR OWN

Claim Host Beat Them at Tavern Opening.

The invitations were engraved. One went to Miss Kay Johnstone, "26" girl in a cocktail lounge at 4084 Broadway. One went to Joseph De Clercq, barkeep at 4228 Broadway.

He told her he was invited. She told him she was too. They arranged to meet to wish their new competitor well at the grand opening of his tavern at 4060 Broadway.

And so when both had finished their work, they hurried to the opening the night of Aug. 15, according to the suits for $35,000 each that they filed yesterday against their host, William J. Cook.

Toast Him in Free Drinks.

They toasted Cook in the first round of drinks that the invitations said would be on the house. But they began to wish they hadn't come when he suggested that the time had now come for them to buy a round of drinks for all his guests.

Puzzled, they looked at their invitations again. Sure enough, they said the drinks would be on the house. Miss Johnstone and De Clercq showed them to Cook and asked if they had read aright.

The host didn't say yes and he didn't say no, as the story was told in the suit, drawn by Attorney Irving D. Levin.

He just began hitting them both over the head with a blackjack, if the suit has it right.

Gas Pipe Replaces Blackjack.

Miss Johnstone and De Clercq fell, but not fast enough. As they were falling, if you want to believe the suit, Cook seized a gas pipe and beat them both about the legs.

Both were taken to a hospital.

They brought the suit under the newly revised dram shop law. Defendants with Cook are the owner of the building, the Security Life Insurance company, and Ald. John A. Massen [48th], who is trustee.

Miss Johnstone is 26 years old. She lives at 948 Cuyler avenue. De Clercq, who is 40, lives at 4040 Broadway.

VIENNA CARDINAL PLAYS WITH FIRE! GERMANY WARNS

Insists Church Must Stay Out of Politics.

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels asserted tonight that Nazi Germany, strengthened by territorial gains, would become one of the world's strongest military powers within five years.

Paul Joseph Goebbels.

Goebbels, in a long discourse on Nazi accomplishments, pointed to the remilitarization of the Rhineland and acquisition of Austria and the Sudetenland as proof that Germany would rise to military power.

He took occasion to refer to the church tension in Vienna, which broke into open disorder early this month, and warned Cardinal Theodore Innitzer [archbishop of Vienna] that he was "playing with fire."

Calls Cardinal "Impudent."

Speaking at a Nazi demonstration here, Goebbels said:

"At a time when the German army was marching into the Sudetenland, it was impudence that Cardinal Innitzer started a political counter-demonstration, that he held a sermon in the cathedral and that the Catholic sheep called out on cathedral square: 'Christ is our fuehrer—Innitzer command—we follow.'

"That is frivolous playing with fire. And when on another day national Socialistic Vienna gave its answer and a few windows were smashed [referring to the riot Oct. 8], an appeal was made to the national Socialist movement.

"If a fight with the national Socialist state is wanted, then step forward. We haven't done the church any harm—and never had intention to do so.

"What the cardinals say inside their churches is their own affair. Politics and the street, however, belong to us, for we cleansed them of bolshevism.

"For this purpose we created our movement as a political movement of our people."

Prepare to Ease Restrictions.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Germany is preparing to release her people and economic life from restrictions which were necessary early in the Hitler régime, Rudolf Brinkmann, secretary of state in the economic ministry, said today.

Brinkmann told a banking and insurance employés convention that a considerable sacrifice of personal liberties was involved in achieving the goal of a "strong, free state."

Now Germany "also wants a state rich in population, rich in goods and in jobs, but also rich in the enjoyment of life," he said. "We must now prepare ourselves against the time when barriers will fall which were erected to limit economic freedom of movement."

Typhoon Sweeps Tokio; 226 Die, 590 Hurt; Trafic Halted

TOKIO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—An unseasonable typhoon sweeping in from the sea today killed at least 226 persons, injured more than 590, and left 35,000 homeless. About 230 persons were missing. Waters, lashed by the wind, swept away thousands of dwellings in the Tokio-Yokohama district and elsewhere. Trafic and communications were interrupted in Tokio. The storm struck first in the Kagoshima district of Kyushu, southwesternmost main island, and then on Honshu, the mainland.

Royal Propagandist

EXILED FRENCH COUNT URGES RETURN OF KING

Makes Plea on Illegal Flight to Paris.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Utilizing the airplane to duplicate the romantic feats of royal pretenders in cape and sword times, the Comte de Paris today launched a new monarchist propaganda campaign in France by urging restoration of the king. His visit was a strictly illegal personal appearance on French soil.

The 30 year old son of the duke of Guise, now 64, bearded pretender to the throne of France, outwitted the vigilance of the French and Belgian governments. He slipped away from his Belgian exile, climbed into a private plane, and, piloting it himself, dropped out of the clouds a few minutes later on the lawn of an aristocratic château near Paris.

Name of Château Kept Secret.

At the château, the name and whereabouts of which were kept secret, he met a group of reporters from leading French newspapers who had been invited there ostensibly to meet the Comtesse de Paris—the third republic gallantly omits ladies from the standing decree of banishment against all royal pretenders.

After asking the reporters to give their word of honor not to divulge the name of the château or reveal his presence in France until he had had time to make a royal getaway, the count clinked champagne glasses with the reporters, offering a toast "to the restoration of France."

Cool on Munich Pact.

He also appealed for the restoration of prosperity and happiness. Dealing with the European situation after the Munich agreement, he reminded his potential subjects that they have obtained only a respite from catastrophe.

It long has been understood among royalists in France that should the duke of Guise return to France as king he would abdicate in favor of his son. The duke is reputed to be worth $20,000,000.

The monarchy of France was overthrown on Sept. 4, 1870. By constitutional law France was made a republic on July 16, 1875. The duke of Guise, the pretender to the throne, thus was only one year old. The count, because of the law, directed at the royal family, never before had set foot on French soil.

BRITAIN MASSES ARMY FOR GREAT HOLY LAND DRIVE

New Scheme Is Reported to Split Up Nation.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Reinforced British troops tonight were preparing for a southward march to sweep the countryside free of marauding Arab rebels while this pacified city looked forward to a new era of peace under civil government.

Reports persisted that Jewish immigration to Palestine would be greatly curtailed or stopped entirely under a new British approach to the vexing question of establishing peace between Jewish settlers and militant Arabs.

There was a belief in responsible quarters that Great Britain definitly had scrapped proposals to divide the Holy Land into Arab, Jewish and British mandated areas, and would continue for some years at least to keep general control in the absence of a final solution to the 23 year old problem.

New Plan Outlined.

It was expected that Britain would set up Arab and Jewish administrations of Arab and Jewish areas, respectively, but retain a strong central rule over all, with the British central administration assisted by a legislative council of Moslems, Christians and Jews in proportion to their population.

Britain was expected to seek a permanent solution in a larger political and territorial framework such as would be offered by union of Syria, Trans-Jordan and Palestine. This union would involve coöperation of Turkey, Egypt, and neighboring Arab states with the French and British governments.

Jerusalem itself was comparatively quiet. Soldiers had cleared out most of the dissident elements. A British soldier was killed by a sniper in the old city.

Hunt Arabs Underground.

Picked squads of British troops equipped with tear gas entered the labyrinth caves of King Solomon's quarries under the old city to drive out Arab rebels believed to have made á tunnel escape from the Mosque of Omar. After several hours underground, where they guided themselves by white ropes, the troops emerged empty handed.

Religious services in the mosque were resumed.

Campaign preparations of the British, augmented by new troops from Malta, Egypt, England, and India, were spurred by fresh Arab raids against railroads, telegraph and police stations, postoffices, and banks.

Police killed one and wounded another of a party which attacked a Jewish bus on the outskirts of Jaffa late yesterday. Five rebels were captured. At Gaza armed Arabs entered a government hospital and killed a woman named Nafissa Bint Slimen who was being treated for stab wounds.

Sweden and Finland Plan Island Fortification Parley

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 21.—Foreign Minister Richard Sandler of Sweden and Foreign Minister Rudolf Holsti of Finland today arranged a meeting to settle the question of the fortifications of the Aaland Islands, lying between Sweden and Finland. The islands, with the strong northern fortress of Boden, constitute stragetic points in the defense of the important Swedish ore mines at Gellivara and Kiruna, and the Boliden gold mines.

Lloyd George Denounces Munich Pact as 'Perilous'

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Oct. 21.—(AP)—David Lloyd George today broke the silence he had maintained since the Munich peace and denounced "an uneasy and perilous truce bought by abandonment of a democratic ally to the ravenous greed of a powerful aggressor."

Karpis' Sweetheart

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Grace Goldstein, common law wife of Alvin Karpis, on trial in Little Rock, Ark., with six other persons on charge of harboring him.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Attorneys defending seven Hot Springs residents on trial in federal district court on a charge of conspiring to harbor the fugitive Alvin Karpis in 1935 today attempted to pin a $2,900 hotel party theft on a woman witness after she had given testimony for the government.

The witness was Gertrude Therese Nichols, 24 years old, who told the jury she had lived in several houses of prostitution operated at Hot Springs by Mrs. Grace Goldstein, Karpis' common law wife. Mrs. Goldstein and others testified these houses were frequented by Karpis and Harry Campbell when they were sought for the 1934 $200,000 kidnaping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker.

As the witness completed her direct testimony, Defense Attorney Grover Owens asked Miss Nichols if she stole $2,900 from Sam Cohen, a Karpis henchman, in the Howe hotel in Hot Springs in the summer of 1935.

"The man isn't complaining, is he?" the witness snapped back. Cohen is serving a thirty year sentence in Oklahoma.

24 DIE AS SPANISH REBEL BOMBERS RAID BARCELONA

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier.]—Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Spanish civil war, now in its 28th month, was marked today by air raids which killed twenty-four persons in Barcelona, government capital. Dispatches said most of the casualties occurred in destruction of the Santa Catalina market. Tarragona, a seaport southwest of Barcelona, also was bombed, but without loss of life.

Meanwhile, in insurgent territory, the controled press called on the world to recognize the Burgos régime as a belligerent.

The newspaper Voz de Espana in San Sebastian said that nations declining to grant belligerent rights "are our enemies and we will consider them as such." It was believed directed principally toward Great Britain and France. Without belligerent's status the insurgent government has no standing in international law and its acts of war are technically acts of piracy.

Government planes "bombed" Burgos today with silk stockings and other articles of clothing to emphasize, the loyalists said, that textiles were scarce in rebel territory.

Ataturk Is Better; Turkish Cabinet Back in Capital

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 21.—President Kemal Ataturk was making such good progress in his recovery today that his ministers returned to Angora. They held a cabinet meeting near his sick room in Dolma Bgatche palace yesterday. Tonight's bulletin said the president had a very good day and that his general condition was improving. Henceforth, it said, only one bulletin a day would be issued. His pulse was regular and his temperature was 98.4 degrees.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA MOVES TO BREAK SOVIET ALLIANCE

Tells Russian Envoy Pact Has Lost Usefulness.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky was reported tonight to have told the soviet minister, Sergei Alexandrovski, that Czechoslovakia "no longer is interested" in its alliance with Russia.

Czechoslovak sources emphasized that the alliance—a purported mutual assistance pact of which France was a signatory—had not yet been terminated.

Czechoslovakia stated clearly, however, that it questioned the usefulness of continuing the agreement with Russia.

The foreign minister's statement was regarded as further evidence of the swing toward Nazi Germany and away from Russia of the new state the Czechs are trying to reshape from the domain left to them by the four power Munich pact.

Cancel "Birthday" Party.

The government decreed cancelation of Czechoslovakia's twentieth birthday party scheduled for next Friday. The cabinet advised the people to "spend the day in the work of rebuilding the republic" instead of celebrating, as in previous years. Particular attention was called to "the difficult circumstances" under which the nation now is living.

Oct. 28 commemorates the bloodless revolution when the Czechs removed the old Austrian administration without resistance after the Vienna government accepted President Woodrow Wilson's peace terms in 1918.

The war ministry, acting with the Czechoslovak Red Cross, ordered relief sent to three groups of Jewish refugees living in the fields near Breclav. The 204 refugees left their homes when the German army of occupation took over Breclav.

Rush Troops to Ruthenia.

Uzhorod, capital of Ruthenia, is the center of one of the largest concentrations of Czechoslovak troops since the general mobilization last month. Uzhorod has a large Hungarian population.

All railways, bridges and strategic communications centers in Ruthenia, center of the Czech-Hungarian territorial dispute, are guarded by soldiers. Seventeen districts of Ruthenia, but not Uzhorod itself, are under martial law. Trucks, covered wagons and even ox drawn carts steadily are moving troops into the area.

Hungarian red, white and green flags, which were displayed in Komarom and other towns along the Hungarian - Czechoslovak frontier when the populace expected momentary occupation by Hungarian troops, have not been flown in Ruthenia. Instead, there are scores of blue and yellow Ruthenian flags, and white, red and blue Slovak flags. Many buildings still fly Czechoslovakia's red, white and blue.

Hungary Spurns New Offer.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government today submitted a new proposal to Hungary for settlement of their territorial issue. Official circles said the offer was considerably better than the last made by Czechoslovakia, but still was inadequate and would be refused.

This was the fourth Czechoslovak plan.

The first was the offer of autonomy to Hungarian minorities in Czechoslovakia.

The second proposed cession of 695 square miles of pure Hungarian territory between Bratislava and Komarom—but not including those towns—on the Hungarian - Czechoslovak frontier.

The third offer tripled the area of territory that the second proposed to cede. But, Hungarians declared, the new frontier was drawn arbitrarily by the Czechoslovaks after consideration of strategic, economic and railway communication interests. It would have given Hungary the town of Komarom only if it were declared a free [Danube river] port.

The newest plan was reported to offer cession of about 2,818.5 square miles but not to include a large number of towns Hungary demands, including Bratislava.

The Hungarian demand is for about 5,091 square miles with a population of about 1,100,000 and a plebiscite in the rest of Slovakia.

Nearly half a million Hungarian troops facing Czechoslovakia along the frontier in the Balassa Gyarmat area eagerly awaited orders. Their officers expressed confidence of the outcome should the territorial dispute flare into war.

Hungarian villages in a zone as much as 50 miles deep along the border were thronged with troops. Tanks with huge skulls painted on either side crawled along border roads. Pictures of Czech uniforms and plane insignia were posted on barns and stables where troops were quartered. Cardboard "fortifications" resembling the Czech barriers were carried by the Hungarians for training purposes.

Farmers disposed of provisions higher than normal prices among the troops billeted nearby, and priests in one frontier town said so many village girls were marrying soldiers that more clerical help was required.

JAPS IN CANTON; FIND RUINS LEFT BY FLEEING FOE

Troops Organize City; New Drives Predicted.

HONGKONG, Oct. 22 [Saturday]. —(AP)— Foreign military observers watching Japan's expeditionary force methodically consolidate its almost bloodless conquest of Canton, today predicted the fallen city would be turned into a base from which to smash Chinese resistance inland.

Swarms of demoralized Cantonese —soldiers and civilians alike—choked the city's exits. They were in frantic flight before the mechanized Japanese units which rolled slowly through the sprawling metropolis.

Military men said one of the major tasks confronting the Japanese, now that Chinese resistance at Canton had collapsed, would be to clear the railroad eastward from Canton about forty-five miles to Sheklung. Another job, they said, would be to reopen the Pearl [Canton] river to trafic by eliminating the river booms at the Boca Tigris forts.

It was reported reliably that twelve Japanese transports, a cruiser, a destroyer, and various auxiliary craft were steaming up the Pearl river, obviously intending to attack the Boca Tigris forts and force them to open the river to Japanese warships.

Airfield to Be Valuable.

The Canton airfield was expected to be particularly valuable to the Japanese in striking northward along the Canton-Hankow railway. This line was a principal avenue for Chinese military supplies until Japan's South China campaign began ten days ago.

The Japanese, it was said, possibly will push on westward toward Wuchow, a city in Kwangsi province, about 125 miles from Canton.

Canton was a depressing sight as the Japanese systematically occupied it. Abandoned homes and shops, discarded garments and household goods littered the streets. The unnatural emptyness of the city, save for pathetic huddles of beggars, attested to the haste in which the Cantonese evacuated.

Sidesteps Chinese Forces.

The metropolis was captured yesterday afternoon after one of the most astounding campaigns of modern warfare. It was a victory in which a comparatively small but highly mobile and formidably equipped column sidestepped hundreds of thousands of Chinese soldiers.

Pointed by tanks, their turreted guns inactive, the column swung into the virtually deserted city shortly after noon. Behind the tanks rolled a train of trucks loaded with infantrymen.

The column had driven 125 miles inland from Bias bay, to the southeast, circling to assault the city from the north. So easy was the movement, officers said, that the column lost not more than 200 killed and wounded.

Additional troops poured into Canton today through the "back door" which the mechanized column had opened. Other thousands of Japanese were expected to enter from the east along the Canton-Kowloon railway. The Japanese had captured the town of Sheklung on this railway, east of Canton, and reports from the front said the Chinese were retreating, their morale shattered.

Estimates of Canton's defenders ranged between 500,000 and 1,000,000, but most of them were equipped only with small arms. The Japanese force was estimated at 60,000 men.

Circled to Assault City.

There was little or no disorder among the 50,000 civilians who remained in the once teeming metropolis to meet the invaders.

The Japanese found that high government officials had fled to Yungyun, ninety-two miles north of Canton, in the wake of nearly all the civilian population of 1,000,000.

Mines were exploded under the $8,000,000 Pearl [Canton] river bridge and one span crashed as the first signal of the Japanese approach. Heavy explosives turned utilities plants and factories into piles of smoking ruins. The model prison was blown up after the prisoners were freed.

Japs Face British, French.

In Canton, as in Shanghai, Japanese forces came face to face with foreign powers interested in China. British and French forces were on guard with machine guns at the barricades of Shameen, Canton's foreign settlement. French and British flags flew from the barricades. Shameen remained quiet, with United States, British, and French gunboats standing by.

The full import of the choking of this artery of supplies was not yet apparent, for against the possibility of losing Canton the Chinese several months ago started a highway from Burma to Yunnan province in extreme Southwestern China.

This highway must be nearly completed. A railway from Hanoi, French Indo-China, to Yunnan, capital of Yunnan province, also was still available.

Scoff at Charges of Sellout.

More than 1,000,000 Hongkong Chinese were dumbfounded today at news of the virtually unopposed Japanese entry into Canton. Newspapers in this British crown colony quoted "Chinese circles" as denying widespread rumors of treason in permitting easy capture of the metropolis.

"Chinese circles" were quoted as attributing the collapse of the Canton defense to "abominable leadership" and the fact that Kwangtung province had been so stripped of good troops that the defenders were unable to make a stand.

Mines Menace U. S. Gunboat.

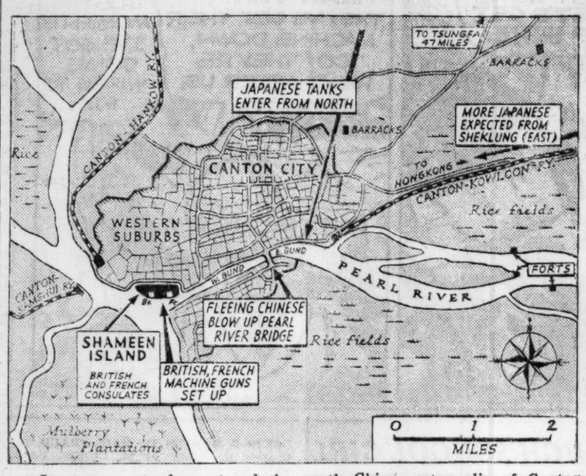
SHANGHAI, Oct. 22 [Saturday]—(AP)—The Japanese today reported satisfactory progress in all sectors of the 150 mile semi-circular front converging on Hankow, Chinese military capital. They said Yangtze river forces on the northwest were within thirty-five miles of their goal, despite Chinese efforts to blast Japanese warcraft with mines set adrift upstream.

The United States gunboat Monocacy, stationed near Kiukiang, 135 miles downriver from Hankow, narrowly missed hitting one of the mines, it was reported yesterday.

Units of the Japanese war fleet were reported past Ocheng, thirty-five miles from Hankow, and today's advices said severe fighting was still underway in the lakes of the Ocheng sector.

How Canton Fell to the Japs

(Story in adjoining column.)



Japanese yesterday entered the south China metropolis of Canton after a ten day drive from Bias Bay. Fleeing Chinese blew up much property. The population of Canton has been reduced from 1,000,000 to an estimated 50,000.

CHICAGOAN PICKS UP STRANGE TINY BEASTS IN MALAYA JUNGLES

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, Oct. 21.—Eight furry animals, about ten inches long, with five fingered handlike paw, pandalike bodies, owl's eyes, and fantastic slow motion actions, arrived from Singapore today in the custody of heavily bearded Clifford M. Pressnall of Chicago, en route to the San Diego zoo.

Pressnall said the species are unknown to any of the world's seven largest zoos, with which he corresponded. Native of Malaya, where Pressnall, who is a roving explorer-camera man, found the curious beasts, call them keng-kangs. Pressnall said their European name is "slow lorries."

The animals are believed to be mutually extinct. Their habitat, the so-called Saski jungle country, is about 350 miles north of Singapore and 100 miles south of the Siamese border. The tiny beasts do not drink water and eat mostly bananas, some citrus fruit, and an occasional raw egg.

They have two tongues, one is moderately long and red, the other, small and semi-cartilagenous, is located under the main tongue and is used to dig out fruits. Exceptionally strong, the animals weigh two to two and one-half pounds when full grown.

TELLS OF JOINING NAZI SPY RING TO EXPOSE ITS WORK

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.—Guenther Gustav Rumrich, United States army deserter, told a federal jury here today that he joined a Nazi German spy ring to expose its activities. He said he hoped thus to clear his army record.

The former dishwasher was on the stand for the fifth day as a government witness against three alleged associates charged with plotting to steal American defense secrets. He has pleaded guilty.

His surprising statement today was made on cross examination by defense attorneys, who have termed him a "beermug romancer." Rumrich asserted he never had any idea of being a traitor or planning any injury to the United States. Those on trial are Johanna Hofmann, former hairdresser on the German liner Europa; Erich Glaser, former army private, and Otto Voss, German born aviation mechanic.

SUIT ATTACKS NORWOOD PARK SANITARY AREA

Validity of the establishment of the Norwood Park sanitary district was attacked yesterday by the state's attorney's office. The attack was made in a test suit in behalf of James W. Kwech of 4132 North Overhill avenue, Norwood township.

The complaint alleges that there were false signatures on the petition by which the election for establishment of the district was called. Moreover, the complaint says, the election was not legally conducted, and the law does not permit another sanitary district within the Chicago sanitary district. The Norwood Park district, established last April, is bounded by Irving Park road, Indian boundary line, and Foster and Harlem avenues.

DOCTOR ACCUSED OF DISMEMBERING BODY OF BANDIT

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Information obtained from two inmates of Alcatraz prison in San Francisco bay led to the arrest today of a Manhattan physician as one of the last two important figures in the $427,950 Brooklyn armored car robbery four years ago.

Dr. Harry Gilbert is accused of dismembering the body of Bernard McMahon, a thug, so the body could be stuffed into a trunk after McMahon died under an operation for wounds received at the holdup. Dr. Gilbert was held in $50,000 bail as a material witness. The body was found in the trunk in the areaway of Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury's West 74th street home four days after the holdup.

BRITAIN PLACES ARMING NATION BEFORE ALL ELSE

CARDIFF, Wales, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, British minister of war, said today it would be necessary to revive the wartime method of subordinating every other consideration in order to expand Great Britain's rearmament within a specified time.

"A ministry of munitions to be effective," Hore-Belisha said, "must have full powers to allot orders, assign priorities, control supply of materials, and make arrangements for diversion of skilled labor. These would be fundamental changes."

The minister spoke at a dinner of the Glamorgan Territorial Army and Auxiliary Airforce association.

POPE CONDEMNS PERSECUTORS OF JUDAS TYPE

Reviews Nazi Attack on Vienna Cardinal.

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 21.—(AP)—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, today said that Pope Pius had expressed grief at mounting evidence of persecution in an address yesterday to 300 archeologists at Castel Gandolfo.

The newspaper said the pope intended his remarks as a reminder of things with which quite recently newspapers and speakers have been concerned."

Vatican officials refused to comment, but the newspaper then showed that these things consisted of persecution which "together with the paucity of accusation has mounted as far as the sacred purple of a high pastor."

[L'Osservatore Romano on Oct. 14 published a long version of the attack Oct. 8 in Vienna on the palace of Cardinal Theodore Innitzer.]

Call from Oblivion.

The newspaper said the pontiff yesterday alluded to persecutions of antiquity and declared that "works and personages better left in oblivion are being called and recalled on the scene of life and action."

The newspaper said the pope added that "not far away quite a different archeology is being practiced" from the mere exhuming of monuments and studying of "dead texts."

"It is erroneous archeology and truth which exhumes sinister figures to bring them back into existence and put in operation sinister works," the paper quoted the pope.

"He recalled the work of Julian, the apostate, with sad, extremely sad, persecutions which, if they were not the most violent and bloodiest, were extremely uncompromising, deceitful, and shrewd.

Compared to Judas.

"The work has been revived not without informers and apostles of the type and soul of Judas. So saying, the pope meant to recall in the minds of his beloved sons, things with which quite recently newspapers and speakers have been concerned—and not among irresponsible people, which have surprised and astonished the world—the honest world accustomed to honest things.

"This persecution, which they still want to deny with truly incredible audacity in face of evidence of things which the pope observes every day in documents which are ever new, extremely certain and thoroughly verified concerning constantly new situations and worse threats, is truly a profound source of grief.

"He said it not only as pope and as father of Christianity, but also as a man. The dignity of man seemed to him badly served indeed when one had reached exactly the same point reached by Julian the apostate even though he was not the first to blame Christians for persecutions with which they were afflicted. Nero, too, had done it for the burning of Rome and persecution which followed it.

Blame Put on Faithful.

"So, today, continually and without respite it happens that on the faithful, on their fate and on their conscience blame is lain for persecutions which have been noted.

"It is a truly strange thing; strange heights have been reached. Because it must be said that persecution even of the last of the faithful of the last son entrusted to the care of Jesus Christ and to his vicar strikes the pope as well and also persecutions—this is its true name—together with the paucity of accusation has mounted as far as the sacred purple of a high pastor. The paternal grief could not but be, as these sons well understand, great and profound."

[This allusion was regarded in some quarters as a reference to Nazi charges that Cardinal Innitzer brought recent Nazi raids on his palace on himself.]

MORON ROUTED BY SCREAMS.

Mrs. Joseph Olsen, 5208 Congress street, reported to police yesterday that a man tried to drag her into a car on South Lockwood avenue between Gladys avenue and Van Buren street. He drove away when her screams summoned help.

REPORT HITLER YOUTH RAIDS ON MORE CHURCHES

Vienna, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Ecclesiastical sources today said several Catholic churches and parish offices in outlying Vienna districts had been attacked in the last few days by young Nazis.

They said statues were smashed in a church at Neu-Kagran and two valuable pictures were destroyed in Alt-Lerchenfelder. German soldiers saved two other parish houses from attack, happening to be billeted in them, these sources said.

About sixty Hitler youths carrying stones and pieces of metal smashed several windows at a parish house in Mauer, they declared, but German officers housed there prevented them from storming the building. They said German soldiers similarly saved the parish building at Laxenburg after a few windows were broken by stones.

Dr. Johann Krawarik, canon of St. Stephen cathedral in the center of Vienna, who was injured seriously in the riots Oct. 8 in which Cardinal Theodore Innitzer's palace was attacked, was reported improving. The canon has been removed from a general hospital to a private hospital where he is being nursed by nuns.

Lindbergh Hopes Germans Will Fly Airships to U. S.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today expressed hope that German airships would cross the Atlantic again in regular flights to America. Lindbergh inspected the new dirigible, LZ-130, at Friedrichshafen. He also visited the nearby Dornier airplane works, where he flew several planes.

LADY IN BUSINESS

By CALEB

"MAKE NO MISTAKE," she repeated, "about women being in business to stay—or that there aren't fine careers for her there of which she has been shown as capable as the male of the species."

We heartily approved this attitude, expressed by a Chicago business woman who is herself a conspicuous instance of "fine career." Her name identifies a product that at some time or another has found its way into practically every Chicagoland home and been dispatched to thousands of buyers elsewhere throughout the country.

Which is as it should be. After all, sex plays little if any part in accomplishment—save, perhaps, in mere feats of physical strength. And the same qualities of resourcefulness, intelligence, initiative and industry are as demonstrable of women as they are of men.

Continuous recognition of this fact has always made it easy for Field's to regard itself as a store definitely of and for the business woman. Her familiarity with styles, designs, fabrics, textures, colors, qualities, modes and fashions is but the reflection of her own necessity to "appear at her best" in the professional or commercial circles she frequents; and that very expert knowledge is a challenge to the store which serves her personal needs. We know that when she is "pleased with Field's," Field's has earned the right to be pleased with itself.

For her, therefore, quite as much as for the homemaker, society matron, debutante, co-ed, or "junior," we strive to demonstrate no accidental satisfaction, but a studied service that will simplify the shopping visits and safeguard her interests.

To the Lady in Business whom these lines may chance to attract—our compliments . . . and of the warmest! Hers has been no primrose path to the top, but a rise earned despite keen competition; by sheer toil and talent she has more than justified her place in today's affairs.

As such we have made her approval an important objective of our own daily efforts. Practicing sincere performance, good service, herself, she is first to appreciate it in others. Informed, alert, candid, capable—she represents the type of customer whose endorsement we hope always to merit, and shall strive always to maintain.

FORGOTTEN MAN IS REMEMBERED; FACES JAIL AGAIN

High Court Vacates Order Freeing Prochnow.

The Illinois Supreme court remembered yesterday about Raymond E. Prochnow, long known as the forgotten man of the county jail. The high court ordered Judge Harry M. Fisher to vacate the order by which he released Prochnow from jail just two years ago.

Prochnow's exact status seemed in doubt last night. Some legal authorities believed the order had ended the long legal battle.

Judge Fisher said he would be unable to determine Prochnow's status before seeing a copy of the court order. In any event it was believed that Prochnow would have at least 20 more days of liberty to make an appeal.

Now Working in St. Louis.

Friends said Prochnow is employed in East St. Louis.

The forgotten man is a former La Salle street broker. He was originally sent to jail in May, 1932, for contempt of court. The charge resulted from his failure to turn over $35,282 to the estate of William Garnett, an attorney, who died in 1920 after entrusting the money to Prochnow. Prochnow later won back his liberty, but was returned to jail in March, 1934. He made many pleas for his release, but they failed because attorneys for the estate said he had not explained where the money went.

Prochnow complained that he would never regain his liberty, and that he would be forgotten in the jail. Hence the title, the forgotten man.

Returns to His Family.

When he was released he returned to his wife, who had been supporting herself and their two children operating a notions store.

Judge Fisher cited various technicalities in releasing him, and in so doing indicated Prochnow had been punished enough.

Last January Prochnow told in court for the first time his story of what became of the money. He said he placed Garnett's securities with his own to obtain a $100,000 loan from the Central Trust company. Subsequently, he said, the company disposed of the securities in liquidating the loan.

Previously Prochnow had asserted he was hiding nothing concerning the affair and had answered all questions put to him.

FOOTSORE MAIL CARRIER WINS HIS RELEASE ON BOND

Postman Joseph Yanevich, who began throwing mail away because his feet ached, was released yesterday on posting of a $500 surety bond pending federal grand jury action.

Joseph Yanevich.

Yanevich was arrested Thursday after some of his customers complained that their letters were found on the prairie in Yanevich's territory. For three years he had been delivering mail to the area which lies between 71st, 73d, and Leavitt streets and Ashland avenue. Postal authorities found more than 200 letters which he had discarded.

Yanevich, a veteran of thirteen years in the postal service, was ordered held to the federal grand jury when arraigned Thursday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

Gunman Caught Stealing Papers Is Held to Jury

John Seugin, 21 years old, arrested Oct. 12 after he had fired a revolver at two TRIBUNE circulation department employés, was held to the grand jury in $10,000 bond yesterday by Judge John J. Rooney in Felony court. He was charged with robbery and assault to kill. Seugin was caught near 6300 Sheridan road, trying to steal papers. His captors were Ray Stahl, 1276 Ardmore avenue, and Nathan Lipman, 1121 Albany avenue.

Victim of Roller Coaster Wins Damages of $3,500

For injuries she suffered in a roller coaster accident at Riverview park, Miss Alice Litke, 21 years old, of Indianapolis, won a $3,500 verdict yesterday. The award was made by a jury before Judge Archie G. Kennedy of De Kalb, sitting in Circuit court. The accident occurred July 20, 1937.

IF THEY RUN DOWN QUARRY IT WILL BE A GREAT SHOCK

11th Ward Shaken by Sinister Doings.

When china cups fall off the cupboard hooks and break, housewives of the neighborhood blame the dynamiting in the quarry near 28th and Halsted streets. When husbands cut themselves while shaving, they lay it to the blasting, too.

The quarry owners don't deny that peculiar things are happening. But they don't believe their dynamiting is the reason. And so, they promised yesterday, they'll install some seismographs in the hope of finding out what breaks the china, nicks chins, and shakes pictures off the walls.

Tell Strange Occurrences.

The strange occurrences were told to the council subcommittee on streets and alleys yesterday by 150 members of the 11th Ward Property Owners' association.

It's a bit disturbing, one man told the aldermen, to find your furniture all rearranged when you get up in the morning. It's chilly, another said, when you find your windows broken.

One man complained that his house is splitting in two.

But that's nothing to what happened to Sam Beneta of 2724 South Union avenue. He was selling his house. The customer liked it. He had his money in his hand to pay for it.

Boom! And He Changes Mind.

And then boom! There was a blast that shook his teeth. The customer looked frightened and said he'd changed his mind.

Mrs. Fay Brandon, owner of a tavern at 942 West 29th street, said something has to be done. The customers don't like to drink their beer when the blasting's going on.

The quarry is owned by the Stearns Lime and Stone company, 33 North Halsted street. The company's attorney, Harold Schradzke, said it wants to coöperate but can't believe it's to blame. He'll get the seismographs, such as are used to record earthquakes, he said. But it will be a shock to him if the dynamiting's what's wrong.

GAS EXPLOSION INJURES TWO IN UTILITIES OFFICE

Belvidere, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—George McConnell and M. M. Morse, employés of the Illinois Northern Utilities company, were stunned and a dozen other workers and patrons thrown into a panic this morning when the gas operated heating plant in the company's new $50,000 office building blew up from some unknown cause. The blast hurled a plate glass window in the front of the building into the street, a piece striking Charles Andrews, a pedestrian, on the shoulder. Several doors in the basement were blown off their hinges and other damage done.

Elevated Lineman Injured in Fall Off Moving Train

William Barg, an elevated lines electrician, was critically injured yesterday when he fell or jumped from the top of an elevated lines work car near the South Boulevard station in Evanston. The car was one of a train going north at a speed of 35 miles an hour. Police said Barg may have lost his cap and have fallen while trying to grab it. He lives at 1147 Ashland avenue, Evanston.

Fate Averts Injury to Scores on Trains

Struck by Truck

Scores of passengers were saved from possible injury yesterday when fate, in the form of a broken wire, intervened to prevent an almost certain collision between a fast North Western railroad passenger train and a derailed locomotive in Wisconsin, just north of Winthrop Harbor, Lake county, Ill.

A northbound passenger train hit a truck driven by Alex Bleashka, 5007 33d avenue, Kenosha, at the Chi-Waukee crossing. The impact derailed the locomotive and threw it partly onto the southbound track.

The jolt broke a ground wire on the south track, automatically starting the railroad block signals flashing along the line. The Minneapolis Limited, southbound to Chicago, was in the Kenosha station at the time and, heeding the warning signal, did not start up until the road had been cleared.

Trainmen said a second collision probably would have occurred without the signals. The Kenosha station is only five miles from the scene of the accident and a curve just north of the scene might have shut off the view of the southbound train engineer until possibly too late to avoid hitting the derailed locomotive.

Bleashka was taken to the Kenosha hospital in a critical condition. Northbound trafic was tied up for an hour and a half.

A GRETNA GREEN BRIDE HITS AN ALIMONY ROCK

Another Crown Point marriage got into the divorce court yesterday. A bride of five months, Rose Godinez of 4643 Wentworth avenue, asked temporary alimony. But Norman Becker, attorney for Manuel Godinez, protested. "This couple lived together only two weeks," he said. Judge Robert C. O'Connell refused to give her alimony and continued the entire case. Mrs. Godinez is 20 years old. Her husband, 27, lives at 5755 South La Salle street. She is seeking separate maintenance in a bill filed by Attorney Thomas J. Carroll. Godinez is asking annulment.

Railroad Sues Motorist for Damages in Collision

The usual procedure in railway damage cases was reversed yesterday in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva. The Chicago and Great Western railroad filed suit for $1,391 against Harry J. Redborg of Batavia. The bill alleged that freight and rolling stock of the road were damaged in a collision between Redborg's automobile and a freight train near St. Charles a year ago. Redborg was severely injured in the crash.

AXMEN ROUT 1,500 HORSE BETTERS IN NINE RAIDS

State's Attorney Courtney's ax squads routed 1,500 patrons from nine handbooks which they demolished yesterday. One-third of these were women. The raids brought the total of betting establishments smashed in the current campaign to 465. The raids were at 3301 Roosevelt road, 3945-47 Madison street, 1232 Bryn Mawr avenue, 4651 Washington boulevard, 3422 South Racine avenue, 307 East 58th street, 1322 East 47th street, 1476 Summerdale avenue, and 1508 North Pulaski road.

CASEY CHARGES FALSE, HOLLAND SAYS; PLANS SUIT

Defends His Handling of Gambling Cases.

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland announced last night that he will file a slander suit against Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey. At the same time, Holland denounced as an "unqualified lie" Casey's charges of corruption in Holland's handling of gambling cases in the Racket court.

Judge Holland is a Democrat and Judge Casey is a Republican. Both are candidates for reëlection on Nov. 8.

Issues Written Statement.

"I want to talk with a libel lawyer before I make any statement," Holland asserted earlier in the day while he was hearing his routine calendar in the West Chicago police court. Last night, he issued a written statement.

"Casey's charges are false and I emphatically deny them," it read. "His statements are so viciously untrue that I will not dignify them with a detailed answer. They are the product of a mind that has become panicky by fear of defeat. Had they been made in good faith, there are proper tribunals before which their truth or falsity could have been tried.

"After election, when Judge Casey is relegated to the practice of law, he is assured of having at least one case—the defense of himself in a suit for slander before a court which will hear and pass upon the facts and render judgment accordingly."

Replies to Accusations.

In an interview, Holland amplified his written statement. In response to a request, he replied to six accusatory questions asked by Casey in an address on Thursday night before the Apartment House and Hotel association. Casey's questions and Holland's answers are as follows:

Q. Why did you instruct your clerk to have a separate, unofficial sheet listing the names and addresses of all gambling cases ready for you in court? A. There was no sheet other than the official court record during my eleven months in the Racket court.

Q. Why were the bail slips marked "discharged" before your court even opened? A. The clerk and not the judge handles bail slips but I'll vouch that there was nothing irregular in the conduct of the three clerks and the five bailifs assigned to the court while I was there.

Q.—What is the meaning of the initials that you wrote on that sheet and the tallies that you made thereon? A.—There was no sheet other than the official court record.

Q.—Why did you always hand this sheet over to your bailif when the gambling cases were called? A.—There was no extra sheet.

Q.—What did he do with it? A.—Judge Casey is imagining things.

Q.—Why were the cases represented by five select lawyers always heard and discharged immediately and those involving other lawyers always continued? A.—There were about fifty, not five, lawyers regularly representing gamblers while I was in the Racket court and they all received the same treatment.

Defends Dismissing Cases.

"It's true," Judge Holland continued, "that almost all gambling cases brought before me were discharged for lack of evidence as required by Illinois law. That has been the history of gambling prosecutions in Chicago for years before I was in the Racket court and during the three weeks since I left that court. I have just read that Judge Francis Borrelli discharged twenty-five defendants on a motion to suppress the evidence because the arrests were made without warants."

"Judge Casey has told a story void of facts. Entirely fiction is his tale of a lawyer and Bailif Theodore Bayer having fought over a fee in a gambling case. There was no fight, and if any of my bailifs had been guilty of such misconduct I would have known about it."

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby refused to comment. "Not during a political campaign," he said.

JUDGE TELLS ALF TO BEHAVE FOR THE NEXT 2 YEARS

Alfred Humphreys, formerly a substitute mail clerk at the Western Springs postoffice, won his freedom in federal court yesterday. But he must pay for it by being a model young man for the next two years—his probation period.

Humphreys, who is 23 years old, pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to embezzling $100 in postoffice funds. Humphreys said he thought he used his auto too much, and estimated he had driven 15,000 miles in the last three months. Furthermore, he said, a man named Myers was a "bad influence."

Judge Sullivan, putting him on probation, ordered him to get rid of his car, not to drive, not to gamble, and not to frequent taverns. And he mustn't see the man named Myers.

Chicagoan Jailed in Truck Strike Picketing at Omaha

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 21.—(Special.)—Ralph E. Markley, 33 years old of Chicago, was one of 39 men jailed for investigation in connection with truck strike picketing here today. "I'm going to teach you that you're not going to use Chicago gangster methods in Omaha," Police Chief Pszanowski told Markley. "When you get out of here you'll find out Chicago is safer for you than Omaha."

Kindly Buyer Talks Woman Into Shortchanging Self

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mrs. Mathilda Tichy (left) and her mother, Mrs. Augusta Kessel, both of whom received decrees yesterday.

Mrs. Augusta Kessel brought her daughter to court yesterday and got a supply of divorces. Mrs. Kessel, who is 62 years old, told Judge Philip J. Finnegan her husband, James, of Denver, had deserted her. She got a divorce when her testimony was corroborated by her daughter, Mrs. Mathilda Tichy, 32.

Mrs. Tichy didn't leave the witness stand. She said she wanted a divorce from Raymond Tichy, 35, of 4027 West 24th place. Her mother then took her place on the witness stand and verified Mrs. Tichy's testimony that Tichy had been cruel. Mrs. Tichy got a divorce.

But the judge looked puzzled. Attorney David S. Schechter explained. When Mrs. Tichy came crying home to her mother at 2255 South Central Park avenue she said she wanted a divorce. Her mother decided she'd like one of her own from the man who she said deserted her in 1925 for another woman.

12 SCHOOLS ROCK TO JAM SESSIONS AS DANCES BEGIN

First of 10 Cent Hops Draw Crowds.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

For three hours last night Chicago's youth swung it.

At twelve high schools, gymnasiums were alive with students and alumni having what Supt. William H. Johnson called a good time. The boys and girls called it a jam session. It was the first of a series of Friday night dances planned by the board of education as one solution to the problem of juvenile delinquency. The plan, if successful, will be extended to all high schools.

At 6:30, two hours before the dances were to begin, students began to gather at the school buildings. An hour later lines stretched a block, the seniors in couples, and the freshmen, subdued, stagging it.

Truck, Hop, Waltz, and Jiggle.

Once inside, there was no way of telling them apart. They trucked. They hopped. They jiggled up and down. They waltzed, some dreamily, gracefully, and others with a fierce desperation. All of the girls wore sweaters and skirts and most of the skirts were plaid. All of them nid a comb or a bow in their shoulder length curls. Most of the boys wore sweaters and had their hair slicked back. They all looked bashful the first five minutes and brave thereafter.

The beginners, and there were many, had been admitted to the gymnasium for an early session of instruction. They learned to shuffle self-consciously through a waltz and a fox trot, and ended up doing the Lambeth walk. So it was not inexperience that kept the stag line long and the balconies sheltering lonely little girls.

"Wallflowers," commented a teacher chaperon, "and so soon!"

Not all the girls awaited the favor of their menfolk. One, a large girl in gum-soled shoes, danced defiantly with a smaller girl. Two other girls danced a furious highland fling before the orchestra. Several boys practiced together in the hall before they tried their steps on the dance floor.

Order Well Maintained.

Dances were held at Fenger, Hyde Park, Lindblom, DuSable, Kelly, Waller, Senn, Crane, Wells, Lane, Steinmetz, and Medill High schools. Each of the dances was managed by school officials. A general manager, in most cases the principal, acted as overseer and directed the checkroom boy, the washroom matron, and the ticket clerks. Two teachers served as chaperons, scrutinizing the dancers carefully for neighborhood rowdys. No parents were allowed.

A 10 cent admission fee was charged. Proceeds from the dances will be used to pay the musicians, supplied by the Chicago Federation of Musicians at a special rate. Two police were assigned to each school to maintain order.

CHICAGO DENIED TAX PREJUDGING ACT REHEARING

The Illinois Supreme court in Springfield yesterday denied a rehearing of its invalidation of the tax preadjudication act for Chicago governments. The court held last month that the 1937 act was unconstitutional because it did not provide for adequate notice to property owners that the local governments were asking the courts to approve their levies. The rehearing petition was filed by States' Attorney Courtney.

County taxing officials said they would sponsor new legislation to reinstate the provisions of the law. The act required court confirmation of the levies before tax bills are sent out so that illegal taxes would be eliminated for all taxpayers. Under the existing system objections to levies are not heard until after taxes are due.

HURT IN FALL, PAINTER DIES.

Harold Ferdinandsen, 33 years old, died yesterday in the West Suburban hospital of injuries incurred Oct. 13 when a scaffold collapsed as he was painting a building at 5047 Race avenue. He lived at 643 North Lotus avenue.

ALIEN'S ATTEMPT TO CLEAR NAME RUNS INTO SNAG

Hit Borrelli for Erasing Old Conviction.

Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli ran into a crossfire yesterday in the state's attorney's office. A case which he had thought quietly disposed of, with the consent of Assistant State's Attorney Emil Scruggs, zoomed out of the void to hit him in the nose. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley was on the warpath with a threat of appeal and the dark suspicion that the United States immigration authorities had been interfered with in their desire to deport an undesirable alien.

The case is that of Nick Anton, who came to the United States from Greece at the age of 12. He was a brother of Theodore Anton [Anton the Greek], who was slain by gangsters in 1927. Theodore Anton operated the Anton and Hawthorne hotels in Cicero, for a long time the ironclad residence orf Al Capone.

It's All Beside the Point.

All this, however, had nothing to do with Nick Anton's troubles or with justice.

Theodore, it seems, had an interest in a hotel at 72 West Huron street. Young Nick, in 1925, was a nonpaying roomer there when it was raided by police. He was fined $5 and costs by Judge Samuel P. Trude on the charge of being the keeper of a disorderly house. The fine was paid. A few months later there was another raid and Nick was found guilty on a similar charge and sentenced by Judge William E. Helander to thirty days in the Bridewell. He served his sentence.

Twelve years passed. Nick had gone into the candy business, married, and was the father of two children. One day late in 1937 he appeared in the court of Judge Borrelli with a strange petition for a writ of coram nobis, which alleged that the witness who could have shown that he was only a roomer in the hotel had been intimidated against giving testimony. This witness, Eugene Robinson, 1541 South 57th avenue, Cicero, supported this story by affidavit.

Case Dismissed Sept. 12.

Judge Borrelli's records show that the petition for a new trial was consented to by Assistant State's Attorney Scruggs and that last Sept. 12, after a hearing, the case was dismissed. The assistant state's attorney agreed that there was not enough evidence to convict. So the previous convictions were wiped out and Nick Anton stood an unstained citizen.

But another complication entered. Fred J. Schlotfeldt, chief of the immigration office in Chicago, had a deportation action under way against Anton. The question was now whether there was anything left to deport him on or whether this was wiped out also.

Anton was represented by Attorney Charles W. Schaub, a former United States district attorney under George E. Q. Johnson, and Dwight Green, office associate of William Parrillo, also a former assistant district attorney and Republican committeeman in the 25th ward.

Assails Borrelli's Action.

"We are going to the Appellate court on this case," said Crowley last night. "Our position is that Judge Borrelli had no right to review this case and upset convictions thirteen years old."

"I was in the Criminal court twenty years before I went on the bench," said Judge Borrelli. "I know something about criminal law. This case will be upheld."

Mr. Schlotfeldt refused to comment last night, saying additional evidence against Anton had been sent to Immigration Commissioner James L. Houghteling in Washington.

BACHELOR JUDGE TELLS A WOMAN ABOUT MARRIAGE

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A wife who left her husband two weeks after their marriage and demanded a separation because he was too ardent got no sympathy today from Supreme Court Justice Edward Riegelmann in Brooklyn.

Denying temporary alimony and counsel fees to Mrs. Catherine Zimmerman pending trial of her separation suit against her husband, Charles, the judged noted that Mrs. Zimmerman had been married before and said:

"Presumptively, at least, she might have anticipated that a man does not court and marry a woman for the mere pleasure of paying her board and washing."

Justice Riegelmann is a bachelor.

Judge Jarecki Doesn't Let a Birthday Upset Court

Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of the County court was busy receiving congratulations yesterday. It was his 59th birthday. But he held court as usual, despite visits from the many friends who came to greet him. Judge Jarecki has been on the County court bench since 1922.

Another Doctor Book, but This Time in Fiction

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Doctor Bradley Remembers" by Francis Brett Young. [Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.75.] Published yesterday.

Francis Brett Young has written another "doctor" book, this time reversing the order of the popular autobiographies, which read like fiction, by being fiction which reads like autobiography. One of England's most popular as well as most skilled novelists here tells the story of the life of an English country doctor.

It is a tale not unlike A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel" in that both tell the story of medicine and surgery in England during their heroes' lifetimes. But to Dr. Bradley life brings fewer professional problems, and never does he achieve the fame and fortune which nearly wrecked the hero of "The Citadel."

Dr. Bradley is a simpler soul than Andrew Manson, and his life is of a less complicated pattern. But he is a character whom the reader will remember as a person—a tragic, lonely old man—while the reader will remember Dr. Manson only as a doctor who knew every possible kind of professional excitement and whose private life was overshadowed by professional exigencies.

Seventy-five years take their leisurely course through these 522 pages. "It was not," in fact, events [or even emotions] themselves that old age remembered so much as the essence, the atmosphere of emotions and events," writes the author as his hero reflects on his past. That essence is what makes this novel memorable. The events and their attendant emotions of his long, useful life take their proper proportion in his memories.

His unhappy childhood gives place to the bitter, but eager days of his studies. The years of his early practice as an unlicensed helper are merely preparatory to the detailed happiness of his first few years of marriage, "the essence of that unique experience abode with him like the memory of a perfume."

The whole book has that faint gentle nostalgia, but even in Dr. Bradley's moments of highest tragedy work must be done, and, as the book closes, he is trudging out in the middle of the night making his last call in a rainstorm—a gallant, worn old figure.

Erskine Brings New Pen to Story of Walt Whitman.

"The Start of the Road," by John Erskine. [Stokes, $2.50.] Published Thursday.

John Erskine, who has performed such gay high jinks with legendary figures—who took the privacy out of the private life of Helen of Troy and put liveliness in and who reshaped the literary legend of François Villon and gave it new zest—now writes about another poet. "The interpretation of Walt Whitman which is offered in this novel is fiction," he declares unequivocally.

Mr. Erskine has brought to this book an entirely different pen than that to which his readers of his popular tales are accustomed. Here is no brilliant flipness, no superb wisecracking, no seriousness about fripperies, no froth about serious things. Here is a perfectly serious attempt to recreate a man, to bring to life a great poet, to explain the growth of his sentiments and beliefs. Mr. Erskine does not, it seems to me, wholly achieve his high aim.

He does offer a new—and what to most readers will be a startling—explanation of the growth of Whitman's power as a poet. According to Mr. Erskine, Walt Whitman met in New Orleans, in that mysterious time which his biographers have never wholly charted, a woman with whom he fell deeply in love. That she was an octaroon meant nothing to him.

According to Erskine, however, there were other things about her which meant "the start of the road" which Walt Whitman's genius took. Among these were that she was a brilliant woman educated in France, imbued with French literary and social graces, that she told him he must write about what he knew and in the language which he spoke, not out of the current American poetic lexicon. She gave him an understanding of slavery which made him no less eager for every man's freedom while he deplored a too sudden snapping of the bonds of southern slavery, and she gave him a son whom he never saw but thus fostered in him a sense of fatherhood.

Mr. Erskine makes no pretense of proving the major premise of Walt Whitman's love affair with Annette. If the reader accepts that, the book unfolds logically. If he cannot accept it, the ending of the book has a strange willfulness.

Except for the romance, the material Mr. Erskine uses and illumines is the accepted outline of Walt Whitman's life and character.

This Volume Completes Henry Adams' Letters.

"Letters of Henry Adams, 1892-1918," edited by Worthington Chauncey Ford. [Houghton Mifflin, $4.50.]

This final volume of the letters of Henry Adams, published eight years after the first volume, "completes the story of his life as told by himself," the editor declares.

It gives readers rich, intimate illumination on the author of one of the greatest of all American autobiographies, "The Education of Henry Adams," of the brilliant "Degredation of the Democratic Dogma," and of the satiric novel, "Democracy." Here, in his letters to his brothers, to his closest friends, to fellow thinkers, and to the world at greater large, Henry Adams' candid disapproval of his age and its ways, of his own failure to adjust life to his own ends, or himself to life's, is stated frankly.

Henry Adams was the kind of writer who put into his letters the best of his writing skill, the kind of letter writer as extinct today as a dinosaur. As one reads these fascinating documents one realizes even more than one did in reading his admittedly more formal work that to Henry Adams thought became clearer as it took tangible form under his pen. Thought is living in these pages. And the pages are not alone the reflection of a great personality but, viewed from our present day perspective, have a strangely prophetic importance. He foresaw the chaos of our day as he yerned to escape from the exigencies of his own, and did, into a passionate interest in the twelfth century.

Here are some of the quietest but most virulent words ever written about the political idols of his day, about Theodore Roosevelt for one, whom he found "exasperating even to me," and his egotism "mortifying beyond even drunkenness." From Henry Adams' ivory tower on Lafayette square the whole scene of his day is viewed with brilliant disapproving detachment.

Three adventurous autobiographies—of an engineer, an aviator, and a spy—comprise the above group of books.

John D. Littlepage, American mining engineer, spent nearly ten years as key man in Stalin's pet industry—gold mining. His vivid and frank recital of conditions in Asiatic Russia, as told by Demaree Bess, an American newspaper man, makes exciting and unusually authentic reading.

One is impressed with the tremendous possibilities of Siberia and also with what has been accomplished already. But for the future the author is a little dubious. He says: "So long as the soviet system remains in its present form it seems likely to produce one conspiracy after another and to discourage the initiative and enthusiasm which are necessary to progress."

In "Winged Highway" William Stephen Grooch modestly but vigorously tells of the important part he played in the development of Pan American air lines in South America and China. He already has told in "Skyway to Asia" of work he did in laying out the Pacific airway from California to the Philippines. His new book is lively reading, well illustrated, and has end paper maps.

"Secret Life of a Secret Agent" is rather slow getting under way—most of the book being an account of the government spy's tragic boyhood. But there are enough thrills in the latter part of the volume, when this anonymous agent gets into action, to make the book worth reading.

Travel Hodgepodge Gusty Entertainment.

"I Wanted to Travel," by John Gibbons. [Dodge, $3.]

Ed Sullivan, who looks at Hollywood for THE TRIBUNE, will tell you that in studio lingo a montage effect is one wherein a number of different bits of action are thrown on the screen at the same time, as if four or five projection machines were being operated at once.

"Montage" is the word for John Gibbons' book. To hear him tell it, the author spent long nights poring over time tables, travel brochures, and, presumably, all the output of the astounding Mr. Baedecker. This yen for travel finally was appeased and Mr. Gibbons does as do so many hungry persons—gorges himself. He eats pie with his cocktails and gravy with his salads. You're apt to find the French Foreign Legion tramping along the same page with the Lady of Lourdes; and with a swipe of the pen he can bring the Cape closer to Cairo than Siamese is to twin.

But "I Wanted to Travel" is fun. You may smile at his breathless and mistaken "discoveries." Yet you love it, particularly if you've traveled at all, for you recognize in Mr. Gibbons' hodgepodge a mirror of your own reactions to new places.

Holland Is Background for Historical Romance.

"The House of Tavelinck," by Jo van Ammers-Kuller. [Farrar & Rinehart, $3.]

Against the gaudy background of Holland and France in the last years of the eighteenth century Jo van Ammers-Kulier has drawn a massive historical romance. Plot and counterplot, the storming of cities, sacred and profane love, and the yielding of the old order to new are dramatically presented in more than 700 pages.

Dirk Egbert Tavelinck was the head of an old Dutch house. His youth ended when his father was murdered by a mob. Dirk always had dreamed of becoming a great military figure and the way was open in the torturing changes which swept the Netherlands and France.

Dirk was exiled to France and became a leader in the revolution. His younger brother, Gysbert, played an important rôle, too. In its scope this fine novel is similar to "Anthony Adverse," although it lacks the introspection of Hervey Allen's book.

Mozart and His Works Analyzed by a Scholar.

"Mozart: the Man and His Works," by W. J. Turner. [Knopf, $4.]

W. J. Turner, noted English critic, contends that Mozart is as much misunderstood and inadequately appreciated now as ever. In words devoid of hedging, he terms Mozart the greatest natural musical genius ever brought into the world. To him Mozart is comparable only to Shakespeare. By nature and work, and by the protean quality of their work, he says, the two have much affinity

In this scholarly, erudite biography every facet of Mozart's work is explored. The greater part of it is based on Mozart's letters, of which Mr. Turner gives his own translations [many had not been translated previously] because, he explains, he wished to give "an account of the man revealed as far as possible in his own words." The result is a refreshing analysis of his genius and of his works, both symphonic and operatic.

Obviously this biography is not for the layman. It is too crystal clear, too free from shoddy, cheap romanticizing, and, in the long run, too technical. The true student of music, however, should welcome and relish it.

Variety Offered in a Group of English Novels

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"English Rue," by Martin Hare. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

"Spring Always Comes," by Elizabeth Cambridge. [Putnam, $2.50.]

"Learn to Be a Lady," by Barbara Worsley-Gough. [Putnam, $2.]

These novels by English authors are all entertaining reading. Some are frankly romantic, with an Edwardian flavor; others are lightly witty and amusing.

"English Rue" is the story of Nan Naseby from her childhood in the Victorian era to the early part of the 20th century. The first part of the book pictures with nostalgic eloquence the spacious, comfortable life of a well-to-do English family in a seacoast town.

Nan is given her first blow when Roger, her childhood sweetheart, marries Linda Morrow. After much unhappiness he sees his mistake, divorces his wife, and asks Nan to marry him. This she refuses to do, as divorce in that day was a disgrace. Only after she has wed and been widowed does destiny unite their lives. Then, under a cloud, they live as exiles in the Austrian Tyrol.

Elizabeth Cambridge, in "Spring Always Comes," tells of an English family and the experiences of the children when they have to earn livings for themselves. One is a social worker, another a student at Oxford. Cecily is "good at games," and little Jasmine puts her heart on paper in the form of a novel, only to find that the man who wants to publish it considers it a first rate satire on a romantic theme.

The moving spirit behind the family is the father, who has died. The author paints a vivid portrait of him through the memories of his children and his wife, and through a young friend who is doing his biography.

In "The Devil in Satin" Dornford Yates writes about divorce and the havoc an unscrupulous woman can create within the law in England. Lord Elvin is the only person who feels young David Bohun's marriage may lead to misery. Before the peer dies he leaves a fund to stalk the woman his grandnephew has wed, and it is this money which later means heavsn or hell to the young barrister.

In a graphic courtroom scene in which Bohun's wife tries to make him out a monster Mr. Yates indulges in some lively melodrama. The day is saved by a clever trick.

"Learn to be a Lady" is a humorous, sketchy account of an English girl whose father is "in trade" and of her friendship with the various members of a most amazing old country family, the Hilary-Humes. They are a hard riding, argumentative, energetic lot from old Sir Harold, whose passion is horses, to young Angelica, who wants to set up in business and run a hat shop.

Descriptions of the hunt are full of chuckles, and the picture of King's Danger, the ancestral home of the Hilary-Humes, is both amazing and comical. The reader won't soon forget such a house.

CORRUPT—ALSO CONTENTED?

The lid was blown off in New Mexico by a grand jury indictment charging diversion of WPA funds, property, and services to private use in the political abuse of relief for the purposes of gang politics. Among others indicted were four relatives of Senator Dennis Chavez, the 100 per cent supporter of Mr. Roosevelt who would vote to annul the law of gravitation if the White House asked him to do it. As one of the truly good, Senator Chavez always signs himself "your most obedient servant." Until the blow-up this seraphic obedience was quite useful, as the charges in the indictment indicate. A federal grand jury has ordered the accused to trial.

Only yesterday, after this exposure in New Mexico, a federal grand jury in New Jersey indicted a large group of Jerseyites, charging conspiracy to defraud WPA of a quarter million dollars in stone and sand purchases for projects in that state devised and hallowed by Harry Hopkins.

The story of how the South Dakota relief records, four tons of them, were spirited out of the state in trucks at midnight to keep them from falling into the hands of investigators is now being told. A Republican governor had been elected and the New Dealers had to get the records of their turpitude out of the state to prevent a full discovery of what they had been doing.

In Brooklyn the Tammany co-workers of the truly good have stolen the records of police arrests just as the special prosecutor undertakes an investigation of the corruption. He displaces William F. X. Geoghan, the district attorney who had been protected by Gov. Lehman for two years in spite of the growing evidence that there was quite as much wrong in the administration of justice in his district as there had been in Manhattan, where Thomas Dewey was sending the protected racketeers to prison until the Tammany judge, Pecora, stopped the trial of Hines. That was reaching too high into the New Deal-Tammany political control.

In Pennsylvania Mr. Farley, Democratic national chairman, is making a supreme effort to put the New Deal mask of purity back on the faces of the political corruptionists whose fights over personal profit spilled all the kits of burglars' tools which had been used by the men of better purpose and superior good will. Mr. Farley thought that if he brought the boys together at a dinner and charged them a hundred dollars a plate for what they ate it wouldn't look like political carrion. He hopes no one will ask where each boy got his $100. The record would suggest that it was given by the WPA contractors, borrowed from gentlemen wanting special legislation, or extorted from WPA workers. Pennsylvania distresses Mr. Farley. It is as bad as New Mexico and much closer to Washington.

An investigation of Senator Guffey's letter to the WPA workers, advising them to come across, has been suppressed as immaterial and inopportune at the present moment, just as were Senator Berry's charges that the relief workers put their money on the line to defeat him in Tennessee. The New Deal smothered that but it also smothered the episode in which Senator Berry tried to get 5 million dollars for his marble claims out of the TVA.

The truly good know they must win this congressional election or they are done for. The public money will be taken away from them and they will not be able to use it again for the corruption of the electorate. They won't be able to do as they did in Kentucky and pay $300 a vote to nominate a candidate. They won't be able to continue the destitution of the United States as the controling political factor in its steady degeneration from democracy. They will not have a congress that clicks like a machine every time a button is pressed in the White House, and if they do not have such a congress they will be unable to continue their revolution. If they can't buy up this election they are lost.

OLD AND NEW VIENNA.

News of Vienna under Nazi rule must discomfort many of the elder generation, at least, who, whether they ever visited the Austrian capital or not, cherished its special qualities among cities. For them Vienna meant the city of the waltz, music, romantic love, the sensuous joy of living, untroubled by the passions that agonize and betray. It meant gemuetlichkeit. It meant, in short, all that Nazidom scorns and destroys.

No doubt this existence was rapidly fading, had largely faded, in the harsh air of Europe's present realities. No doubt at best it was partial and incomplete and its flowery parterre covered weaknesses and wrongs which could not endure the shock of forces now in possession of the European scene. The union of the Austrian with the Prussian, of the genial south with the battling north, will have its profits. At any rate, it seems that it was unescapable in the world as we find it in our time. Austria had become an anachronism, surviving only by grace of a balance of forces it could not control, economically and politically doomed to decay. It is possible to believe that its people will be the better in the material sense for its absorption into the more vital organization which has masterfully overrun their pleasant way, but they have lost values men have hoped and believed would not be sacrificed, but rather preserved and enlarged in the process of what we call civilization. We may recognize an inexorable evolution in the fate of Austria and of Vienna, but it is not an evolution we can observe without discomfort and concern. It has been apparent in the progression of mankind at many stages of the long path and it will remind us that what passes for a moment in the ages is not lost. But for us the passing of old Vienna, of old Austria, means the passing from the European scene of amenities, of a kindly worldliness, of a sophisticated way of living which western civilization among its many accomplishments was, we thought, destined to cultivate, support, and extend. They have little respect from parvenu dictatorships of the current varieties, struggling as yet for survival. Perhaps when the new tyrannies are secure and their privileges are familiar these old values will reappear.

THE MOSCOW VANGUARD.

When John Lewis restored the expelled vice presidents and secretary-treasurer of the Automobile Workers' union he gave the communists in the organization a victory over Homer Martin, the president. Martin had discharged the officials, holding them responsible for the inroads the communists had made and for the disorders which continued after agreements with the companies. Martin was obliged to submit to a conciliation of the internal difficulties by Philip Murray of the Steel Workers and Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Garment Workers. Lewis appointed them to straighten out the trouble and they did so by restoring the trouble makers.

The Dies committee in Washington heard many witnesses from Detroit on Thursday testifying to the success of the communists in penetrating the automobile workers' organization. The officers Lewis restored to position are known as fellow travelers. They are not members of the communist party but they permit communist control. The left wing Socialists who head some of the union locals have joined hands with the Stalinites. In spite of all Martin was able to do before Lewis turned against him the union was the spear head of the attempt to put the revolution inside key industries. Now it has been indorsed and strengthened by the head of the C. I. O.

Martin tried to use the organization for collective bargaining and industrial peace. The communists use it to break agreements, seize property, promote disorders, and stop production. They do not want a settlement of plant troubles, a resumption of production, and a return to employment. Revolutions come out of disorders and lack of employment.

The communists have the support of the C. I. O. The C. I. O. has the support of the federal government. The labor board in its recent order against the Republic Steel company said that the violent acts committed by the strikers were provoked in the bitter industrial strife by the threats of the company. Therefore these acts of violence were condoned. The board might have added that they also were protected.

That's all the communists would want to know.

SCENERY.

The conventional notion of scenery is chiefly expressed in mountains, cataracts, storm headlands. The grandiose elements in natural beauty share our applause with the milder appeals of the bucolic beauty of meandering streams, fertile meadows, and pleasant woodlands, but the dramatic phases of nature put these charmers into the background and many people who live among them are hardly aware of their appeal. The poet and painter may and usually do prefer them, but the tour director and, we suppose, his clients pass them by with little enthusiasm.

Possessors of scenery in this conventional sense are rather condescending to the modest claims of regions where there are quieter and less urgent features of nature. Mountain lovers find the great stretches of the midcontinent uninspiring, though they are thrilled by the sea. Prairie land wakes no other emotion than boredom in these quarters, though sensitive dwellers of the plains would not exchange them for picturesque hills and wave beaten coasts.

But there is one season in which even the most commonplace western landscape takes on a beauty which will not be patronized or ignored, and this year we have had a prolonged and glorious example. The midwest is nobly blessed with trees and in the autumn the scene dresses itself in a pageantry of color. Here is scenery that the dullest sense must respond to and the narrowest definition accept.

There is advantage, of course, in the hills on which this splendid tapestry is hung, but the prairie country is not flat but generously undulating and clothes itself now in a carpet effectually displayed. To the rhythm of its long waves, dear to the westerner, is joined the varied music of rich color and the spirit of man rises upon the tide of a deep joy.

Editorial of the Day

[Davenport Times.]

Agricultural bankruptcy lies at the end of the New Deal road. The latest subsidy has been made imperative because of the collapse of the farm program. Through it the New Dealers seek to overcome the adverse political effect in the corn belt of the ruinous slump in farm prices. On the eve of the congressional elections the Roosevelt administration, with its characteristic disregard of the cost involved, indulges in another gesture of palliation. Another raid is made upon the federal treasury to perpetuate the New Deal. Uncle Sam, the world's largest cotton owner, now becomes the world's greatest corn buyer.

It must be plain to the dullest school child that as these surpluses in the government's hands continue to grow disaster and bankruptcy for agriculture are brought nearer. Eventually these surpluses must be dumped upon the market and when that time comes the corn and cotton growers will pay a bitter price for the false economic theories underlying the whole New Deal farm program.

The farming industry will escape the approaching catastrophe only as the rural voters of the nation get rid of the experimenters at Washington. In so far as they succumb to blandishments which merely put off the evil day they make the inevitable crash the most complete and ruinous.

This attempt to bribe the corn growers of the nation must be repugnant even to those who take advantage of the liberalized loan conditions. They would be silly if they did not make the most of the offer, but to approve the economic fallacy underlying it by voting a return to office of men who are parties to this bold and dishonorable bid for political support is to approve a policy which carries within itself the seeds of ruin of agriculture and our whole economic system.

TISKET AND TASKET.

In the hope of enlightening a nation that is squirming with curiosity about the meaning of the words "tisket" and "tasket," which are now being sung to death, we have spent a sleepless night of research to no avail. If you believe that dictionary makers know everything about the English language, you must face the strange fact that there ain't no such words. Then, perhaps, you will stop singing them, and that will be a great help.

* * *

Webster, Funk & Wagnall's, the great Oxford, and compilations of slang, phrase and fable, contain neither "tisket" nor "tasket." These words have been chanted by English speaking children at playtime for centuries; they have been a commonplace in the nursery games of ourselves and our ancestors; but that makes no difference to the pundits. They call them nonsense words, which is more or less true, and consign them to oblivion. The spoken language, however, keeps them very much alive. If Chaucer or Shakespeare or any of the classic writers had happened to include them in their texts, as nonsense, the dictionaries would have hopped upon them like nighthawks on a June bug, and discoursed at length about their theoretical meanings and etymology.

* * *

But note the "green and yellow basket" that accompanies these twin mysteries. A basket is a container. "Tisket" seems related to the obsolete and rare verb, "tiss," to weave, to arrange with light touches. "Tasket" may easily be akin, as a diminutive, to "tasse," a small pocket or pouch. . . . "I sent a letter to my love and on the way I lost it"—out of the "tasse" or "tasket," of course.

That's all that we can do with this problem. Any suggestions from the Line's community of scholars?

SONNET TO SANITY.

Signs of returning sanity I see:
The girls, at last, are doing up their hair
And many evidence a worthy flair
For trifles touched by femininity
Becoming to their natures. View with glee
Displayed on yonder shapely foot a pair
Old-fashioned gowns reveal simplicity.

Sweet sanity's return is not confined
To womanhood. We see it well defined
In thrifty woods, harmonious with fall,
In winging birds and crimson leaves and all
Wise Nature's ways. The LINE'S well-measured track

BACK TO OLD KENTUCK.

There's a purty gal a-settin' an' I know she thinks o' me.

Call me back to old Kentucky
And those sunny careless days
Ploddin' through the dusty meadow
Where the lazy cattle graze,
With a cane across my shoulder
An' a hook an' line an' reel,
An' a little barefoot lady
Trudging always at my heel.

Swedish Ambrosia.

It is delicious—"nypon soppa"—the "y" is pronounced like "u" in French "du." I know, because I ate it in my uncle's home in Smaland where sturdy red cottages nestle cozily against a background of spruce and pine timber, and sparkling lakes and flower-decked meadows reflect the cool sunshine of azure skies. And over all broods the quietness and contentment of peace-loving Swedes. The ripe berries of the wild rose are dried and boiled. The juice is strained, thickened to the consistency of thin gruel and sweetened. Eaten with a little thick cream and crushed rusks it has the taste of roses. It is a dish fit for kings—and food-loving Swedes. Ruth G.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH.

Shed me no tears for the joy that is banished,
Sing me no dirge for the day that is done.
There comes a new joy for each that is vanished;
There dawns a new day with each rising sun;
New tasks to master, and new friends to try.
What has been, is no more. Peace! Let it die!

MOTTLED TEETH IN CHILDREN.

WITHIN recent years we have all become more particular about appearance. One may have rather ill formed features and yet present a pleasing countenance if the teeth are white, regular, and attractive. The smile of the movie idol would be a delusion, even a horror, were his mouth filled with crooked, discolored, or misshapen teeth.

About two decades ago many instances of a peculiar, brownish staining of the enamel were reported. In some patients pits were observed resembling tiny excavations which ruined the normal contour of the structures. Naturally, the situation attracted much attention and it did not take long to determine that fluorine in the water was the causative factor.

Although the occurrence of this element is world-wide, nevertheless, its presence in sufficient quantities to cause mottling is predominantly west of the Mississippi. H. T. Dean states that in a section of west Texas a high percentage of the thousands of children residing in this district are afflicted. Already in twenty-five states 335 positive areas have been mapped. A number of places have been found in Iowa and Illinois, but fortunately the inhabitants of none of the large cities of these states have been stricken.

The condition has become of such moment that in certain localities special drinking water is supplied. This seems to be necessary, as any attempt to get rid of the material in the public supply is too expensive.

What is fluorine? It is a chemical element which in its natural state is a gas. When combined with hydrogen it forms an acid [hydrofluoric] which must be kept in wax bottles. The reason is that it destroys glass. Because of this property it is used for etching upon glass where cutting tools are not employed. We can understand, therefore, that if the body contains enough of this principle it would be likely to attack the hardest tissue in the body—namely, tooth enamel. This powerful chemical exists in combination with sodium, calcium, silicon, or copper. But in whatever form it may be found, enough may be in solution to cause difficulty.

Fortunately, adults can move to fluorine producing sections with impunity as the water—to do damage—must be either drunk or used in cooking during the period when the "ivories" are undergoing calcification. In children, normal teeth when they emerge from the gums are smooth, glossy, and creamy white in color. Those in fluorine-ridden regions—when they erupt—are dull and chalky white, and soon take on the characteristic brown stain which is likely to increase with age.

How much is required to bring on the symptoms? If there is one part per million only a small number of boys and girls will be bothered, but with six parts per million every child using the fluid will exhibit the disorder. If there are 2½ parts per million, 75 per cent will show definite signs of destruction and the remaining 25 per cent some slight indications.

Here are the rules for prevention: Every child under 8 years of age must use both food and water free from this element. This may mean the use of rain or distilled water. While compounds such as magnesium oxide will precipitate the offending substance, this is quite too costly for commercial use. Bone filters have been recommended and may be helpful. What is really needed is some sort of filtration device that can be attached to a faucet.

It must be emphasized that the injury comes during the growing period. Should a single case be noted in a neighborhood a laboratory examination of the water will disclose not only the composition of the liquid but the percentage of the several ingredients. There are probably other affected parts of our country which have not as yet been identified.

ABOUT THYMUS GLAND.

Mrs. H. writes:

1. Does an enlarged thymus gland affect a child's mentality?

2. What does heavy breathing and blueness around the mouth indicate?

REPLY.

1. No. If the gland is enlarged and fails to shrink normally the child may exhibit lowered resistance and hence be prone to pick up infections. Lymph tissue throughout the body is usually increased in amount.

2. Possibly some heart abnormality. If the thymus is found enlarged after an X-ray examination and is embarrassing breathing, the overgrowth of tissue may be controled by one or two light X-ray exposures.

WHEN RETINA DETACHES.

H. B. writes: What is detachment of the retina? Can it be cured?

REPLY.

Detachment of the retina means that this important layer has become loosened from its normal bed. Much can be done by means of a delicate operation. Bubbles form occasionally behind this membrane. The operation is designed to relay the lifted portions.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am thinking of purchasing a lot in Du Page county for a nominal sum on a contract of which the owner [1] feels he could not afford to stand the expense of having a letter of opinion brought up to date.

I understand this party had previously owned property in Cook county and [2] has a few small judgments filed against him there.

3. At the present time these judgments are not filed in Du Page county.

4. Would I be liable for these judgments after acquiring this lot if they are transferred to Du Page county at a later date? R. E. N.

1. In a substantial proportion of these cases in which a seller tries to persuade a purchaser to rely on the seller's word that the title is good, the title is in fact bad.

2. This would be an additional reason for making sure that the title is good.

3. How do you know this?

4. In general, a Cook county judgment would not be a lien in Du Page county, unless a transcript was recorded there, but the safest way to make sure would be by having the abstract brought down and having an attorney examine it.

NEPOTISM.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—One can find precedent in American history for almost everything except third terms or permanent occupancy of the White House. Witness this from the diary of John Quincy Adams, under date Sept. 7, 1842 [referring to the President, John Tyler]:

Capt. Tyler's two sons are to him what nephews have usually been to the Pope, and among his minor vices is nepotism. He has quartered both of them upon the public for salaries, and made old Cooper, the broken-down stage player, father of his son Robert's wife, a military storekeeper; the son John was so distended with his dignity as secretary that he had engraved on his visiting cards "John Tyler Jr., private and confidential secretary of his excellency John Tyler, President of the United States." HENRY HOOD.

WHY SUCH A HURRY?

Eureka, Ill., Oct. 20.—It is interesting to note the extreme anxiety with which Secretary of State Hughes is urging auto drivers to hurry in their money for their 1939-1941 driver's licenses. One would be led to think, judging by Mr. Hughes' urgence, that the supply of licenses might run out. The only benefit by being in such a hurry is that it will give the office of the secretary of state thousands of dollars to use politically in the coming few weeks; there is no advantage to any car driver in having an Illinois driver's license now, because the law does not go into effect until next May 1.

Hold on to your money as long as you can. Next May 1 will be plenty of time to send in your application. The law, no doubt, will be changed before that time. A. E. POTTS.

A GRANDIOSE ROOSEVELT SCHEME.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 18.—Two or three years ago the President made a triumphal trip through the Tennessee valley shouting about making the TVA a yardstick to measure the rates of the wicked public utility companies.

TVA has ended up, like all the grandiose Roosevelt schemes, in failure. It is estimated that the war on public utility companies by the New Deal has kept back the spending of 2 or 3 billions of dollars by them and the unemployment of thousands of men. The sad part of it all is that the investments and incomes of thousands of people, most of them elderly and retired, have been wiped out. Our government has been Tammanyized and millions of workers have been taught to become moochers and panhandlers. C. J. M.

PORTAGE PARK CAR RIDERS.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Your editorial headed, "A Limit to Patience," was read to the members of the Portage Park club at its regular meeting on Saturday. Our organization felt that this article was timely and to the point.

To the people of the northwest side the transportation question is a "headache." The system is inadequate, ancient, and costly. The rolling stock screams to heaven for relief! The street cars on Irving Park and Milwaukee avenues are at least thirty years old; they are unsanitary and slow. Nothing has been done in the last twenty years to remedy this situation. Although vast sums of money are taken out of the pockets of car riders and paid to experts, our aldermen seem to be helpless in solving this situation.

Several years ago people, now living on the northwest side, were lured to invest in homes there because a traction ordinance was passed at the time which promised adequate transportation. Later on, for some unknown reason, this ordinance was set aside and nothing has been done to give the promised relief to the car riders.

THOMAS J. MCCORMICK,
President, Portage Park Progress Club.

A BRIEF FOR THE BARBER.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Replying to those who criticize the barber trade: One must be an eighth grade graduate and attend a certified barber school for a certain number of hours and then take an examination to become an apprentice.

We work 77½ hours a week, not counting the overtime. We have one day a week off, besides six national holidays for which we work overtime the night before. No vacations with pay.

One letter suggests twelve shaves and a hair cut for $2.50, which would take about three and one-half hours of steady work or a little better than 60 cents per hour.

You step into the bathroom in the morning, wash your face, grab a safety and mow 'em down. At a reduced price we would only get the more tough bearded ones while the easy ones would still shave themselves.

As for the man who complained because he was clipped too high, why not go to a barber who understands the American language and explain to him what you desire? Maybe that neckline starts high on your head and not on your neck. We lose customers because we do not take off enough as well as taking off too much. B. P. R.

TO A GROUP OF GHOULS.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—For the sake of common decency I am writing this for the benefit of the parties who this afternoon, like vultures seeking their prey, picked up tools and other automobile accessories strewn along the railroad right of way after the terrible accident at Harlem avenue and the North Western railroad tracks. May the sight of those mangled bodies haunt you whenever you use these tools and parts. May it be often.

OUR CLAY HAS VALUE.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—I am surprised that our brilliant engineers' minds have not solved the question of the clay which will be encountered during the subway construction. They say that approximately 2 million tons will be encountered to be disposed of.

Having had considerable experience with clays and their mineral content, I know that these clays will prove to contain valuable matter; that from tests that have been made in analyzing same, they carry from 10 to 15 per cent of aluminum oxide; in many cases this content will go up to 30 per cent.

If these clays were found in any of the progressive foreign countries they would extract the aluminum and use the residue for either low grade bricks or road material.

These clays of ours are of value and should be considered from an economical standpoint. F. C. WORTH.

IF WALLACE KEEPS ON.

Burlington, Ia., Oct. 18.—The President has been badly misinformed as to the farm situation. What little the Washington so-called farm experts know about farming is a detriment to them and has proven disastrous to the United States as a whole.

If Wallace remains in office he will bankrupt the country as he did his father's successful farm paper when he took it over.

Why did we import millions of bushels of wheat, corn and rye when the same grade of wheat was selling for 40 cents more in Canada than in the United States?

Wallace is trying to regiment the farmers of this country as the communists did in Russia. Now the Russians are living on a starvation basis.

HERBERT S. CHITTENDEN.

HE SEES THE INTENT—CLEARLY.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—As day by day I observe THE TRIBUNE'S blind, unreasoning attacks on the Roosevelt administration I am forced to conclude that its sole purpose in so doing is to revive an outmoded Republicanism at the expense of a humanitarian democracy.

Even a layman can detect the intent. The formula is as simple as A B C. If THE TRIBUNE can create dissension, arouse suspicion, bring back poverty to the masses, give birth to want and need—it is only reasonable to assume that the people will demand a change. In your case you reason the change must be to Republicanism.

I say the change could be the out and out communism so familiar to a starving populace a few years ago. P. C. T.

WHERE ARE THOSE JOBS?

Chicago, Oct. 18.—All you guys who line up every morning to get a shovel like myself and line up again to give it back:

Are you satisfied with this life or, like me, do you think we deserve a higher standard of living? Where are our jobs that were promised should be brought back?

If this present administration thinks it can keep on hoodwinking us with this $55 a month, it is going to be fooled at the polls. I'm not a Red or a communist, but just an ordinary citizen who is beginning to size things up a bit. Come on, shovel leaners, get 'em out of there and go to work. E. M. ROBINSON.

FAKE ARSON CASE DEFERRED UNTIL AFTER ELECTION

Judge Grants New Delay Despite Protest.

Judge John J. Rooney in Felony court yesterday again continued the application for warants for State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas and a group of amateur sleuths who are charged with beating and frightening confessions out of two men in the notorious fake arson case. At the request of attorneys, who appeared for the first time in the case, the judge continued the hearing until Nov. 15, after election day.

The warants have been sought for seventeen days by Attorney Joseph T. Harrington in behalf of Frank Kolesiak and Emil Guerrieri. They testified under oath before Judge Rooney that Coultas and his group forced them to give fake confessions that they caused the fire in the Center hotel on West Madison street last April in which eight men were burned to death. The judge has been hearing the applications piecemeal.

Session Proves Boisterous.

The session yesterday was the most boisterous of all. The attorneys for both sides bandied charges of "ulterior motives" and at times even indulged in personalities. The request for a continuance until after election day came from Attorney Francis X. Busch, who appeared to represent Coultas.

The heated session ended with Attorney Harrington addressing the court in a booming voice in response to a jibe from Attorney George Crane, representing Policeman Sol Corsi of the Maxwell street station, one of those allegedly involved. Harrington said:

"I am going to get my warants or you will violate your oath of office."

Attorney Edward G. Woods, representing the Illinois Printing and Publishing company, which was ordered to produce records on a subpena, was the first to suggest a continuance. He pleaded prior legal engagements, which would keep him busy for two or three weeks. He said he did not want to produce "the photographs, expense accounts, and other records" called for in the subpena until he had a right to question the judge's authority to issue the document. Attorney Harrington had no objection to this.

Spares Judge During Election.

The next spokesman was Attorney Busch, who made it plain that he did not want the judge to have to make a decision involving public officials during the heat of an election campaign. The judge is a candidate for reëlection on the Democratic ticket. Attorneys Busch and Harrington started to tangle from the start.

"Can't I proceed without these flea bites?" Busch asked of the judge as Harrington kept questioning his right to appear.

"Before this court is used for any ulterior purposes, the court should weigh this matter very carefully," continued Busch. "I want this matter to go over until after election. The prosecution may be something other than what it appears on the surface. These confessed firebugs . . ." [referring to Kolesiak and Guerrieri].

Attorney Harrington immediately interrupted.

"You had better be careful of what you call my clients in view of what has already happened," he said belligerently.

Charges Restraint of Duty.

Attorney Roscoe Bonjean, Coultas' assistant and one of those for whom a warant is sought, then charged that an effort was being made to stop state officials from doing their duty.

"I suppose you should pin a medal on them [referring to those for whom warants are asked] for committing the worst crime I know of in my twenty-five years at the bar," said Attorney Harrington when he was given a chance to speak. "I intend to file conspiracy charges against these men for conspiring to send two innocent orphan boys to the electric chair.

"Every step I have taken in this matter has been beset with obstacles. I intend to fight until I get warants for the culprits who committed this dastardly crime. And I think we should finish this hearing on the warants today or Monday at the latest. I do not see what election has to do with the matter."

Attorney Crane then spoke in behalf of Policeman Corsi asking that no warant be issued for the policeman until after a full hearing. Corsi is alleged to have aided the amateur sleuths in kidnaping and frightening Guerrieri into confessing. He made no report to the police department.

Argue For Two Hours.

The judge after listening to nearly two hours of arguments between the lawyers finally said he thought the request for a continuance until after election was reasonable and set Nov. 15 as the date. Attorney Harrington tried to have some of the witnesses summoned to court testify, but the judge "said he would do nothing until Nov. 15."

"I am sorry I must waste your time, but the judge says otherwise and he is the boss," said Attorney Harrington as he told his witnesses they would have to return for the seventeenth session on Nov. 15.

Gov. Horner is investigating Coultas' conduct in the case.

COULTAS' VICTIM FREED BY JURORS OF ARSON CHARGE

Tells of Torture by State Marshal.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—William Rath, on trial on an arson charge for the third time in the last thirteen months, was acquitted tonight by a Circuit court jury. The verdict was returned before Judge L. E. Stone after six hours of deliberation.

Rath's defense which brought acquittal was that State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas tortured him into signing a false confession to firing two buildings which Rath owned.

Coultas Accused Here.

Similar tactics are charged against Coultas and his associates in the notorious fake arson case in Chicago. Emil Guerrieri and Frank Kolesiak accuse Coultas and several amateur sleuths of beating them until they confessed setting a fire last April in the Center hotel on West Madison street in Chicago. Eight men died in the blaze.

The Cook county grand jury refused to indict Kolesiak and Guerrieri and the two men are now seeking warants against Coultas and nine other men.

Lawyer Tells of Brutality.

Rath's first trial for arson was thrown out of court here on a legal technicality. The second trial resulted in a deadlocked jury.

In final arguments to the jury today, Rath's attorney, A. M. Fitzgerald, charged that Coultas' methods of obtaining a confession "surpassed even the Spanish inquisition."

STRANGE THINGS HAPPEN AT NIGHT UP IN WAUKEGAN

It started out just like any other delivery for John Campbell, colored, who is 23 years old and works for a drug store in Waukegan. He was to take two quarts of ice cream and a quart of root beer to the home of Dr. Percival Pearce at 305 Glendenning place. This was very early yesterday morning.

It was dark at the Pearce home when John arrived, but a man stepped out of the shadows and took the things. He asked if John had any change. John hadn't. The man then asked John for whatever bills he had. John refused. Then the man said, "Well, help me get my car out of the garage."

John was helping pry the door open when another car drove up. In it was Dr. Pearce. The stranger ran. John stayed. The police came. John explained. The store corroborated his story. The ice cream melted. Everybody went to bed.

LETTERS REVEAL DOROTHY HALE'S PLAN TO END LIFE

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Two letters written by Mrs. Dorothy Hale gave evidence tonight that she had planned her death.

The actress plunged to her death early this morning from her apartment on the 16th floor of Hampshire House, overlooking Central Park. Her death came after an afternoon of gayety at a cocktail party and a theater party at night.

One of the letters was found by police among a disordered array of papers in the apartment. Although not addressed to any one, it was obviously intended for Mrs. Hale's sister, Elizabeth Donovan of Pittsburgh. The letter was dated Sept. 14. It gave instructions for disposal of her possessions and "absolved every one" of blame for her death.

Attorney Receives Letter.

Attorney John H. Vincent disclosed he had received the second letter at his office on lower Broadway from Mrs. Hale. The letter was postmarked 7 a. m. today. The contents of the letter were not made public.

Mrs. Hale, who was 33 years old, and a social favorite, was the widow of Gardner Hale, Chicago mural painter, who was killed in an automobile accident in California in 1931. Last spring she was introduced by James Roosevelt, son of the President, to WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

A few weeks later their engagement was reported. Neither, however, would discuss the report and friends took it for granted. After learning of her death Hopkins went into seclusion at the President's Hyde Park home. Friends said he was deeply shocked.

Gives Party for Envoy.

Friends of Mrs. Hale said she had seemed cheerful yesterday at a party she gave in her apartment for Lawrence A. Steinhardt, United States minister to Peru. In the evening she had attended the theater, later joining a party of friends at the Twenty-One club.

Mrs. Hale's body landed on the sidewalk of Central Park south, in front of the apartment hotel. She still wore the black satin evening gown and a corsage of roses of the evening before.

The theater had occupied Mrs. Hale's attention since she was 16 when she left home to seek a career on Broadway and got a job as a chorus girl in "Lady Be Good."

She then married T. Gaillard Thomas II., millionaire clubman, and maintained salons in Paris and at Southampton. She became interested in sculpture, and shared a studio with Estelle Manville, now Princess Bernadotte of the Swedish royal family.

Goes In for Film Career.

Later, divorcing Thomas, she married Hale, the brilliant young American who led the revival of fresco and mural art in Paris in 1927.

He left her about $60,000, and after his death she went to Hollywood to try for a movie career. Meeting Samuel Goldwyn at a dinner in 1932, she was cast for the rôle of the sophisticated young wife in the picture "Cynara," playing opposite Ronald Colman.

Broadway attracted her most, however, and she kept hoping for a big rôle on the legitimate stage. Most of the parts offered her, however, were small.

It was then that she was hailed as a movie find. She next got a part in "Catherine the Great."

OBITUARIES

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Oct. 21.—Arthur Schuschnigg, father of Kurt Schuschnigg, the former chancellor of Austria, was found dead in bed in his home here today. It is believed he died of heart disease in his sleep. He was 73 years old and held the honorary rank of field marshal-lieutenant, conferred on him while his son was chancellor. He had retired from the army some years previously with the rank of major general. Surviving are two sons, Kurt and Arthur Jr.—the latter some twelve years younger than the former chancellor. No mention of his death appeared in any Vienna newspaper.

Albert J. Fisher.

Albert J. Fisher, an architect, died in his home at 7128 North Bell avenue yesterday after a long illness. He was 76 years old. Mr. Fisher, who was born in Cincinnati, O., was formerly associated with the firm of Fisher & Gaul, which designed many Catholic churches. Surviving are his widow, Rose; a daughter, Marcella B. DEMAND FORMAL REPLY ON A.M.A.'S HOSPITAL ACTION

The American Medical association was asked yesterday to make clear its objections to proceedures at the Cook County hospital and to give its reasons for dropping the hospital from its approved list. The request was contained in a letter sent by Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, to Dr. Irvin Abell, president of the A. M. A., and members of the A. M. A. council on medical education and hospitals.

Smith asked for a detailed report of the proceedings which led the A. M. A. to ban the hospital last summer. He said that the county board is in fact the governing board of trustees for the hospital.

The American College of Surgeons also banned the hospital from its approved list early this week. Hospital authorities had not received any formal notice of the A. C. S. action yesterday.

Clews in Slaying

Police discovered three new clews and arrested a paroled convict yesterday in their search for two wanton gunmen who shot and killed Policeman John A. Olson Thursday morning during a $2,000 holdup.

The clews are a blue jacket with a zipper front, a felt hat, and a .38 caliber revolver. They were found in an alley behind 1619 North Springfield avenue, several blocks from the shooting. The jacket and hat are believed to be those worn by the bandit who shot Policeman Olson. The revolver was sent to the city's crime detection laboratories for fingerprint and ballistics tests. One gunman shot Olson as the policeman chased the gunman's pal, who was fleeing with the $2,000 seized from the cashier of an insurance office at 3909 North avenue.

The parolee is Gustav Schafernack, alias Joseph Schmidt. He works in a fruit market across the street from the scene of the shooting. He was seized early yesterday by West North avenue police in connection with an attempted purse snatching Wednesday night.

Revolver found near where Olson was slain.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE will be three young and comely matrons in the receiving line at the Assembly ball on Dec. 16 who never have been in that line before. Yesterday Solomon Byron Smith, Edison Dick, and A. Watson Armour III. were elected to fill the places left vacant on the board of governors by the retirement of Arthur Meeker, Morris Leidy Johnston, and Harold F. McCormick.

Mrs. Smith is the former Barbara Neff, Mrs. Dick was Miss Jane Warner, and Mrs. Armour was Miss Jean Schweppe. Young Mrs. Armour also will be receiving at the Bachelors and Benedicts ball on Thanksgiving eve, for her husband is a member of that committee. The Assembly this year is to be given on the fourth floor of the Palmer house. Dexter Cummings will have charge of the decorations of the several rooms in which the party will be given.

Gallery Shows Collection by French Artists

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

One of the most beautiful exhibitions in town this month is that of nineteenth and twentieth century French paintings at the Quest Galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue. The show will continue to Nov. 5.

Mr. Quest has succeeded in getting together a notable group of brilliant pictures. Chief among them from the decorative and imaginative standpoint is the beautiful panel of butterflies by Redon. This is a gorgeous piece of impressionistic painting, full of subtle gleaming golden tones, a wave of intriguing dull shades picked out by well designed and exquisitely painted butterflies.

Second in its appeal is the fascinating portrait of a woman in a black dress and hat with pink roses by Manet, an expressive and rare canvas, gloriously handled. Near it is a tiny Renoir, a woman with flowers, delicate and tender, and across from it is a larger Renoir, the "Portrait of a Young Girl," plain of face, but wearing a delicious hat.

A lovely Pissarro landscape, "Woman with Dog in the Fields," is hung near by and beside it is a magnificent still life of pears, apples, and grapes by Derain. Across the gallery is a radiant "Lily Pond," by Monet, subtle and delicate in color. The beautiful group of mother and children by Mary Cassatt is one of the most charming paintings you will find in many a year of gallery going.

In the adjoining gallery are a number of intriguing water colors and drawings. The pencil sketch by Matisse of a woman in Turkish dress is not to be overlooked and the amusingly simple landscape with trees by Dufy is captivating.

Famous Dress Design Given Style Encore

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Good things are worth a repeat performance. So the Bramley dress of some years ago has returned. The comeback is a break for the career girls. These smart, snappy, well tailored daytime clothes once rated high in the affections of the budgeteers. They're ideal dresses for office wear and for spectator sports under fur trimmed coats or fur coats.

Green and rust wool are used for two good looking models. The skirts are flared without too much width around the lower edge. The blouse top fits like a uniform jacket and there are shallow scalloped edges down each side. Belts are wide and swanky and of the same material as the dress.

Another dress has pigskin flat buttons and a matching pigskin narrow belt for contrasts. Some of the models come in two pieces, a clever skirt and snug fitted jacket blouse, trimmed simply with dark toned braid.

All good fall colors are available, with plenty of navy blues and some of the best looking blacks you've lost your heart to. Pleated all the way 'round skirts are stitched down for hip smoothness. The blouses have fake flap pockets on the chest and a row of gold metal square cut buttons down the front.

The slim tailored black dresses are ready for the accessory combine tricks. These ideal basic wardrobe dresses come in sheers and in less thin wool. All are smart; the youngest looking finds in town and all have a price mark near seventeen dollars.

Miss Mechem in Debut Dress

Miss Barbara Mechem as she appeared when she made her debut at a tea at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mechem, in Lake Forest. Her gown is a stunning one of white satin, the full skirt smocked by hand. The same gown was modeled in the St. Luke's fashion show by Debutante Betty Mead, who made her debut the same day as Miss Mechem. Miss Mead's own debut dress was a clinging one of gold satin and she carried green orchids. She carried a scarlet velvet muff with the white gown she wore in the St. Luke's show. Miss Mechem wore a smart street outfit in the fashion show.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Gangstering on the Khybar pass, no less, is what our eyes behold in this gorgeous technicolor production featuring little Indian Sabu, whom you will fondly remember as the Elephant Boy.

Sabu, whose salary per day was a cup of rice [so they tell me] while working on his first picture, has lived and learned and earned considerable since his advent into movie pictures. . . . The highly intelligent little fellow has responded brilliantly to tutoring, which has in no way taken the bloom from his natural charm, and he carries with grace and clan the important rôle that's fallen to his lot in "Drums."

He is a small prince, whose Khan papa has been assassinated by his royal uncle, the mad dreamer, Prince Ghul. . . . Ghul visions complete control of India and plots to wipe out the British with whom his father had made peace treaties.

It becomes Prince Azim's duty and pleasure to carry on as his dad would have done. . . . His loyalty is bound to the foreigners by ties of friendship and gratitude. . . . For a drummer boy has become his pal and taught him a certain signal on the drums that is to be his S. O. S. call should he ever need aid, and lovely Mrs. Carruthers, wife of the leading officer, has bound up wounds inflicted on him by an enemy. . . . So—Azim to the rescue when rescue is needed.

An awful little liar, Azim, as the picture opens! His reputation for untruthfulness almost prevents him from saving the day. Because the governor finds it hard to believe, at a critical moment, the fantastic—but true—story a small boy tells him.

But Sabu is nothing if not resourceful, and so Prince Ghul's machine gun attack, while terrible and deadly, fails to be the all conquering coup he had anticipated. And gangster in chief and his cohorts come to the sort of end that attends most public enemies.

Supporting young Sabu is a cast of much distinction. That magnificent English actor, Raymond Massey, proves a fascinating and formidable villain. . . . Quiet spoken Roger Livesey is forceful, intelligent, and very, very brave as Capt. Carruthers. . . . Lovely Valerie Hobson as his bride—the only white woman in those parts—portrays delightfully a gracious and gallant lady. And how you'll love young Desmond Tester as the mischievous drummer boy!

Photographically the film is a knockout! Much of it was actually made in the Khybar pass and the scenery is breath taking. AND if you think those British in their red coats, and the Scotch troops in their kilties aren't something to see—get an eyeful and change your minds.

Believable dialog, action that abounds in drama and suspense and the finest of direction has "Drums." Yes, and there are plenty of laughs, too.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Behind the Scenes.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 21.—At the time that Norma Shearer was deliberating whether to play Scarlett O'Hara, she was as close to total eclipse as she ever will be in her entire career. . . . The country was up in arms against her.

On the afternoon in her dressing room that I gave her an hour and half sales talk as to why she should decline the rôle, I told her that her popularity would shoot up immediately if she announced her declination of the part of Scarlett. . . . That is exactly what happened.

La Shearer's current box office success in "Marie Antoinette" is in token of the fans' changed attitude. . . . Just between you and me, Hollywood thought that this picture would be one of the most expensive flops of the current season. . . . The fans have converted it into one of the huge successes of the M.-G.-M. calendar year.

It is interesting to study the pictures which are doing big business throughout the country. . . . "Marie Antoinette" is one. . . . "Boys' Town" is a second. . . . "You Can't Take It with You" is a third. . . . Warner's "Four Daughters" is a fourth. . . . Deanna Durbin's "That Certain Age" is a fifth. . . . "Too Hot to Handle" is the sixth. . . . The seventh is a freak, a reissue of "Dracula" and "Frankenstein." . . . "Stablemates" is the eighth.

Three of these are down-to-earth, homey entertainment—"Boys' Town," "You Can't Take It with You," and "Four Daughters," which present modern emotional problems that are familiar to all audiences. . . . The trend is more and more to this type of entertainment. . . . Movie authors might ponder on the success of this type of story because they are rooted in believability. . . . The characters are human beings, not people reading lines that are unbelievable and insincere.

"Boys' Town" is as warming in its emotion as a drink of old brandy. . . . Hollywood critics, in their monthly poll, named it as the best picture of the last thirty days' releases. . . . Named Spencer Tracy as the best actor of the month.

Last year's academy award winner, fighting to hold on to his championship, has done splendidly in the two rôles he has handled. . . . As the mechanic in "Test Pilot," Tracy was not far away from the mark. . . . His Father Flannagan characterization is the last but one that Tracy will let fly at the academy award. . . . He does "New York Cinderella" with Hedy La Marr next, in which he plays the part of a doctor.

Quite forgotten in the rush of fine performances of the year is one that should not be overlooked. . . . I refer to Pat O'Brien's grand make-believing in "Garden of the Moon," best musical of the season with the exception of "Alexander's Ragtime Band." . . . O'Brien turned in a rousing performance. . . . Contributed in a bigger picture it would have had him up there battling for academy distinction.

Paramount's "Men with Wings," long awaited, came to the preview test a few hours ago at the Westwood Village theater. . . . I found it to be disappointing. . . . Fred MacMurray might have held the picture together, but his performance was wooden and uninspired. . . . This was not entirely his fault, as I doubt that even a Paul Muni could have injected meaning and enthusiasm in the lines that were written for him.

In stressing photography over human values, they forgot the truest line that was ever written: "The play's the thing." . . . Background, however exciting, should never overshadow the story or the principals in it.

Walt Disney is envied by all of the movie magnates of this town. . . . They are fond of pointing out that Disney has simplified the process of making pictures by eliminating actors, agents, and directors. . . . They point out that he can house all of his performers in one ink bottle.

Page 1, however, makes the other movie magnates feel that Disney is human, after all. . . . "Snow White" and "Prince Charming" this week climbed out of the ink bottle and sued him for $300,000, on the grounds he violated their contracts by circulating their voices on phonograph records.

Quite a multitude of the letter writers want to know one thing about "Boys' Town." . . . In the picture the pawnbroker supplies the money to help Father Flannagan out of repeated mortgage problems. . . . The readers want to know if this pawnbroker was an actual character or whether he was written into the script.

I put the question to Producer John Considine. . . . "The pawnbroker is a fictional character, a compound of four or five men who aided Father Flannagan," he told me.

If I may make a suggestion to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, this would be it: It is manifestly unfair for youngsters like Deanna Durbin and Mickey Rooney to be compelled to compete against older performers. . . . Yet both of these amazing kid stars are entitled to some formal recognition of their work this season. . . . So why not add a juvenile class to the academy balloting?

In any competition with other juveniles, there's no doubt that Deanna and Mickey would walk off with golden statuettes, and there's no reason that they shouldn't win some acknowledgment of their competence.

Front Views and Profiles By June Provines

That Ghost Story.

That other ghost story promised for today will be but briefly summarized because it has had wide circulation recently. It is a local version of a narrative that has become a kind of folk tale. A young man met an aloof, quiet girl at a west suburban ballroom. She finally revealed that her name was Nelda, and gave him a Cicero telephone number. Interested by her aloofness, the lad offered to drive her home. Following her directions, he drove to the entrance of one of the burying grounds in the district, where she got out, waved a good-by, and disappeared. Her escort started after her, thought better of it, got into the car, and sped home. The experience shocked him profoundly, and finally he called the number she had given him.

"Is Nelda there?" he asked.

"Nelda?" a woman's voice asked. "My daughter Nelda has been dead for three years."

Baby Talk.

And now the latest parlor game, as reported by Mildred C. Barber, secretary of the department of architecture, University of Illinois. A sample:

Cuff Notes.

Raymond Loewy, industrial designer (the Aviation building and the Travel and Transport building at the New York World's Fair), says that when he was in London recently a gas mask was put out on the bed with his pajamas at night. . . . John Younghunter, artist of Taos and New York, and Mrs. Younghunter in town yesterday on their way west visiting the Harold Pynchons. . . . The ideal lecture style, to our mind, Author Robert Briffault's, at the Arts club, conversational, reflective, nondeclamatory, even in his most heated anti-Chamberlain comments. . . . Al Jolson, stepping off the Santa Fe Chief. . . . Autumnal note: Two neat bouquets of asters firmly wedged into the cowcatcher of the Burlington 7:30 a. m. express. . . . The office boy of a firm at 111 West Monroe street arriving for work with a permanent wave. . . . A woman who rides the northbound express carries one of those walking stick seats and props it up instead of hanging to a strap. . . . Greta Garbo quietly slipped in and out of town yesterday on her way to California. She went to breakfast with Edgar Goldsmith, a young public relations expert, and ate eggs, which she called a great dissipation, being a strict vegetarian.

Ireland Remembered.

(Letter from Mrs. Stephen Joyce Bolger to her daughter about proposed trip to Ireland):

I want to see Ireland just the way I left it—I mean, at the same time of the year. The oats and barley and wheat were growing green and yellow and as tall as I was, and the cabbage heads were folding their green leaves around their white hearts, and the potatoes were in their lavender blossoms. The honeysuckle vines were in bloom and the meadowlarks were flying high, singing a happy good-by; and our standing wheat, like people in a crowd that could only move their heads, was waving to us a fond farewell. And that was the 11th day of September, 1888.

Your Chicago and Mine.

A little garden, containing flowers and a few stalks of corn, lies in the middle of the sidewalk on one of the four corners of Blue Island avenue and Vernon Park place, Scout Charles Justin Little reports. Who owns? Who tends?

Embryo Thesps.

A teacher at the Chicago School of Expression and Dramatic Art has been having trouble with kid students who objected to reading Masefield's poem Seafever. They termed it silly. Consequently she was surprised the other morning when they turned up letter perfect in their lines and enthusiastic in their rendition. A question revealed that the embryo Thespians had heard Freddie Bartholomew had read the poem over the air. What was good enough for Freddie was good enough for them.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Some of you may remember that months ago I spoke with enthusiasm about a new pressure saucepan with which I'd been experimenting and which at that time wasn't ready for the market. Many of you made inquiries about it. Well, it's perfected now and a downtown store is demonstrating it. If you'd like to have proof of the wonderful way in which it performs watch one of the demonstrations.

It's really a little marvel. It has none of the cumbersomeness of the regulation pressure cooker, but it will perform the same jobs. It will cook a pot roast to juicy tenderness in but a fraction of the usual time. It will cook navy beans in a hurry; it's fine for waterless cooking of vegetables, and does a marvelous job with fruit cakes and steamed puddings.

This utensil is almost as simple as an ordinary saucepan, which it closely resembles except for the cover. The body of the cooker is of cast aluminum of one piece construction. The cover—and this is the magic part of it—is of flexible stainless steel which locks into position with the flip of a hook, making the utensil steam tight. There are no awkward clamps or bolts to bother about. Even a child can operate this cooker with ease and safety. When steam reaches 15 pounds pressure in the pan a weight on the vent pipe automatically lifts and permits the escape of the excess steam. When the cooking is over it's impossible to remove the cover until all the pressure is gone, which eliminates any danger of scalding by steam.

The cooker comes in 1, 2, 3, or 4 quart sizes. Any kitchen could make good use of one, and any bride or more experienced housewife would be glad of the gift of such a cooker.

It's time for witches and black cats to make their annual appearance at parties. There are fifteen menus with their accompanying recipes in Mary Meade's "Holidays and Holiday Meals." This booklet, which contains menus and recipes for every important holiday of the year, is on sale at the Tribune Public Services offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price 20 cents; by postpaid mail 23 cents.

GASOLINE ALLEY — THE ULTIMATUM

The Housewife

When the slip covers come off the furniture, about this time of year, it's surprising to see the old upholstery again and I do mean OLD! Sometimes it's too old and one has to face the problem of reupholstering.

If you've a chaise longue in your bedroom that is your pride and joy and yet is fraying a little under its slip cover we suggest you give it a beautiful new covering of hammered satin. This material is not nearly as expensive as it sounds and it comes 50 inches wide. In an off-white it is especially lovely. There are a rose and a blue that are handsome, too, but the off-white will do so much for your bedroom. EDITH WEIGLE.

SYNOPSIS.

David Beddoes, young American, accompanies his cousin, Alison, to a party at Lady Wibbe's. By mistake they go to the house next door. While they are talking to the spinsterish woman who receives them they hear a woman scream and a body fall. The spinster explains it is a parrot. But young Penelope Wibbe says their strange neighbors have no parrot. But they acquire one next day. While in the house David had seen a favorite book of his former love, Betsy Greentree, with her initials in it. Betsy's father died after losing his money. While traveling in Europe with her aunt, Fanny Rush, Betsy met and married an Englishman, Geoffrey Scarpath. David learns the Scarpaths live in the mysterious house and sends a letter there to Betsy, which is unanswered. David confronts Scarpath, who explains that Betsy is suffering from a chronic nervous condition and can have no visitors, that she is being taken care of by his sister Evelyn. In the guise of a telephone repair man David gains a secret interview with Betsy and learns she did not receive his letter. She tells David her husband is not in love with her and she doesn't know why he married her. David arranges a scheme whereby they may communicate, with Penelope Wibbe's aid. Then Betsy's writing materials disappear. When Dr. Broderick, the specialist attending Betsy, insists on her taking the medicine, which always makes her feel worse, she grows desperate. Alison's friend, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, leaving her flat one night, finds Betsy unconscious on the threshold. Revived, Betsy explains Penelope helped her escape. She is half starved. Colin learns Dr. Broderick is a drug addict. Colin plans to have a friend, Dr. MacConochie, examine Betsy.

INSTALMENT XXX.

A SURPRISE MEETING.

When Bream telephoned to Colin he had little to report. Yes, he had known that Mr. Scarpath had taken to watching both Mechlenburg and Gordon square, though only by fits and starts. Last evening he had taken a solitary meal at the Café Royal, driving from South street along Piccadilly. The mention of this route made Colin ask if at any point in Piccadilly Scarpath had stopped off.

"If he did nip out," said Bream thoughtfully, "it can only have been for half a minute or so in a traffic jam when there were too many cars between for me to keep him in view. Where? O, near the Circus. About opposite Gatti's."

Gatti's! It was at that restaurant the neurologist brotherhood had foregathered. And the time? Bream had it to the minute. The delay had occurred at seven-twenty exactly. Colin wondered. The idea which had come to him would have been untenable for a moment had it not been that other equally fantastic things were being suggested.

"Listen, Bream," said the doctor, and for some moments spoke guardedly of what was in his mind. "I don't suppose you can find out about this, and if you do it will only make one theory look slightly less impossible. Be damned careful, won't you? Between ourselves, we're treading on extremely rotten ice."

Elizabeth was beginning to go out. First she walked only around her own square, slowly. On the second morning,—Friday—she went farther standing up to it so well that in the afternoon she was permitted another, more extended attempt.

The streets intoxicated her. Buses, people, all the sounds and sights so long denied, were a vivid enchantment. Since no interference, strangely enough, had come from Geoffrey, she had almost stopped bothering about him. She was living in the moment, buoyed up by the delirious hope that maybe, after all, a ghastly blunder had been made.

"I mustn't think—yet. I may get a bad shock. O, how wonderful it'll be to see David!"

"You're very pensive." Nurse Badger took her arm as they came near the house. "A bit too much for you, was it?"

"What? No! Only longing for my tea. If you like I'll have a rest afterwards." To be fresh when David got here—which might be late tonight. "What's up? Forgotten something?"

"Only my Evening Standard. I was rather keen to see if my horse came in. Never mind, it can wait."

"Go and get one. Here, give me the key. Besides, I want to climb those stairs entirely on my own. May I?"

"Righty-ho. Take it slowly, won't you?"

The top landing was very dark. There was a switch around about here if she could locate it. She groped along the wall—and found her hand caught in a tight grasp. A horrid shock went through her. She shrank back—and then, suddenly, gave a glad little cry.

"David! Not you—already?"

The words were out before the figure in the dusk began to take shape. At the same time she was aware of a faint, familiar odor, once agreeable, now repellent.

"Geoffrey!" she mouthed, and all the blood in her body seemed to stop circulating.

She said to herself: "I won't faint! I mustn't!" Also that nothing could happen with Nurse Badger barely out of earshot. This was bound to come. She must face it, that was all.

He was speaking, quietly, reassuringly, his hand on her arm.

"So you are here," he said. "I've had the devil's own job finding you. Suppose we go inside and talk it over?"

"No!" That, at any rate, she refused to allow. Voiceless, she shook her head, back planted against the door. She could see him better now. Was it her fancy his face looked drawn, different? His eyes, anyhow, seemed less glacial—and they did not glance off in their usual fashion. She must answer and cut this short.

"It's no good, Geoffrey," she managed between parched lips. Please go. I—I'm not alone, you know."

"O? I hardly imagined you would be. Still, this situation has got to be discussed, Elizabeth. I don't expect reasoned action from you, ill as you are, and I'm quite prepared to shoulder most of the blame. You are my responsibility, however, and . . . it so happens I love you."

The last words so startled her she could not retort to the others. Spoken with such patent effort. Geoffrey actually expecting her to swallow a protestation which must surely have stuck in his own throat!

"Don't make me laugh," she said huskily. "Just—just go."

His eyes looked down on her piercingly.

"You don't believe it?" He paused, nodding. "Not astonishing, I'll admit, but—you have made it a little difficult for me, haven't you?

Difficult? That was marvelous!

"Not your fault, I daresay," he continued, "if from a rather early stage you began holding me off. And not wholly my fault if I'm sensitive about—atmospheres. In spite of which I'm the same man you married. O, precisely the same!"

"That I can quite believe," she answered promptly. "I was the hopeless idiot, not you. I've always wanted to ask you, Geoffrey: Why did you marry me? Don't bother about my feelings, you can't hurt me any more. Just tell me why."

"God knows!" He made the reply so spontaneously that she felt something of her former respect for him return. Coldly, consideringly, he resumed: "One might ask that question about most married men, mightn't one? And get the same answer—if truth was told. You attracted me, Elizabeth. It's not a thing one can diagram. You are very attractive now—more so, I think.

"This illness of yours has been a cursed business, but we were well on the road to getting you cured. Once that was done—well, the rest might have righted itself. If you persist in tearing yourself away from a recognized expert and messing about with quacks, why, that's your affair! I must protest, though, as your husband. You can hardly expect less of me, can you?"

She edged from the unimportunate hand touching her sleeve. O, what was keeping Badger? The first unguarded instant—and Geoffrey had found it . . .

"I wasn't getting cured," she muttered uneasily. Now, you see, I am I—I can only suppose Dr. Broderick had the wrong idea."

His manner changed swiftly. "Don't be an ass, Elizabeth!" he cried. "Can't you grasp the fact that your sudden improvement is the direct outcome of the stuff given you last week? Being able to get out, seeing more clearly, the whole disappearance of symptoms, all—all is due to that and only that!"

He believed it. How else could he hammer home arguments in his familiar, ruthless fashion?

"Cradle Will Rock," Leftist Play on Steel Strike, Opens in City

In the little Repertory theater on Balbo [née Seventh] street, thee Chicago Repertory group last night brought Marc Blitzstein's "The Cradle Will Rock" to its first mid-western performance. This is the "play with music" which was prepared by Orson Welles for federal theater production, which was canceled at the last moment, and which ran in New York under Mercury theater auspices last winter.

The play aims to dramatize the principal leftist charges against the present organization of society. There is the Rich Man whose interest in the steel business compels the clergyman to preach not peace but war. There are the college professors, the editor, and the artists who know who butters their bread and who are careful to help preserve Rich Man's prerogatives lest they suffer the same want and injustice as the steelworkers who are trying to organize.

All of the ideology of the play is thrice familiar, but is here acted out so painstakingly that no one can miss the point. A capacity audience attended. The performance was marked by sincerity and seriousness. E. B.

Applique a Striking Trimming

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The original of this striking dress is in black velvet, the demure square neckline accented with applique motifs in white pique. [The pattern for the applique is included at no extra cost.] For all your informal social events you can't find a smarter frock than this paneled one that flatters your figure every inch of the way. Velvet is an ideal fabric choice, but satin, silk crêpes, and sheer woolen are grand selections, too. Black is a standout color, but some of the newer shades, such as wine, wine dregs, royal purple, and Persian blue are tremendously effective.

If you wish, you can style this model more informally with a V neckline and jabot collar. Shorten the sleeves and add a narrow belt. Such a frock is excellent for wear around the home.

Style No. 3493 is designed for sizes, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅛ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Plain, Homely, or Both, You Have a Charm

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Appointing a beautiful woman as a rarity, one set apart, rather like the finest china, too fragile and too good for use, Margaret Devereux in "Your Life as a Woman" [Random House] reminds you:

"You have something. You may not be the most beautiful or the most ordinary looking woman in the world. BUT YOU HAVE YOUR FINE POINTS.

"It may be your hair. It may be your eyes. It may be your figure. It may be your smile or your complexion. You surely have one splendid asset, if not more."

The author tells of one of her great-aunts who became a family legend. She was as homely as possible. In her way cosmetics were frowned upon, so a woman had to be beautiful or doomed to a drab existence. Great-aunt refused to accept her doom. She had a raw deal from nature, she felt, BUT she did have a beautiful pair of feet. They were small, highly arched, with slender ankles. On this asset the lady concentrated. She wore the most frivolous, the most delightful shoes which she had handmade. She would demand footstools. She would thrust her feet forward on every occasion. She made you aware of them with deliberate and disarming frankness. You found it amusing. You were indulgent and finally charmed by her naïve pleasure in her one asset.

So it was with other women of an older way. Some one's Aunt Clara was remembered for her beautiful hands. She was plain but she used those hands with such infinite grace they became a family legend, too. Or, perhaps it was an aunt with glorious hair by which she was remembered.

While modern women have a million advantages by which to become distinguished in every way, there still is beauty virtue in stressing one grace, one distinction, Miss Devereux thinks. Never mind about an overwhelming aggregate of charms, is the author's theme. Nor about a catalog of beauty. Discover your best point or points and make the most of it or them. Margaret Devereux tells of a girl with whom she went to school. Short and pudgy, with a large nose and wide mouth, she, now a smart urbanite, is noted for her grooming, her dewy freshness. She is interested in people. She knows when your daughter is home from school, when an engagement is to be announced. She gives parties superlatively well.

new vice presidents, Mrs. James H. Winston, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, and Mrs. John Crerar.

Henri David, who is the past has arranged programs for the Alliance, again is in charge of the Saturday lectures.

Oct. 29 is the date set for the wedding of Edwin F. Gillette and Miss Harriette O'Neil. The ceremony will be a quiet one in Pasadena, Cal., where both live.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Mrs. Suzanne Noble to Dr. Herman Chor. The wedding will take place in December.

Midwest Field Trials to Be Held This Week-end.

The midwest field trials today and tomorrow at the Biltmore Country club will draw crowds of dog lovers and hunting enthusiasts. Clear and cold weather is what the Midwest Field Trial club members are wishing for, but cold weather, anyway, for they wish to simulate actual hunting conditions.

Increasing numbers have gone each year to watch the dogs work. Sixty-two dogs have been entered in the four stakes. One of the entries is Blackdale Ben of Wingan, a flat coated retriever owned by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bliss [Barbara Field] of New York.

It is expected that Mrs. Fletcher Garlock, wife of the president of the Midwest club, will be the only woman handling a dog. Gaylord Donnelley, vice president, is to be a judge, so Mrs. Donnelley will not be handling a dog this time. Mrs. Garlock will show a dog she imported from England last spring, which she trained herself. A dog of Mr. Garlock's, Glenairlie Rocket, and one of Mr. and Mrs. James Free's, Freehaven Jay, are being hailed as outstanding young retrievers.

The Garlocks are giving a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon in their new Barrington home. Staying with them this week-end, and showing dogs in the trials, are the Armin Schlesingers of Milwaukee and the Richard Ryans of Minneapolis. Also showing dogs are the John Wallaces of St. Louis, who are house guests of the Frees.

David Elliott, who handled dogs for the late Jay Carlisle, has brought a string of dogs from Long Island, owned by various dog fanciers, including Jay Carlisle Jr. and John Schiff.

Supper to Precede Operalog Tomorrow.

Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Jason F. Whitney, Baroness Violet Wenner, and Mrs. Leonard V. Ettelson are among those who have planned cocktail parties for tomorrow evening preceding a supper party at the Casino club.

The supper has been arranged to precede an operalog to be given by Anna Fitzu at the Civic theater at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Fitzu's subject will be "Othello," which will be given on the opening night of the opera season, next Saturday.

Two Button Type of Jacket Done in Garter Stitch

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

A variation in the field of knitted jackets is this one, done entirely in garter stitch. There is nothing simpler to do than plain knitting, row after row. It is virtually like the river which runs on forever. This two button jacket is flattering to all types of figures, and is knitted in any of the lovely Scotch fingering yarns. Shetlands, pompadour, or luster woolens. Directions for knitting the jacket are available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements.

For instructions for knitting the two button jacket, No. X-108, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Fines, Rewards Are Ill Advised for Youngsters

"I sit her on a chair for half an hour when she's disobedient," says one mother. "And I also have a switch in the corner."

"I put him in a room by himself for one sort of thing. I deprive him of his allowance for another. I take away certain privileges for disobedience. He has to stay in when he's been out late. And if he doesn't perform his home duties he can't play baseball after school. I try to be logical in my punishments, yet I don't seem to make any headway with my son."

Governments and other big organizations are not the only ones who get all tangled up in red tape. Parents do, too, when they have a system of rules, fines, and small penalties.

I believe it is well to steer clear of them as much as possible. Rules, fines, penalties, and rewards are like red tape—if you have too much of it you get all tangled up in it. It gets cumbersome. You lose the spirit of the thing in too much form. I don't think this is the best way to rear a family.

We do need routine in a family. Perhaps what makes it up might be called by the name of rules. If so, let them be unwritten, but understood. And at that, as few as possible, and really enforceable. Here is the sort of thing I don't believe in:

If a boy is late to meals I don't believe in making him go without his dessert. In the first place, dessert is part of a balanced meal. And if the thought of the dessert makes him come in early you are appealing to his appetite. I think consideration for his mother, or the family, or the maid is the right appeal.

I don't believe in fines, first, because they are arbitrary; and, second, because they put things on a money basis that have not and should not be made to have any connection with money.

I don't believe in rewards, except in rare circumstances. Praise, the warmth of approval, the joy of doing or satisfaction in a job well done—these are infinitely better.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Today being Saturday, the self-rating examination is in recess. Examinees thus are given the chance to catch up on their homework and possibly revise their answers before next week's newspapers reveal the awful truth. One more reminder to those who intend to send their answers to me for grading: The first week's answers must be posted before 5 p. m. tomorrow, Sunday.

I confidently expect that 95 per cent of all readers taking the examination will have correctly answered the first seven questions. Naturally, the questions will get somewhat tougher as we go along, but I again emphasize that there will not be one single question asked in this entire examination that cannot be easily solved by the application of pure logic, plus a reasonable knowledge of ordinary bridge technique.

It is not yet too late for any one to start the examination, since the answers to the first two questions will not appear until this coming Tuesday.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	3 hearts	4 hearts	Pass
5 diamonds	Pass	6 diamonds	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened a low spade, being unwilling to lead away from his heart tenace. Dummy's king won and declarer studied the situation before leading to the second trick. It was well that he did, because his play at this point decided the fate of the contract. Finally, on the sound theory that he would need several entries to his own hand in order to ruff his losing hearts, declarer led a low diamond from dummy, and when East played low, put in the jack. It not only held, but West showed out. A low heart then was ruffed with dummy's seven spot. The spade ace now was cashed, declarer discarding a club, and a low spade was ruffed with declarer's three spot. The second heart was ruffed with the nine, and now another crucial point arose. If declarer had ruffed another spade East would hastily have gotten rid of his last heart, and declarer's attempt to ruff the heart king would have failed, because East would have over-ruffed. To guard against this catastrophe declarer entered his own hand by leading a club to the king, then ruffed the heart king with dummy's last trump. Now he led a spade and East was helpless. It would do him no good to ruff, because declarer would overruff, so he let go a club. Declarer ruffed with the diamond six, then led a club to the ace. Now declarer was home. He could lead a club, giving East the trick and taking the ace-queen of diamonds for the last two tricks, or he could lead a spade and in that way assure himself of the ace and queen of diamonds.

If declarer had led the ten of diamonds at the second trick and let it ride [a persuasive play], the contract inevitably would have been defeated.

THE MEN'S STORE, MONROE AT WABASH

Tailored Here

Topcoatings Handwoven on the Isle of Aran $45

The sturdy fisherman of the Isle of Aran formerly wove only enough of these distinguished fabrics for their own wearing. But today they've turned to the looming of these richly colored resilient fabrics as a means of earning their livelihood. We've bought up their finest pieces and have given them to notable American tailors, who are responsible for the smoothly draping lines, and light weight comfort of these coats.

THE MEN'S STORE, MONROE AT WABASH

The Cavaire, by Dobbs, finished with a Cavanagh edge $10

The Cavaire worn with the brim up assumes a mellow softness of contour that echoes the formality of the Homburg but escapes its formal stiffness. It represents the skill of fine hat makers in every detail, from its hand blocking to its Cavanagh edge, and as befits a hat of this quality, comes cradled in a handsome luggage box.

Cordovan Oxfords in a New Comfortable Continental Last $7.75

The noted Chamberlain family started their famous careers years ago as cordwainers. (Cordwainers being shoemakers, so-called for their use of fine cordovan leather from Cordovan, Spain.) This rich mahogany cordovan leather is as highly thought of today as it was when the Chamberlains first worked it in their London shop, and you see it here in our new, comfortable Continental last.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 21.—Bring on those Carnegie Tech Skibos, proud because they have a clean slate thus far in the gridiron campaign. The Notre Dame Irish, and there really are a few Irish among them this time, are ready, even anxious. But the Irish will have to wait until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at which time they intend to paint a picture that will make last season's 9 to 7 Tech victory look like the daubs of an inebriated brush wielder.

The Irish, who also boast a clean record in three games played, went through their final rehersal this afternoon in regular fireworks display of pepper. They had been charged all week with being indifferent to the seriousness of the task at hand. They were trying to live down the allegation. And they also may have been trying to bolster Coach Elmer Layden who was walking around with his head pitched toward the ground like a fellow hoping to catch up with a lost dime.

Carnegie Is Confident.

The Skibos, or Scots, came to town this morning, not exactly boasting but perspiring with confidence. They brought with them so many experts that the community was soon flooded with alarming reports of their great line and their speedy backs. But there will be another line in the battle and that line is Notre Dame's. Nothing much has been said about it but it is supposed to be powerful both on offense and defense. The Scots beat Holy Cross last week by only 7 to 6 and the latter line didn't charge, according to reports. The Irish won't lay back on their heels tomorrow, waiting for the ball to be brought to them.

For the first time this year the speed of the Irish backs will be matched by speed in the enemy backfield. Notre Dame has its progress boys in Ben Sheridan, who is not expected to start but nevertheless will see plenty of action, and Bob Saggau. The Scots have equally shifty ball carriers in Merlyn Condit, Frank Jordano and George Muha.

Harry Stevenson, Notre Dame's best passer, will be pitted against throwing experts like Ray Carnelly and Condit. Stevenson also will have a punting battle on his foot, what with Carnelly and Jack Lee performing in a similar capacity for the Scots.

It's 16th Meeting.

With John Kelly out of the infirmary after a cold, Layden will be able to start the same lineup which opened against Georgia Tech and Illinois, but the Tech arrangement at the start may be different than indicated earlier in the week. Coach Bill Kern, as the Scots worked out today, hinted he might shift the ends, put Dobrus at a guard instead of a tackle and Campbell at a tackle post. The latter would give the lineup a Scotch flavor. Full Back Lee, who didn't play against Notre Dame last year because of an injury and who was hurt during the week's practice, is expected to start.

Tomorrow's meeting, which may be witnessed by as many as 30,000, will be the sixteenth between the two schools. The Scots won four of the fifteen already played, but never have been pushovers for the Irish. Two of these defeats are memorable affairs. One was in 1926, when Knute Rockne, then coach, went away to scout a future foe, only to have his prospective champions succumb by 19 to 0. The other was in 1928, when in the last game on old Cartier field, where the Irish hadn't been beaten for 23 years, the Scots trimmed them by 27 to 7.

U. S. Sues William Dwyer for $3,715,907 in Taxes

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The United States attorney's office today filed suit in the federal court against William V. Dwyer, widely known race track figure, to collect a $3,715,907 judgment for nonpayment of income taxes. The suit covers the period from 1922 to 1929, inclusive, except for 1926, when Dwyer was serving part of a 13 month sentence in Atlanta penitentiary for violation of the Volstead act. Dwyer is interested in a Florida race track, and also has been associated with Canadian tracks.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 21.—It may not mean anything, but the mere fact that the sun was shining and there was a pleasant autumn tingle to the air in Champaign this afternoon was regarded here as a possible ill omen for Northwestern's Big Ten football title hopes. Conversely, the weather was regarded as a boon to Illinois'.

Northwestern, with only a tie by Ohio State, and Illinois, with a victory over Indiana and no defeats in conference competition, are still very much in the running for the championship. A defeat for either would mean almost certain elimination from the race.

It's Illinois Homecoming.

Atmospheric conditions became an element in tomorrow's battle between the unbeaten Wildcats and the Illini, not because there was any belief that a heavy field or a slippery ball would make a great deal of difference in the play of the two teams, but because this is homecoming for Illinois. And when there is typical Indian summer weather in Champaign, homecoming becomes a real event. For two days the twin cities have been filling up with enthusiastic homecomers with the prospects of the biggest crowd for a Big Ten game since 1930 and some of the spirit has been absorbed by the Illinois football team itself.

As the Illini pranced through their final drill for the game with Northwestern in Memorial stadium there was a noticeable improvement in the team's morale. "Come on, snap into it. We've got a homecoming here tomorrow," the players shouted as they sprang into the huddle after each play.

"They've got a better spirit this week than they had all last week," Coach Bob Zuppke admitted grudgingly. "They were dead on their feet before the Notre Dame game. Now they're looking a little more like live men. They're going after the freshmen instead of waiting for the freshmen to come to them. They're beginning to show some spirit."

Team Shows Spirit.

It is this spirit that Zuppke is depending upon to offset in some measure the superior speed of the Wildcats. Illinois' offense can't match the speed of Northwestern's attack built around Jack Ryan, Bernard Jefferson, George McGurn, Paul Soper, and Ollie Hahnenstein. Its pass defense, as evidenced in its earlier games, isn't alert enough to cope with the tosses of Ryan and Jefferson. The line men, despite a great showing in early season contests, will miss the support they received then from injured quarter back Mel Brewer, whose ability to back them up made the Illini forwards appear better than they probably were.

But, though statistics and records are against them, there is never any predicting what the Illini will do at any given chance. That is characteristic of Zuppke and it's characteristic of all the teams coached by him. Give Illinois the proper spot for an upset and add to it the incentive of winning a homecoming contest before some 35,000 or 40,000 fans, and there is usually just about an even chance that the Illini will come through.

Expect More Speed.

Some of the speed that was missing from Illinois' play last week against Notre Dame will be supplied tomorrow by Bob Wehrli, who has taken over the left half back post, and Tony Maseika, who is back at right half back after being out for a time with injuries. Every time Illinois has made a consistent advance against any opposition this season Wehrli has been in the lineup. Zuppke thinks that with Wehrli starting in place of the good but inexperienced Cliff Peterson at left half, the Illini might do something right at the outset of the game and get the jump on the Wildcats. If they ever get out in front they might stay there.

George Rettinger's passing from his full back position has improved this week and the presence of Herb Young a sopohomore pass snagger at right end in place of the veteran Bob Castelo, might make enough difference in he passing attack to provide the missing element that has hampered the Illinois offense all season.

Phil Pezzoli will be at quarter back for Illinois, Brewer having failed to recover sufficiently from a leg injury to play tomorrow.

Michigan and Yale Clash for First Time Since 1883

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—An intersectional football rivalry which began and ended in the infancy of the sport at both schools will be revived tomorrow when Yale and Michigan meet in the Yale bowl.

The two teams have met twice before, in 1881 and in 1883, when the sport was scarcely a decade old at the eastern college and the midwestern team had to travel east to find intercollegiate opponents. Yale won both of the earlier contests, proving its claim as the greatest team on the continent by whipping the Wolverines, 46 to 0, in 1883.

While the meeting will be a novelty for a new generation of Michigan athletes, it will be nothing new for the Michigan coaching staf, and in that fact rests the burden of Eli hopes for a victory from the team which outplayed Minnesota in defeat last week and which ranks as one of the Big Ten's strongest representatives in the intersectional meetings this year.

Knows Crisler's Tactics.

Raymond [Ducky] Pond, with a squad which has lost to Columbia and Pennsylvania and scored an upset victory over Navy, has said he will rely upon his knowledge of Wolverine tactics as being the same employed by Princeton in recent years, where the Michigan coach, H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, sent his teams against the Elis annually.

The Michigan squad of thirty-six arrived here this afternoon, after seclusion since morning at nearby Cheshire academy, for a brief workout in the bowl.

Crisler revealed his Michigan squad would be near top shape for the outmanned but high spirited Elis, with only Half Back Hercules Renda and Tackle Joe Savilla on the injured list. Guard Ralph Heikkinen, who will be making a bid for All-American recognition before eastern critics, was reported ready after three days of rest for an ankle injury.

Michigan Is Favorite.

Crisler, however, was not without apprehension as he reviewed his own team's weaknesses on pass defense in its three games with Michigan State, Chicago, and Minnesota, and the passing success of Yale's Gil Humphrey against Navy last week.

Crisler also pointed to scout reports of a Yale line vastly improved since its opening game with Columbia, which the Elis entered with scarcely ten days of practice, but Michigan has been installed a heavy favorite to topple the Elis on the strength of a forward wall containing such stalwarts as Capt. Fred Janke at left tackle, Archie Kodros at center, and Heikkinen.

With Michigan's running attack, featuring Half Backs Norm Purucker and Tom Harmon, who have averaged better than six yards a try in three games, functioning as it has against its midwestern opponents, the Wolverines are expected to outscore the Elis.

Yale wound up its practice in the bowl this afternoon after a week of personnel shifts which have seen Capt Bill Platt moved from tackle to center and Cy Taylor and Felix Caracciolo installed at tackle and guard.

DUKE PERMITS SYRACUSE TO USE COLORED PLAYER

Durham, N. C., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Wallace Wade, head coach of Duke university, said today he had given Syracuse university permission to play Sidat-Singh, crack Negro back, against Duke Nov. 12 at Syracuse. The Duke-Syracuse contract, signed several months ago, contains a clause forbidding use of Sidat-Singh against the Blue Devils.

"We don't want to penalize Syracuse by forbidding them to use Sidat-Singh," Wade said.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 21.—Wisconsin's Badgers, still undefeated in the Western conference race, tonight are resting in Indianapolis, undisturbed by the yammering of old grads on the Purdue campus. The Boilermakers also have escaped from the confusion of homecoming. They are at nearby Mudlavia hotel.

These squads will report at the Ross-Ade stadium shortly after noon tomorrow for their twenty-third game between the universities since 1892, a battle which will be watched by more than 20,000.

Title Hopes at Stake.

Wisconsin's championship hopes definitly are at stake and although Purdue has been beaten by Minnesota, its only defeat of the season, the Boilermakers will not be out of the stretch run if they can get by tomorrow's foe.

Many tonight are unwilling to concede Wisconsin any advantage because of the Boilermakers' splendid rally last Saturday which tied Fordham, 6 to 6. These forecasters also are encouraged by the report that Bill Schmitz, Wisconsin left half back, will be unable to play. Schmitz's work, and Purdue's scouts agree, has been the natural complement to the plunging of Howie Weiss, Badger full back.

Elward Knows His Team.

No one better realizes the fact that tomorrow's game is the turning point of the campaign than Mal Elward, taciturn head coach. For years Elward was chief of staf for Jimmy Phelan and Noble Kizer until he succeeded to command when illness forced the latter to take a leave of absence. And while Elward declines to express his opinion, no one knows more about the capabilities of these Boilermakers, who already have confounded friends and foes by brilliant defensive play against Minnesota and their tie with Fordham. Last year, for instance, a more highly publicized Purdue eleven was overwhelmed by Minnesota and beaten by Fordham, 21 to 3.

Elward's concern this week has

No Foolin'! Ohio State Fears Maroon Pass Attack

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—The schedule makers of the Western conference have made plans for a football game here tomorrow between Chicago and Ohio State. The boys along Broad and High streets nave decided the outcome will be a matter of three touchdowns at the outside.

Chicago's Maroons, arriving here late this evening, have not been consulted by the local fraternity. They are just the ball team which has sored three touchdowns in two conference games to date. Supposedly they have no say in the matter, despite the fact that they were the last team from any league to score on the Buckeyes while losing.

Takes Foes Seriously.

Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State probably is the leading conference instructor in the matter of taking an opponent seriously. He well recalls a couple of boys named Pilney and Millner who came out of a certain defeat to beat his boys here in 1935 by an 18 to 13 score. He also remembers the following Saturday, when a towheaded demon named Jay Berwanger forced the Buckeyes to a 20 to 13 decision before they left Stagg field. There was also the matter of last year, when a couple of Hoosiers entitled Sparky Miller and Corby Davis embarrassed the Ohio State eleven right out of the conference championship by a 10 to 0 count.

That is why Coach Schmidt and the lads are not disregarding the Maroons. This in spite of a 45 to 7 licking which the Chicagoans underwent at the hands of the Buckeyes' oldest foes—Michigan—and a 27 to 14 loss to Iowa, which had not won a conference game since 1935.

Have High Regard for Hamity.

Principal fear of the local contingent in the face of the fact that they are expected to win by three touchdowns is a little man who used to go to Hyde Park High school back in Chicago. He is Capt. Lew Hamity, who tossed the three Maroon passes which blossomed into the only touchdowns the Chicagoans have made all year. Two of those were 50 yard throws to John Davenport, the Iowan who demonstrated why he holds the Big Ten sprint championships, indoors and outdoors, in taking Hamity's tosses across the goal lines of Michigan and Iowa.

The Maroons' passing threat is providing a definite worry to Ohio State, for the Buckeyes have been unable to unwind themselves, as their scoreless tie with Northwestern last week proves. The bulky Ohio line should have no great difficulty in mowing down the Maroon forward wall, composed almost entirely of sophomores, but whether it can be fast enough to stop the passing of Hamity and Solly Sherman remains to be seen.

Try 32 Passes Against Iowa.

In the Iowa game last week, Hamity and Sherman pitched thirty-two passes, thirteen of them complete and two of them for touchdowns. It may be that the Buckeyes will not give the Chicago passers the ball long enough to throw it, but if they do, the Maroons are capable of throwing themselves the biggest upset of the conference season.

Missing from the Buckeye lineup will be Charley Maag, the big center who essayed a place kick against Northwestern in the closing minutes of last week's game and shortly after came down with a leg injury. He will be replaced by Claude White. The Maroons, on the other hand, will be strengthened by the arrival of Bob Wasem, right end who just became eligible.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 21.—Colgate's transient Red Raiders, who haven't a home game scheduled this season, are suffering naught of nostalgia this evening. They are at nearby Cedar Rapids scheming to raid Iowa tomorrow. They intend to kick over Iowa's cup of joy which overflowed last week when the Hawkeyes beat Chicago for the tall corn boys' first Big Ten victory since 1935.

And speaking of cups of joy, Colgate also has a bubbling beaker, the result of a 12 to 0 victory last Saturday over Columbia, which previously had defeated Yale and Army. So much for cups of joy.

Tomorrow is another day and the lads must get steamed up—not for a championship, but simply to see whether Iowa is better than Colgate or vice versa.

The Trees Are Lovely.

On the foregoing basis, tomorrow's competition must be looked upon purely as a pleasant afternoon's relaxation in the interest of good clean fun. The weather in Iowa City is wonderful and the turning foliage beautiful. Iowans are great pleasure lovers and ever loyal to the Hawkeyes. Having no athletic home this season, the Red Raiders will be just as well off here as they would be anywhere. It looks like a dandy afternoon is in prospect for some 10,000 or 15,000 spectators.

Of course, the Red Raiders could work up a pretty good revenge motif if they really wanted to. They journeyed clear out here from Hamilton, N. Y., three years ago and the Hawks slapped 'em down, 12 to 6.

According to attachés of the team with whom we talked, Colgate is not worrying so much about that defeat in 1935. Coach Andy Kerr has a bigger urge than mere retaliatory victory, 'tis said. He wants to back up the prestige gained in New York last week by running up a big score.

Lube's Ribs Are Sore.

The Red Raiders believe they can gallop if their triple threat star, Left Half Back Hal Lube, is ready. He has some sore ribs, according to reports, and if he should feel reluctant about getting into action on this ac-

SPEEDY BOOGER GOES BACK ON HOST OF FRIENDS

Favorite, He Sees Bright Win Crete Handicap.

Players of favorites suffered much discomfiture at Sportsman's park yesterday. Speedy Booger, a 3 to 5 choice in the five furlong Crete handicap, proved their downfall. The customers bet $16,024 on Speedy Booger, but he finished more than half a length back of three other 2 year olds.

Bright, the winner, had lost by nine lengths to Speedy Booger in his most recent start. Just a nose back of Bright came Jay D. Bane, and the shortest of noses farther back was Maewhisk. Then came Speedy Booger, participating unsuccessfully in the most stirring finish of the meeting. Bright paid $20.60 to win, $8.60 to place, and $4.80 to show. Jay D. Bane paid $38.60 to place, and $17.80 to show.

Favorite Leads Part of Way.

Speedy Booger was in front a good part of the way but never as a 3 to 5 shot should have been. His many backers had reason to be concerned, for Maewhisk and Leonard's Son raced near him all during the early running. Speedy Booger was in front by a head at the top of the stretch and the $16,024 bet on him seemed still very much alive.

Then Maewhisk moved up and Jay D. Bane, which had been running well on the rail, came after him. Bright, far back in the early running, finished fastest of all, however, and won.

Bright raced the five furlongs in the mediocre time of 1:02 2-5. He was ridden by T. P. Martin. J. G. Wilson handled Speedy Booger. Following the race Trainer Al Gaal was fined $25 by the stewards for changing Bright's equipment. The gelding was supposed to run in blinkers, but he raced to victory without them.

Big Day for Martin.

It was a big day for Martin. In addition to Bright he brought home Wowo in the secondary feature for a $15.20 mutuel ticket. Maiden Dream and Marlie May cornered most of the support in this race. They finished second and third back of Wowo. In the sixth race Martin made it three straight by scoring with the Blue Ridge farm's speedy Witan.

Two mares accounted for the daily double yesterday. Opoca, winner in the opening race, and Moss Gal, in the second, made up the winning combination, which was worth only $28.20.

My Half Back.

And as a dancer he's a perfect rummy,
I wish I could have figured in advance
That he would use me for a tackling dummy;
My legs are black and blue up to the knees,
My feet feel like a hive of swarming bees

No gallant tackle ever stood his ground
As I did in the fury of attack,
And when he hurdled me I hurled him back;
I'm crushed and beaten, pulverized and lame
But I've got inside knowledge of the game.

Life's Little Complications.

Spotted this ad in the Aurora Beacon-News: "Room for rent, three windows, twin beds, hardwood floors, unusually large closet, good mattresses. Only those with health certificates need apply." Wonder if a signed statement to the effect that one doesn't wish to marry the room would be sufficient ground for the landlord to waive certificate requirement. —Artemus.

IT'S HOMECOMING AT INDIANA; RIVAL IS KANSAS STATE

First Home Game for the Hoosiers.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 21.—[Special.] — Indiana university's football team, eager to serve a victory to an anticipated homecoming crowd of 15,000, will meet Kansas State for the first time in the history of the two schools here tomorrow afternoon.

Both teams ran through brisk drills in Memorial stadium this afternoon, after which the rival coaches paid compliments to each other's squads.

"It's a real pleasure to have our old friends from Kansas State as our home opponents," said Coach Bo McMillin of Indiana. "We realize they have a fine team that can give anybody a real ball game. I don't believe either team will win by more than one touchdown, but I wouldn't be surprised if both score."

Invaders in Good Condition.

Said Coach Wes Fry of Kansas State: "Our team is in top physical shape, but we're not ready for Big Ten competition. McMillin's boys are about due for victory and we're hoping the score won't be too large."

The Hoosiers, playing on their home grounds for the first time this season, have lost their first two Big Ten games to Ohio State and Illinois, but they held Nebraska to a scoreless tie. Kansas State, rated as a leading contender for the Big Six title, has lost to Northwestern and won from Missouri and Marquette.

Kansas State, paced by Elmer Hackney, a hard driving full back, and Jack Blanke, pass throwing quarter back, has a more experienced team than Indiana, with its abundance of sophomores.

Youthful Guests to See Game.

Other former football players who spoke were Harry W. McDowell of Winamac, Benton J. Bloom of Columbia City, and Clair H Scott of Chicago. Boy Scouts and high school students of Indiana will be guests of the university at the game. Probable starting lineups:

Colgate Strives for Prestige at Iowa's Expense

Lube grabbed the largest individual mention in the east after last week's games, not only because of his passing to Colgate's able ends, Don Wemple and Don Zimmerman, but also as a result of his agility as a runner and his accuracy as a kicker.

Iowa, too, has some individual stuff to show the customers. Nile Kinnick, in earlier games, hasn't quite reached the form he displayed as a sophomore last year, but he has been hard at work this week in polishing off pass tricks. Jerry Niles, soph full back, has plenty of individual sparkle, also.

The entire Iowa team has been shifted in an attempt to gain more speed to match that of the Red Raiders. The most important moves came in the back field, where Coach Irl Tubbs added Ray Murphy, a sophomore, at the right wing back, and Russel Busk at quarter back to give Iowa the fastest starting back field it has had in Tubbs' two years here.

Steinmetz's 80 Yd. Drive Beats Marshall, 7-0

Steinmetz eliminated Marshall's football team from the west section race in the Chicago Public High School league last night by winning, 7 to 0, in Mills stadium. It was the third victory in four starts for Steinmetz and the second defeat for Marshall in four games.

Clyde and Warren Lorenz, Steinmetz touchdown twins, led an 80 yard march late in the fourth period. The score was made by Full Back Chaban, who plunged over from the two yard line. Warren Lorenz made the extra point.

Hyde Park's eleven scored its first victory in four starts yesterday by defeating Du Sable, 13 to 0, in a central section game in Normal park. It was Du Sable's third defeat. Hyde Park led, 7 to 0, at the end of the first half.

The first touchdown was scored in the second period when Fry, who replaced Munroe at left half back, dashed over from the 10 yard line. The second score came in the final quarter when Thompson ran forty yards after catching a twenty yard pass from Bartley.

GABBY HARTNETT CATCHES MUSKIE —A 34 POUNDER

Gabby Hartnett, who has gone a-huntin' and a-fishin' to forget the recent unpleasantness in baseball, caught a thirty-four pound muskie at Lake Tomahawk, Wis., a few days ago. The Cub skipper knocked over the bait and almost tossed his companions into the water trying to land the catch.

De Paul Foe

Wisconsin and Purdue Meet; It's Title Test

been to bring his squad back to normal physically. When the team returned from New York, its third successive travel game in which period the boys rode more than 3,000 miles and met two of the nation's greatest elevens, the weight chart showed all the regulars from five to ten pounds underweight.

"We have been forced to eliminate nearly all contact drills in preparation for Wisconsin," Elward said in explanation, "but it is better that the players recover from fatigue than to practice too hard and be flatfooted tomorrow."

Yesterday's workout lasted only a few minutes more than an hour and today the team practiced even less.

It is conceded that Wisconsin's veterans are improved over last season and that Weiss is a great full back whose plunging may so concern the defense that Badger passes then will be effective scoring weapons. But Bob Woodworth, lanky publicitor of Purdue sports, unrepressed by coaching responsibility, views with no great alarm the coming of the Badgers.

Much of Purdue's defensive brilliance has been due to the performance of Joe Mihal, left tackle. The line has followed his leadership. Purdue's starting backs, in addition to Brown and Brock, will be Ted Hennis, veteran quarter back, and Tony Ippolito, full back. Relief men will include Jim Nesbitt, Mike Byelene, and Ted Tykocki, half backs; Allen Shackleton and Fred Montague, quarter backs, and Tony Juska, full back.

TEMPLE RALLIES IN 4TH PERIOD TO TIE BOSTON, 26-26

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A fighting Temple eleven came surging back with a fourth period rally tonight to tie undefeated Boston college, 26 to 26, before a crowd of 15,000.

Behind, 26 to 19, when the Eagles shoved over their fourth touchdown with less than three minutes to play, Temple's Al Juralewicz ran back the kickoff fifty yards to the Owls' 48. On the first play Clem Stevens threw a fifty-two yard pass to James Powers over the Boston goal to make it 26 to 25. Stevens then kicked the tying point from placement.

DePaul, Loyola Clash Today in Wrigley Field

De Paul and Loyola of New Orleans will meet in Wrigley field in Chicago's lone collegiate game today.

Loyola comes to the game with a record of three victories and a lone defeat, the latter at the hands of Louisiana State. De Paul, which won the first clash between the two schools last fall, 18 to 7, has lost three of its four games.

Today, however, the Demons expect to give their best performance of the season. The return of Bill Corrigan, quarter back, may mean the difference between victory and defeat. Corrigan has been out for two weeks with a painful leg injury.

Roberts Back in Shape.

Capt. Tom Roberts, who was bothered with a leg injury for De Paul's opening game is back in condition and will fill the left tackle post. John McInerney will play the opposite tackle.

Jim Patek and Frank Jenks have proved themselves at guards as has John O'Donnell at center. Don Johnson, a junior, and Clem Naughton, a senior, will operate at the ends.

Loyola Has Reserves.

Coach Larry Mullins of Loyola will rely mainly on sophomores. He has competent reserves for every position, a matter in which Loyola will have a distinct advantage. Lineups:

MARQUART WINS OVER HALLY IN 10 ROUND BOUT

Billy Marquart, Winnipeg, Man., lightweight, pounded out a ten round decision over Wally Hally of Hollywood, Cal., in White City last night. It was the most important of the twenty-three triumphs scored by Marquart.

Spencer beat Babe Savino, Nelson conquered Johnny Panek, and Nyberg whipped Norman Roth. The card attracted 1,445. Gross receipts were $1,205.

Central Teachers Beat Michigan Normal, 7 to 6

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Central State Teachers' college defeated Michigan State Normal, 7 to 6, today. Both touchdowns were scored in the first six minutes of play. Ypsi of Normal recovered a fumble and on two passes and a line plunge Normal scored, with Valleau going over. Three plays later Bruce McMahon smashed off tackle for 35 yards and Central's touchdown. Ernest added the point.

DartmouthHas Its Worries in Harvard Game

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Dartmouth's stylish football Indians, undefeated in their last nineteen games, completed their preparations for Harvard today with mixed feelings. Coach Earl Blaik was confident his regulars could more than hold their own against Harvard tomorrow, but he appeared to have little confidence in his reserves.

The consensus was that the Indians would dominate the game as long as their regulars were in action, and this view was shared by the experts who have followed both teams closely this season.

Both teams wound up with the lightest sort of workouts in the stadium, which will house its largest crowd in several years—more than 50,000—tomorrow if fair weather holds.

PENN VS. COLUMBIA.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Two teams, with an intense desire to get back in the winning column, come together at Franklin field here tomorrow afternoon with the renewal of the Columbia-Pennsylvania football series.

Both camps are reported in good shape for the battle. Columbia, defeated by Colgate last week, claims no serious casualties. Pennsylvania will have two or three men starting who were not in at the beginning last week in the defeat by Princeton. Dominic Polilli is expected to start at right tackle in place of Rex Yard, Joe Miller will probably be at right end in place of Len Warner, and Bill Miller at one of the halves in place of Ed Burke.

PITT MEETS S. M. U.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Pitt's proud Panthers, undefeated in their last twenty games, dug in tonight for an air raid expected tomorrow afternoon from Southern Methodist. Pittsburgh has promised a few passes of its own for the 25,000 fans likely to watch the Panthers' first game with a representative of the southwest conference.

RAMS PLAY OREGON.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Fordham will play the Oregon Webfoots at the Polo Grounds tomorrow. This will be a game that should test the Rams to the limit for Oregon has a big team with a rugged defense. Fordham proved against Purdue that it has the best running attack in its history. But it also proved that it hasn't the strength of other years on the defense.

NAVY, PRINCETON PLAY.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Navy, upset 9 to 7 last week by Yale, takes the field tomorrow hoping to upset Princeton and even the score with the Ivy league. Al Bergner of Kankakee, Ill., big Navy tackle recuperating from an injury, will be on the sidelines, but he is not likely to see action against the Tigers.

J. R. CAPABLANCA OF CHESS FAME WEDS PRINCESS

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 21.—(AP)—It's unusual, in chess, for the king to take the queen, but Jose R. Capablanca, former world chess king, made the right move to capture a princess. Capablanca, a native of Havana and Cuban commercial attaché in Europe, was honeymooning today with his bride, the former Russian royal Princess Olga Chagodal of New York, after a quiet trip to Elkton, Maryland's "Gretna Green," with a bridal party of diplomats. Members of the wedding party said the couple would remain in New York for a week and then sail for Holland, where Capablanca is scheduled to play in a championship chess tourney.

GRIMES' EX-WIFE ASKS $20,000 AS SETTLEMENT

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Florence Ruth Grimes, former wife of Burleigh Grimes, former National league spitball pitcher and until recently manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today opened a fight for $20,000 which she asserts the hurler failed to turn over to her after their divorce settlement in 1931.

MICHIGAN STATE FACES SYRACUSE BEFORE 27,000

Spartans Would Deal Orange First Defeat.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Syracuse university returning after a five year absence will attempt to build further on its undefeated record when it meets Michigan State tomorrow afternoon in the Spartans' homecoming game before a probable crowd of 27,000.

State hopes to duplicate its feat of five years ago when the Orange likewise came here with a clean slate and went back stung by a 27 to 3 defeat. The two teams have met four times and the honors remain even. Syracuse won the last game, in 1934, by a 10 to 0 score.

Syracuse has swept aside all opposition this season and scored a 19 to 1 victory over Cornell last week. The Spartans' record has but one black mark, a 14 to 0 defeat, at the hands of Michigan. Lineups:

Coach Dutch Meyer sent the T. C. U. squad through a light workout on the Marquette field today and announced two lineup changes. He will start Pat Clifford at left half in place of Earl Clark and Ward Wilkinson at full back in place of Connie Sparks. The Frogs' line, which averages 209 pounds, is intact.

FRISCO RAILROAD REORGANIZATION PLAN SUBMITTED

Cuts Funded Debt, Fixed Charges in Half.

New York, Oct. 21.—[Special.]—A joint plan for reorganization of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway company was sent today to the interstate commerce commission by three committees representing bondholders of the road. The plan cuts the funded debt approximately in half, and scales down the annual fixed charges by about one-half. It provides nothing for unsecured creditors or stockholders of the road.

The plan is the first one submitted by a creditor group. It was sponsored jointly by the "consolidated committee," headed by Frederick H. Ecker, chairman of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company; the "Fort Scott" committee, under James H. Brewster Jr.; and the "prior lien committee," headed by John W. Steadman, vice president of the Prudential Life Insurance company. A debtor plan had previously been offered to the commission.

New Capitalization Plan.

Capitalization of the company under the new plan would consist of $135,762,873 of bonds, 773,077 shares of new $100 par preferred stock entitled to $5 in dividends, and an amount of common stock not yet determined. Present capitalization of the road is $276,888,767 of bonds, 491,574 shares of noncumulative $100 par preferred stock, and 654,323 shares of $100 par common stock.

Under the plan proposed today bonds of the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad, a subsidiary, would receive par for par new series A first mortgage 4 per cent bonds, due 1950. Each $1,000 bond of Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis railway would receive $700 of new series B 4 per cent bonds, $490 of new 4½ per cent income bonds, and $100 of new preferred stock.

Other Security Exchanges.

Each $1,000 Frisco prior lien series A 4s would get $205 new series B 4s, $150 new income bonds, $365 in new preferred stock, and 5.80 shares of no-par common stock.

Each $1,000 Frisco prior lien series B 5s would get $215 new series B 4s, $160 new income bonds, $385 new preferred and 6.15 shares of common.

Each $1,000 of Frisco consolidated series A 4½s would get $215 new series B 4s, $155 income bonds, $230 in new preferred stock, and three shares of common.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation and various banks which have loaned the road money would receive new bonds of both classes and new preferred and common stock in amounts now held as collateral for the loans. Bank loans total $7,402,090 and the RFC loans $7,464,715.

United States Gypsum.

Investors' Guide: How do you rate the common stock of the United States Gypsum company? Please send me a report on the firm.—E. S.

Answer: Profiting from a pickup in residential building this summer, United States Gypsum company had higher earnings in the third quarter of this year than in the corresponding 1937 period. The company is the largest maker in the country of building materials having a gypsum base.

Net income in the three months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $1,608,000, compared with $1,456,000 in the 1937 quarter. For the first nine months, however, net income was smaller, totaling $3,789,000, or $2.83 a common share against $4,858,000 or $3.73 a share in the first nine months of 1937.

Although building operations after 1929 fell to the lowest point in several decades, the company continued to operate profitably. This was accomplished by efficient management and by aggressive marketing of products for modernization programs in the absence of new building.

Net income reached a low point of $1,599,000 or 86 cents a common share in 1932. In 1934, it was up to $2,155,000, and climbed to $5,353,000 in 1936. Last year, net income was $5,461,000 or $4.08 a common share.

Net sales last year were $38,345,000, compared with $33,541,000 in 1936, $22,597,000 in 1935, and $15,950,000 in 1934.

Outstanding stock consists of 78,222 shares of 7 per cent cumulative $100 par preferred and 1,193,156 shares of $20 par common. The common pays regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share. Extras of 50 cents in 1937 and $1.25 a share in 1936 were paid. Dividends of more than $1 annually were paid throughout the depression.

Chicago United Artists.

Investors' Guide: For several years I have been receiving 3 per cent a year interest on the Chicago United Artists Theater bonds, but on the last interest date, Sept. 1, my bank told me I am now getting an annual rate of 4 per cent. Is this rate to be permanent?—J. E. H.

Answer: The 4 per cent rate extends from this year until March 1, 1943, when it will be raised to 5 per cent. The 5 per cent rate will hold until maturity, March 1, 1948. Under a readjustment plan effected in July, 1933, interest on these 6½ per cent leasehold bonds was scaled down to 3 per cent for five years, 4 per cent for the next five years, and then 5 per cent.

Cities Service Sells Michigan Operating Unit

New York, Oct. 21. — [Special.] — The first step in what may be its ultimate purpose to withdraw from the electric power and light business was seen today in the sale of its Michigan subsidiary by Cities Service company. The Citizens Light and Power company, an electric operating subsidiary, was sold for $3,200,000. The purchaser is the Michigan operating unit of Commonwealth and Southern corporation.

Stringencies of the integration demands of the public utility holding company act are understood to be the underlying reason which would impel Cities Service company to dispose of its electric subsidiaries and concentrate on its dominant interest. This is the production, refining, and distribution of gasoline and petroleum products. It also has valuable natural and manufactured gas properties.

No Statement on Integration.

As to whether Cities Service company will soon file with the securities and exchange commission a plan for integrating its farflung subsidiaries, spokesmen were noncommittal.

Difficulties in integrating the widely separate electric utilities become apparent when it is noted that they operate in such widely separated communities as Denver, Colo.; St. Joseph, Mo.; Tucson, Ariz.; Aberdeen, Wash.; Hot Springs, Ark.; Danbury, Conn.; Durham, N. C.; Albuquerque, N. M., and Bristol, Tenn.

Its electric subsidiaries account for 21 per cent of Cities Service company annual gross revenues.

Serves Adrian, Mich.

Citizens Light and Power company serves Adrian, and nearby territory in Southeast Michigan. It is contiguous to the territory served by Consumers Power company. The sale is subject to approval of the securities and exchange commission and the Michigan public utilities commission. Involved is the generation, transmission, and distribution facilities.

Pound and Franc Advance in Value Against Dollar

The British pound yesterday rallied 13-16 cents in dealings at New York. The French franc also advanced, closing 0.0075 cent higher at 2.66625 cents. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced the engagement in England of $918,000 of gold for shipment to this country.

CHRYSLER TO RESTORE PAY CUTS BECAUSE OF UPTURN IN BUSINESS

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Kenneth T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, announced today that pay reductions made last March 16 will be restored effective Oct. 31 for employés receiving less than $300 a month. "Individual consideration" will be given salaried employés who were receiving more than $300 a month prior to March 16, he said.

The increases were made "in view of the anticipated increase in the volume of general business and the favorable reception of the corporation's new models for 1939," Keller said.

PREDICT OUTPUT OF 1939 AUTOS NEAR 4 MILLION

A possibility that production of 1939 model automobiles may be between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 units was noted yesterday by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc. The publication said that on a basis of present prospects the total may be closer to 4 million than to 3½ million.

Output this week totaled 68,360 cars and trucks, against 50,540 in the preceding week and 91,905 in the like week of 1937, Ward's said. This was the best showing since the week ended Dec. 18, 1937.

Employment in the automobile industry, excluding parts and accessory plants, is estimated at 295,000 workers, and by the end of the month it will be about 340,000 workers, or 82 per cent of the total of 415,000 at work a year ago.

STANDARD OIL CUTS GASOLINE ANOTHER ½ CENT

The Standard Oil company of Indiana today will cut the price of gasoline to dealers ½ cent a gallon on regular and ethyl grades. The cut, which the company announced was made to meet competitive conditions, is the second in two weeks. On Oct. 7, the company reduced its price on all three grades of gasoline ½ cent a gallon.

The new prices to dealers are 12.6 cents a gallon for regular and 14.1 cents for Ethyl, including state and federal gasoline taxes. Other companies are expected to follow Standard's latest cut.

Douglas Votes a $3 Dividend; Profit Doubles

Directors of the Douglas Aircraft company yesterday voted to distribute a dividend of $3 a share to stockholders, the first payment in three years.

At the same time the company reported a big increase in earnings for the three months and nine months period ended Aug. 31 over the corresponding periods of 1937.

Earnings More than Double.

August quarter net income was $728,815, equal to $1.28 a share, compared with $326,973, or 57 cents a share, in the August quarter last year. Net income for the nine month period was $1,281,964, or $3.19 a share, compared with $852,795, or $1.49 a share, in the corresponding 1937 period.

The $3 dividend will be distributed Nov. 24 to stockholders of record Nov. 4. The last payment made was 75 cents a share in September, 1935.

North American Profits Rise.

The North American Aviation corporation, another aircraft manufacturing company, yesterday reported an increase in earnings. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the company had net income of $1,014,491. In the corresponding 1937 period net profit was $227,055.

A corresponding change is to be made in the management of the parent company, it was said in motion picture circles.

STOCKS HIGHER, BUT GAINS ARE MOSTLY SMALL

Late Selling Pares Early Advances.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 21.—Stock prices closed mostly higher today. Fractional changes predominated because late selling pared early substantial gains. Trading amounted to 1,715,370 shares.

Oil, aviation, rail, amusement, merchandising, and building stocks occupied the center of the stage at intervals. Whenever a particular group showed signs of having spent its welcome, traders switched to other sections which seemed more responsive to support.

Failure of the market to take advantage of several favorable trade and business developments made for caution in the later trading. Observers attributed the selling in part to that defection. Evening-up operations for the week-end were another factor in the late recession, it was said.

Market Active at Start.

The market was active at the opening, due to an accumulation of overnight orders. Oils and aviations were in the best demand at that time. Pure Oil was lively, rising a fraction. Texas corporation, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Phillips Petroleum, and Ohio Oil held their own in the late sell-off.

In the aviations, Curtiss-Wright and Glenn Martin were most active. After reaching 31, a new 1938 peak, the latter stock slipped to finish fractionally lower. Douglas, Bendix, and United Aircraft retained fractional gains. Curtiss-Wright was unchanged.

Low priced issues continued to attract a wide following. Radio corporation again was most active. It closed fractionally higher at 8⅞. At one time it was selling at 9. Other favorites were International Paper and Power, up ⅞; Studebaker, up ⅝; Continental Motor, up ⅛, and Radio-Keith-Orpheum, up ¼.

Loft Drops a Point.

Loft dropped almost 1 point. Pressure against it was traced to the company's admission that although it may eventually get control of 91 per cent of the Pepsi-Cola company stock, it did not know what the profits of that company were.

New York Central assumed leadership in the rails. Net gains were small. Small fractional declines were recorded by the majority of active public utility issues. Steels closed mixed in a narrow range. United States Steel, Bethlehem, and Republic Steel were lower. Youngstown and Crucible closed in the plus column. Key motor stocks managed to retain small advances. General Motors and Yellow Truck were among the leaders. Both netted fractions. Chrysler closed ⅝ of a point higher.

'MOKAN' OFFICIAL ASSAILS UTILITY IN PIPE LINE FIGHT

New York, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A. Faison Dixon, vice president of Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, charged today that Columbia Gas and Electric corporation interests were trying to "dilute" his company's holdings in the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company.

His statement was prompted by Panhandle Eastern's announcement yesterday that its directors had voted to rescind a warant held by Missouri-Kansas to subscribe for 80,000 shares of Panhandle Eastern common stock unless Missouri-Kansas exercised the warant before Nov. 30, or agreed to distribute the Panhandle Eastern shares to its own stockholders.

"The whole matter of the warant is now before the chancellor of Delaware, and will be determined shortly," said Dixon, who is also a Panhandle director.

The rate compared with 2.658 cents for the French unit in late dealing in New York yesterday. Exchange on London, 178.72. Three per cent finished at 78.90f: 4½s A, 81f 20c; 4½s, 1937, 135f 25c.

Freight Trafic Reaches New Peak for Year

Railroads of the United States carried 726,612 cars of revenue freight in the week ended Oct. 15, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. This was new peak for 1938 and exceeded freight loadings of the preceding week by 23,648 cars, or 3.4 per cent. It was the fifth consecutive week in which loadings reached a new 1938 peak.

Last week's loadings were only 9.9 per cent less than in the corresponding 1937 week, when freight loadings totaled 806,095 cars. The decline from the like week of 1936 was 12.1 per cent.

Wider Margin in Preceding Week.

Loadings in the preceding week—that ended Oct. 8—showed a drop of 13.4 per cent from the similar 1937 period and a drop of 14.3 per cent from 1936.

Shipments of all but two classes of commodities increased during the week ended Oct. 15, the report showed. Loadings of miscellaneous freight rose 15,642 cars over those of the preceding week to a total of 293,962 cars. Live stock loadings jumped 3,162 cars to 22,718.

Loadings Compared.

	Wk. ended.	—Change from.—
	Oct. 15.	Oct. 8.	Year ago.
Miscellaneous	293,962	+15,642	−28,777
Misc, l.c.l.	160,403	− 1,530	− 9,593
Coal	137,321	+ 2,784	−22,411
Grain	43,193	+ 2,784	+ 7,777

Ore	30,737	+ 2,201	−19,402
Coke	6,069	− 73	− 3,451

The more than seasonal gain in loadings during the week ended Oct. 15 caused a rise of 2.1 in the Dow-Jones railroad freight index to 77.7, the highest mark this year. The index, based on the average of the last fifteen years as 100, is adjusted for seasonal variations.

REALTOR URGES NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSING FIRMS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—(AP)—John McC. Nowbray, chairman of the housing committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, today advocated, in place of government housing projects, the establishment of "neighborhood reconstruction corporations." He spoke at a construction industry conference.

These units should be privately financed, he said, although they may get aid from both the United States Housing authority and the Federal Housing administration. The former could give grants for land acquisition, the latter "might well assist" by insuring the bonds of such corporations, Mowbray declared.

Representatives of the construction industry urged the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to call a general meeting to discuss labor relations in the building industry.

Everyday Economics

Steel in an Automobile.

The automobile industry has become an increasingly good customer for the steel industry. In the last twenty years the amount of steel in an automobile has almost doubled.

In a typical modern car there are 3,005.97 pounds of iron and steel, according to figures compiled by mill and factory. The War Industries board estimated that during the war period the average car contained 1,543 pounds of iron and steel.

The amount of rolled and finished steel used, as distinguished from other ferrous products, is 2,475 pounds. During the war period only 913 pounds of finished steel were used.

Going into the modern typical car are 1,693.35 pounds of steel sheets and strip. It is this steel which has figured largely in the apparent steel price war in the automobile manufacturing centers. In other words about half the steel used is affected by the price competition. The sheets and strip are largely used for the body panels, fenders, etc.

Alloy steels total 309.95 pounds. They are used in the heavy duty service parts. Numerous other items go up to make the total amount of steel used. The total includes 316 pounds of iron.

NEW CHEVROLET MAKES ITS BOW TO PUBLIC TODAY

Prices Are Reduced on 1939 Models.

The 1939 Chevrolets will make their first public appearance today in 10,000 dealers' showrooms from coast to coast. At the same time Chevrolet is announcing substantial reductions in prices of the 1939 cars from 1938 prices.

The new cars are being built in two series—the Master De Luxe and the Master 85. Both are powered by 85 horsepower six cylinder engines. Two new models are being shown—a four passenger coupe in the de luxe line and a business coupe which is available in both lines. The sports coupe and the cabriolets are being discontinued.

Cuts Range to $45.

Reductions in the Chevrolet prices will range as high as $45. M. E. Coyle, general manager for Chevrolet, said refinements in manufacturing and production processes and a heavy prospective demand were the main factors in the company's ability to reduce prices.

A new vacuum gearshift mounted on the steering wheel post is the major mechanical improvement on the 1939 cars. This is available at small extra cost on both series cars. Another change is a new knee-action mechanism which is said to improve the riding qualities.

Numerous refinements are included in the various parts of the engine, including the ignition and oiling systems and the carburetor.

Appearance Altered.

The appearance of the 1939 Chevrolet has been changed considerably. Through a new design for the fenders, wheels, running board, and hood the car is made to look longer and lower. The headlamps, cradled in the valley between fender crowns and hood, are larger and more efficient.

The windshield area has been increased to give better vision, the steering mechanism has been improved, and numerous refinements have been built into the interior. The handbrake lever has been moved to the cowl at the left of the driver to clear the front compartment.

STORE SALES DIP SHARPLY IN WEEK ENDING ON OCT. 15

Department store sales in the United States showed a much greater decline from 1937 levels in the week ended Oct. 15 than in the preceding week. The federal reserve board reported yesterday that its weekly survey revealed sales nationally to be off 18 per cent from the corresponding week of last year. In the week ended Oct. 8 national sales were only 8 per cent under those of the like 1937 week.

In the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district, department store sales slumped 23.4 per cent under those of the corresponding 1937 week. In the preceding week they had been off only 12.7 per cent. In Chicago itself sales were 21 per cent under last year, whereas in the week ended Oct. 8 they had been only 12.8 per cent lower than those of the like 1937 week.

The commission said hearings had not been completed.

BRITISH COOLING TOWARD U. S. ON TRADE TREATY

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The sudden hitch in the Anglo-American trade agreement negotiations is the latest sign of growing anti-American feeling here, in the opinion of a number of well informed persons. These include some of the British who have been promoting such an agreement.

Tonight it was reported that the government next week would send a new communication to Washington, bringing negotiations to the "vital stage."

Coolness toward America is growing as friendship toward Germany develops. It is reported based partly on the tastes of Sir Horace Wilson, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's adviser, who is given credit for a powerful influence on the premier. Sir Horace opposed the proposed trade pact, it is said.

Ready to Abandon Pact.

There is a strong suspicion that the present delay is a warning that the British are about to throw the pact overboard. But they want to blame the Americans. Newspapers which always like to dig at the Americans, have been announcing the delay is due to exorbitant increases in American demands for concessions. But no paper has reported a specific example of any recent increase, exorbitant or otherwise.

British political circles know the collapse of negotiations would be welcomed by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler. He opposes the American system of trade pacts and does not want to see any more competition in England from American automobiles.

There is all the appearance of official inspiration in the stories put out here on the deadlock. Besides the desire to cultivate Hitler, the British are disillusioned over the chances of getting a political tieup through the trade pact.

Views on Subject Clash.

The Washington, D. C., correspondent of the Daily Telegraph said today that the delay is due partly to the American desire to give the pact political implications, while the British "insisted on treating the matter purely as a scientific and economic one." That is the exact opposite of the impression of American observers here. They believe the British are annoyed because the Americans will not give the pact a political tinge and have made it clear that they did not intend to mix in European dog fights.

The latest slant on American attitude appears tonight in the Star. Though it is the friendliest of London papers toward America, there is a note of carping. George Edinger, just back from America, announces that "every American I met since the crisis said in public: 'We won't come in next time,' and in private: 'We couldn't keep out next time.'"

No Promise to Back Britain.

The sudden change from a desire to win American friendship at any cost to annoyance with Americans developed during the recent European crisis, when it was evident that Americans did not intend to promise to back up the British if the latter got into trouble. Though mostly gossip, it was so uniform and widespread that it assumed the appearance of what Americans would call a "whispering campaign."

The general idea was that it's all America's fault for not having formed an alliance with the British so as to frighten Hitler. Now, like the little Balkan countries which lost faith in the western democracies, the British apparently feel the safest thing is to cultivate Hitler.

Since the crisis, there have been numerous resentful remarks about American criticism. For instance an article in the Glasgow Daily Record, said: "From the United States comes this parrot cry—they are calling us cowards."

Hull Denies Breakdown.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull threw cold water today on reports of an impending collapse of the negotiations for a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States and Great Britain.

There was no "mess," he replied in response to a question at his press conference, and the negotiations are proceeding normally.

PENSION PLAN IS ADOPTED BY QUAKER OATS CO.

Both Employes and Firm Will Contribute.

A retirement annuity plan for officers and employés of the Quaker Oats company, Chicago, was approved unanimously by stockholders at a special meeting yesterday in Jersey City, N. J. The company is incorporated in New Jersey. The plan will become effective retroactively as of Sept. 1, if 75 per cent of the employés decide to join.

In adopting the program which is based on joint contributions by employés and the company, Quaker Oats has followed the recent practice of many industrial firms of setting up retirement benefit plans for their workers. The objective of Quaker's plan is to provide a regular income for employés after retirement.

Program Is Voluntary.

Participation is voluntary. Men may join at 30 or older and women at 25 or older. With "normal retirement" ages at 65 for men and 60 for women, this gives employés a maximum of thirty-five years to build up their retirement fund. Employés may retire in the ten year period before normal retirement ages with consent of the company.

The plan calls for the purchases of retirement annuities from the Prudential Insurance Company of America and the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The employé pays 2.5 per cent of his yearly earnings up to $3,000, 4 per cent on the next $7,000, and 2.5 per cent of any remaining excess. The company pays the remaining cost, estimated to be as much or more than employés' payments.

Maximum $12,000 a Year.

Together the contributions will provide an income at least double the amount an employé would receive from his own payments. The maximum benefit obtainable is $12,000 a year.

The payments will be in addition to any benefits under the federal social security act. Income from the company and the government will bring annual payments of 50 to 60 per cent of average earnings for employés earning $3,000 or less, it is estimated.

A man joining the plan at 30 who earns an average of $1,500 for the next thirty-five years will receive from the Quaker plan $525 a year when he retires at 65. In this case the employés' payments of 2.5 per cent of earnings would amount to $1,312.50 over the thirty-five year period.

Arrange Past Service Annuity.

For employés older than 25 and 30, the company plans to supplement the annuities built up by paying for "past service" retirement annuities. These will cover service from the 25th and 30th birthdays until Sept. 1, 1938, and will be paid for entirely by the company.

Besides this, he will get a "future service" annuity based on the plan now proposed. If his earnings for the ten years from 1938 to 1948 average $1,500, his future service annuity will be $150, making total yearly benefits from the Quaker company of $600.

Employés may arrange to have their annuities paid to dependents surviving them. In this case, the annual payments would be smaller, the amounts depending on the age of dependents.

An employé who leaves the company before retirement age may withdraw his contributions with interest. If he dies before retirement age, his contributions will be returned to his estate with interest.

Business Bits

H. E. Pierpont.

H. E. Pierpont, chief trafic officer of the Milwaukee railroad, will retire Nov. 1 after more than fifty-five years of service with the carrier. He joined the road in 1883 as a telegraph operator at Council Bluffs, Ia. Since then he has served as division freight and passenger agent, assistant general freight agent, general freight agent, freight trafic manager, and trafic manager. In 1928 he was elected vice president in charge of trafic. His title was changed to chief trafic officer in 1936. He will be succeeded by E. B. Finegan, his present assistant.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., announced the resignation of Carl L. Odell as president of the Allstate Insurance company and Allstate Fire Insurance company. The two corporations are Sears-Roebuck subsidiaries. Odell will be succeeded by Gilbert Alexander, who recently was elected chairman of the Allstate units.

L. C. Steele of Fredonia, N. Y., has been elected a vice president and director of the Cudahy Packing company. He will be stationed at Chicago in charge of by-products.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Reunion on Pond.

THE Canada geese and the white swans which are on the ponds at THE TRIBUNE'S Du Page county farm held a sort of reunion this week. These two species of birds have been separated for several months. The geese stayed on the Half Moon pond all summer, spending most of the warm days in nearby fields and going to the water's edge at night. The white swans have spent the summer on the largest of the three farm ponds. But from now on all of these birds are going to have to get along together on the big pond. So far they have been living together agreeably, with no fights to disturb the quiet of the water.

Wild mallard ducks continue to come and go on the big pond. They spend most of their time cruising around the countryside on exploration trips, returning to the pond when they want free food and a good loafing place. Apparently the first flight of pintails which came out of the north passed over the farm ponds. At any rate we have seen no pintails on the water so far this fall, although the mallards drop in and check out as if the big pond belonged to them. There are more pintails in the north, so it is quite likely that some of these birds will spend a few days on the farm ponds. And we hope a number of them will swim into the big wire duck trap so that they may be banded.

Prepare Winter Food.

Even though the first part of this week was warm and balmy, the men are not forgetting that cold weather and snow will be due in another month or so. When cold weather does come the farm will have a good supply of food on hand for the pheasants and other game birds. Each winter, when the birds are unable to get their own food in the fields and woods, the men build shelters and put food there for them. Recently they harvested the sunflowers and put them in one of the barns to dry. Later they will be threshed and the seeds stored away to be used for poultry and pheasant food this winter.

The warm Indian summer weather of the last few weeks has caused several wild flowers and flowering weeds to take a new lease on life. When we were on the farm yesterday we noticed how shoots of Queen Anne's Lace had developed new flowers, just as though their flowering season were just starting instead of nearing its end. The warm autumn has been so much like a second summer that even a few dandelions have sprung up in the fields. The men working in the test plots have evidence of the warm fall, too, since they picked the last of the sweet corn on October 17, and it was almost as tender as that picked this summer.

Small Birds Still Here.

Although most of the song birds have gone south, there still are quite a number of small birds in the fields and thickets. The meadowlarks, among the earliest birds to arrive in the spring and always reluctant to leave us in the fall, are still here. When we walked around one of the ponds to look at the geese and the swans one day this week we noticed a number of warblers on their southward migration. In the same willow tree with these migrants were two downy woodpeckers. Starlings and black birds are other species of small birds which continue to contribute life to the autumn landscape. And in the woods we saw a few shy thrushes that will spend the winter many miles south of Chicagoland.

A pair of towhees were trapped and banded on the farm this week. The land traps designed to catch song birds have captured four of these attractive song birds, all of which have been banded and released. The towhees caught this week were given numbers 319406 an 319407 and then allowed their freedom.

GRAINS ADVANCE AGAIN; WHEAT, CORN UP A CENT

Commission House Buying Boosts Prices.

Grain prices advanced yesterday for the third consecutive day. A much broader speculative interest was reported in the markets. Commission houses were good buyers. Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were at net gains of ⅞ to 1 cent a bushel. Corn gained ¾ to 1 cent.

A large part of yesterday's buying was regarded as short covering, but sentiment generally was more bullish than for some time. Export sales of 500,000 bushels of American corn had a favorable effect on the market. Offerings for deferred shipment from country elevators were small.

Liverpool Wheat Higher.

Light rains fell in parts of Australia yesterday, but they failed to have much effect on the wheat market. Liverpool futures closed ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel higher.

Many grain traders believe the administration will make further attempts soon to boost wheat and corn prices. The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation was said to have purchased fair quantities of cash wheat from southwestern handlers, but no export sales were reported.

Reports yesterday said that American No. 2 yellow hard winter wheat can be purchased in Liverpool within 1½ cents a bushel of the price asked in Chicago.

Germany Buys from Iran.

Germany, according to trade reports, purchased 3,500,000 bushels of wheat from Iran, and Italy bought 1,750,000 bushels from the same country. A large English mill was said to be in the market for Danubian wheat. Low grade Rumanian wheat sold at equal to 58 cents a bushel, delivered in Liverpool, including the duty of 6 cents a bushel.

Despite the upturn of about 3 cents a bushel in corn prices in the last few days farmers yesterday showed no disposition to sell their surplus grain. Reports received by James E. Bennett & Co. from points in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Iowa indicated farmers were building new cribs and would pledge large amounts of corn for government loans.
